Better Babies, Maybe.
Home-Made Lightning.
Why Import Beer or Wine?
More Gold Worries.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

IN GERMANY the new broom is sweeping clean, with much new law making, and sweeping away some things that will be missed later.

The most recent announcement tells of a "Spartan eugenics code," which is to produce better German babies. Fathers and mothers selected from the eugenic standpoint. Mothers are told to cease filling their brains with useless education, and concentrate on producing fine German children. Modern Germany is to be inspired by the example of ancient Sparta.

When a cowboy was offered oxtail soup, he said:

"That's going a long way back for soup."

Going back to Sparta and Draco is going a long way back for inspiration.

DELICATE children, according to the Nazi idea, are "not worth bothering with." To produce husky young Germans is the great thing.

That's going back to the red Indian who had a habit of killing any baby that was imperfect. Neither red Indians nor Spartans ever amounted to much in the world's history, however.

A NEW electrical machine called "Van Der Graaff's 10,000,000 electric volt generator" is a very good imitation of lightning.

From the day when men shivered and prayed to some red-nosed idol, when thunder crashed and lightning flashed, to this day, when men make lightning for their own purposes, is quite a change.

This new electrical generator will make possible the sending of power over thousands of miles of wires, especially insulated.

DR. COMPTON, describing the great generator, says in future engineers will rule society, deciding what it shall and shall not do.

In that the learned gentleman is mistaken. Engineers will rule ENGINES. Human desires and inborn instincts will rule society now as they did 1,000,000 years ago. Neither science nor Hitler can change that.

THE GRAND DUCHY of Luxemburg has sent the first so-called "legal 3.2 wine," 50,000 cases. There is no natural wine of such an alcoholic content. It does not exist, cannot be produced naturally.

Regardless of that fact, why does this government permit foreign countries to send wine or beer to the United States?

American beer is as good as any, and the beer brewed here is made of grain grown by AMERICAN farmers.

California and other states produce excellent wines, as good as anybody needs, and they can dilute it, since it must be so, down to 3.2.

"Absolute protection" should begin by forbidding importation of any beer or wine, to protect American farmers and grape growers. Could not the beer and wine business be exclusive here?

THE EUROPEAN "gold bloc," France, Switzerland, Holland and Belgium, all still on the gold basis, beg England to help them to "stay on." That is not easy in a world that seems suddenly to have lost its interest in the precious yellow metal.

England, first of the big nations to abandon gold after forcing it on India, tells France:

"Sorry, but we are busy looking after our pound sterling. You look after the franc."

THE AMERICAN dollar can stand a drop, for it was actually worth 160 cents, and has still a long way to go before becoming worth as little as 100 cents.

The franc, on the other hand, has already been officially cut down by eighty per cent of its value. The Frenchman who had five sous in the old money, about equivalent to one of our nickels, now has only one sou.

The French say they do not know what will happen if anything more is cut from the value of the French peasant's franc.

The rest of the world is not worrying much about that. England not at all. France also cut most ingeniously, eighty per cent from the value of "franc bonds" that Englishmen bought to help France in the war.

THE REST of the world is very much interested in the important question:

What will happen if all the nations abandon gold and the world suddenly finds itself without the old familiar golden "yard stick of value?"

One thing is certain, this country will suffer, if at all, less than any other country. Money is "worth" what it will buy, and the American dollar will buy anything in the United States, which has more things worth buying than any other country.

Also "more plentiful" dollars will continue to promote business and raise prices, which this country needs.

RAID PLACE AS NETTIE GORDON'S

State Troopers Invade North Side, Arrest Women, Men

John Law reached out today for Nettie Gordon.

The North Side woman, who not so long ago was a Republican committeewoman, faced arrest after State Police came to town and made a spectacular raid on a place in Plush way which they say she operates.

Then they visited a house in Sandusky street armed with a warrant for one Nell Callahan, who was charged with keeping a disorderly place. The house vacant, they reported finding her next door. She was taken to Squire Margaret Morgan's office, where she posted $1,000 bond for a hearing Saturday.

In plain clothes, the troopers pushed their way into the Plush way house and arrested nine women and 10 men.

But Nettie wasn't there, although the troopers carried a warrant charging her with keeping a disorderly house. She was expected to post bond today.

The Plush way house is within a few minutes' walk of the North Side Police Station. Recently the police were criticized by the Rev. Ray E. Snodgrass, pastor of the First Christian Church, for allowing wide open conditions.

Today the crusading pastor said:

"There had been some talk of bringing in the state police to clean up the North Side, but I know of no official action taken by any group."

The warrants were obtained from Squire Morgan, of Sewickley, who refused to say who had filed the complaint. Squire Morgan said Nettie's counsel had telephoned that she would post a $1,000 bond late today.

Just who solicited the aid of the state police remained a mystery. The police themselves said constables had asked their help. With them on the raids was Constable Ross Shaffer. This was the second invasion of the troopers in less than six months, their first being the raid on the Monaca Club.

William Alexander Gordon and his bride, the former Madelaine Alexander, of Sewickley, were called from their honeymoon yesterday by the death of Gordon's father. They were cruising in the yacht Viator, owned by the bride's father, Dr. Maitland Alexander, when they received word to return to East Williston, L. I.

They were married last Saturday at Poplar Hill, the Alexander's Sewickley estate. Gordon Gordon, the bridegroom's father, was president of the Mt. Andrew Mining Company and president, treasurer and director of the Taft-Pierce Manufacturing Company.

PENNROAD INVESTORS' LOSS TOLD

Kahn Admits Gigantic Setback for Stockholders

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—The Senate banking inquiry today revealed the American investing public lost $100,000,000,000 helping to finance the Kuhn-Loeb-supported Pennsylvania Railroad in a struggle with J. P. Morgan interests to create rival railroad empires.

The public dropped this much in losses on stocks of the Pennroad Corporation by the Pennsylvania with Kuhn-Loeb aid.

Otto H. Kahn, millionaire head of the firm, admitted the public's losses. He told, too, how his own firm made a total profit of $5,480,000 in floating the Pennroad securities.

The Pennroad stocks, offered at $15, $16 and $17 jumped to $30 a share at first. The public poured $133,000,000 into the corporation's coffers. Then the stock collapsed, falling to $3 a share.

KUHN QUIZZED

Kuhn was asked:

"Is it fair to say the loss to investors, measured by the depreciation of the stock, is a little over $100,000,000?"

He replied:

"That's not a quite fair description. It is impossible to say

Ammonia Fumes Peril Hundreds

Supreme Court Ousts Dr. King As P. S. C. Head

PINCHOT WINS LONG FIGHT

PHILADELPHIA, June 30.—(AP.)—The Supreme Court today ousted Clyde L. King as a member of the Public Service Commission.

The decision upholds Gov. Pinchot's contention that King's appointment automatically lapsed because the Senate adjourned without confirming it.

The decision announced by Chief Justice Frazer said:

"The demurrer of the defendant (King) is overruled and judgment is hereby given ousting the defendant from the Public Service Commission."

KING PAYS COSTS

It was ordered that King pay the costs of the case.

Gov. Pinchot and King, who was chairman of the commission, were close frends and political allies. They broke last February over continuation of the Senate public utilities investigation.

Pinchot, who had drafted King for the chairmanship last September, declared his "usefulness" in that post ended because he would not join the Governor in

TOWN HALL CONTRACT 'SPIKED'

Supreme Court Backs County in Battle Against Nicola

The State Supreme Court today delivered what is believed to be a knockout blow to the Oakland town hall site of F. F. Nicola's Schenley Farms Company.

It affirmed the action of Judge James R. MacFarlane, of Allegheny County Common Pleas Court, in denying a mandamus sought by the company to force the county to pay $1,100,000 for a town hall site under an agreement made in February, 1931.

Legality of the agreement, attacked in a taxpayers suit, had previously been upheld by Supreme Court.

The present decision, written by Justice Alex Simpson, Jr., denies the appeal because the company failed to exhaust all legal means of obtaining payment before seeking relief in the courts.

Chairman C. C. McGovern, of the present board of County Commissioners, is jubilant over the decision. He voted against the original agreement.

BATTLE BELIEVED OVER

It is generally believed this brings to an end Nicola's long battle to force performance of the old contract on the new Commissioners.

Counsel for Nicola had refused to enter into a jury trial, and Judge MacFarlane had then entered judgment for the county. In its fight against the purchase, the county contended that the Schenley Farms Company had not been able to tender a deed for the entire property and had not presented its claim properly to the County Controller.

The effort to force the county to buy the plot bounded by Fifth, Ruskin and Tennyson avenues and Bigelow boulevard, started with mandamus proceedings in Common Pleas Court.

The county filed a motion to quash which was dismissed and the county then made its formal return. After Nicola's attorneys filed a demurrer to the return, the court over-ruled the demurrer.

JURY TRIAL REFUSED

It was at this point that the county demanded trial by jury and counsel for Nicola refused. Judgment was entered for the county and the case went to State Supreme Court.

The argument to Supreme Court was presented by Assistant County Solicitor John H. Lauer. Attorney Oliver K. Eaton had been hired by the county as special prosecutor.

Supreme Court had previously ruled in a taxpayers' suit brought by Eaton on behalf of a number of residents of the Schenley Farms district that the contract for the purchase of the hall site was valid and that a $6,000,000 appropriation to build the hall was legal.

Another taxpayers' suit brought by former Mayor William A. Magee in an effort to block the hall site purchase was dismissed.

In addition to this litigation, there was a $150,000 suit against Nicola for a commission recently lost by John J. Verona, Hill district politician.

WARRANT TODAY FOR M'CLURE

PHILADELPHIA, June 30.—(AP.)—Bench warrants were to be issued today for State Senator John J. McClure and 93 of 95 others indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of participating in a huge liquor and graft conspiracy in Delaware County.

McClure is Republican organization leader of the county, a power in state politics and recently was boomed as a gubernatorial candidate.

Indicted with him was a coterie of his close business and political associates, including Eugene F. White, chief clerk of the state House of Representatives; every one of the leaders of the 11 wards in Chester; James F. Dougherty, manager of George Godfrey, Negro fighter; and many minor officials.

The blanket indictment, listing 150 separate overt acts, climaxed a prolonged investigation of conditions in Delaware County.

The two men who will not be served with bench warrants are Al Silverberg and Jeff Newman, former Philadelphia gangsters, serving life sentences for murder in Minnesota.

MULDOWNEY BROTHER ACCUSED

State G. O. P. Rocked By Charges Against McClure, Coyne

The Pennsylvania Republican organization rocked today under blows against two of its outstanding leaders, delivered by federal grand juries in opposite ends of the state.

In Pittsburgh, State Senator James J. Coyne, head of the G. O. P. forces, stood indicted on charges of conspiracy to violate the election laws. In Philadelphia his associate in the state machine, State Senator John J. McClure, was under indictment for conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws.

The federal grand jury delivered a parting blast at alleged vote cheaters in the Coyne-controlled Thirty-second Congressional District, today, by indicting 15 members of three election boards.

One of the 15 is Joseph W. Muldowney, judge of election in the Third District, Fourth Ward, brother of Congressman Michael J. Muldowney, whose election on the Republican ticket was contested by Mrs. Anne E. Felix, Democrat. One woman was named.

Today's indictments came as the grand jury turned its searchlight on the Thirtieth Congressional District in which former Congressman Edmund F. Erk was defeated by Twing Brooks, Democrat.

HOLIDAY RECESS

After questioning 40 witnesses, including North Side ward leaders, and returning the indictments, the grand jury adjourned over the Fourth of July holiday until Wednesday.

Those named in three indictments today, all reputed lesser associates of State Senator James J. Coyne, himself indicted Wednesday with eight of his chieftains, are:

First District, Fourth Ward—Chester Basial, judge; William Patton and John Patton, inspectors; Frank Samson and Edward A. Taylor, clerks.

Third District, Fourth Ward—Joseph W. Muldowney, judge;

Carnera, Happy as Child, Chants Song of Victory, 'Primo's Champion'

Mother's Joy First Thought of 'Man Mountain'

NEW YORK, June 30.—(AP.)—The new heavyweight fighting champion of the world, Primo Carnera, of Italy, sat back in the corner of a blistering little room out on Long Island last night and beat his great hands together like a delighted child as he chanted in rough shod English:

"Boy, oh boy, oh boy! Now my mamma and papa be happy! Now my mamma and papa be happy! Primo's champion! Now they be happy!"

Over and over, as though dazed, the tremendous man who a few moments before had battered Jack Sharkey into helplessness, assured himself it was true. He would stop long enough to shake the hands of those who had fought their way into the cubbyhole dressing room, only to lapse again into his chant of victory.

It was hot in there. Sweat poured down his enormous frame in rivulets, but Primo was too deliriously happy to mind it. He shook hands with a little dentist who had fashioned the mouthpiece he wore in winning the title; to the best of his ability he answered any question shot at him. The naive man mountain is likely to make a popular champion.

The blow that felled the ex-sailor was one all the experts had said Primo didn't possess.

"I've been teaching that right uppercut for months."

So revealed Bill Duffy, the man who is credited with having made a boxer out of the former circus freak. He continued:

"We practiced it in private, just Primo and me, and I knew in my own mind what would happen when it landed on Sharkey's chin. One was enough."

As far as Primo is concerned, they can bring on the challengers now. He probably is the most confident champion who ever demanded the big end of the gate.

Sharkey Conqueror Ready to Meet Challengers

"I fight Baer. I fight anybody. I whip all of them. You'll see. Primo is champ."

Harry Keck's story of the Carnera-Sharkey battle appears on Page 29.

'Bravo!' Cries Waitress Who Sued for Balm

LONDON, June 30.—(INS.)—"Bravo Primo! I knew he would win despite all our worries."

Beaming with pleasure, Emily Tersini, pretty Soho waitress who recently won a settlement from the new heavyweight champion in a love balm suit, commented thus today when informed her erstwhile giant boy-friend had flattened Jack Sharkey.

Miss Tersini demurely revealed she had cabled the battling behemoth her best wishes before the fight. She said:

"I always knew he would be a world champion as soon as he got a chance. His victory is for Italy. Bravo Primo!"

Nine Men Fined in Fight At Muldowney Picnic

Nine men were fined $10 and costs, three women were discharged and charges against three other men were dropped at a hearing before Justice of the Peace Martin K. Weitzel in Dormont as the aftermath of a free-for-all fight at the testimonial picnic given last Sunday for Congressman Michael Muldowney.

The nine were fined on disorderly conduct charges, on information sworn to by County Detective Frank Ritz. Charges of inciting to riot were withdrawn.

Superintendent of Police Franklin T. McQuaide visited the Dormont Justice's office with his two sons, Franklin, Jr., and Thomas, to prove that neither of his sons had been involved in the picnic fracas. Two Mt. Lebanon policemen, County Detective Frank Ritz and Justice of the Peace Weitzel, after meeting and talking with the younger McQuaides, declared neither of them had been there.

A man said to have misrepresented himself as a a son of the superintendent did not appear. First giving his name to police as Joseph Conners, he later told police and Justice of the Peace Weitzel his name was McQuaide. He was released on his own recog-

SIX MORE ARRESTS ORDERED IN COURT WARD INQUIRY

CLOSING OF 10 ADDITIONAL HOMES SEEN

Child Service Bureau May Yield Care Of 25 Youngsters

While Judge Benjamin Lencher, presiding over Juvenile Court, today ordered the arrest of six more persons in his efforts to clean up the Juvenile Court problem, executives of the Children's Service Bureau were debating whether they should turn 25 wards over to the court.

Following Judge Lencher's closing of four more homes yesterday because they did not reach his standard for the wards, and indications that 10 more would be closed, he conferred with Children's Service Bureau representatives. Heads of the bureau, a corporation within the Welfare Fund whose work parallels in many respects the court's, asked they be given funds to care for their own wards.

They said they would not permit county investigators, under Leo Riordan, to inspect the homes of their wards without being accompanied by their own social workers. The welfare workers called the investigators "detectives."

Riordan, representing the County Commissioners, told the women the county would not allow its money to be spent in places to which it had no access, but would require supervision.

Judge Lencher upheld Riordan, told the women county investigators' reports had been fair and just, and formed basis for many of his decisions. He said the Children's Bureau would have to make a formal petition to the court, after Miss Grace Stoakes, chief probation officer of the court, presented a letter from County Controller Robert G. Woodside explaining that the county could not give money to an agency. The representatives said they would think the matter over.

a man, holding the stock now, paid more than the present price of $3 a share. If the present holders of the stock had them at $30 then they did suffer a depreciation of $100,000,000."

The Kuhn-Loeb balance sheet for December 31, 1932, revealed the firm had been hit a tremendous blow in recent years. Its assets shrank from $120,402,103 at the end of 1929 to but $34,266,405 at the end of 1932.

This was a far greater percentage of shrinkage than that experienced by J. P. Morgan & Co.

The committee today decided to continue its inquiry next week, because Frank E. Taplin, a Cleveland financier, failed to honor its subpena.

A new subpena was issued, ordering Taplin to appear here Wednesday. Taplin was served with one subpena yesterday in New York, which he ignored.

The committee wants to question Taplin about his sale of stock in the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad to the Pennroad Corporation, a Pennsylvania Railroad holding corporation. He was paid $170 a share when the stock sold on the market for $110 to $140 a share.

CRITICAL OF MORGAN

Kahn was slightly critical of the methods used by Morgan to finance the Alleghany Corporation and very proud of his own plan that set up the Pennroad Corporation.

He expressed pride in the fact that he advised the organizers of the Pennroad Corporation not to pay bankers for underwriting their stock issues. This advice saved the stockholders "millions of dollars."

The Pennroad Corporation was organized, as W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, told Kahn, "to preserve the interests and integrity of the Pennsylvania Railroad" against encroachment by the Morgan-controlled Allegheny Corporation.

Kahn said:

"The advice I gave the organizers of the Pennroad Corporation was the best we ever gave. We created this corporation without creating any fixed charges. Fixed charges are a burden, just like the Alleghany Corporation was created with fixed charges.

"We told the organizers not to burden themselves with any fixed charges. We told them not to issue preferred stock, which involves a moral obligation to strain yourself to pay dividends.

"We realize our great responsibility in advising you, we told them, to issue so large a block of security without having it underwritten..

"We told them to take a chance because the cost of underwriting was so great we could not conscientiously advise it. I am vain enough to say that all these items of advice turned out soundly. The act of underwriting inevitably means millions of dollars and we saved them that expense."

Moley in Important Conference at London

International News Service.

LONDON, June 30.—President Roosevelt's acceptance of a compromise declaration to control currency fluctuations was indicated tonight when Prof. Raymond Moley joined his World Economic Conference colleagues at 10 Downing street, where the document was slated to be signed.

Most of the other delegates had assembled when Prof. Moley made a dramatic arrival, dashing up the narrow street in a big United States embassy automobile draped with an American flag.

Shortly before Moley arrived, Prime Minister MacDonald and Chancellor of the Exchequer Chamberlain walked over to 10 Downing street from the oHuse of Commons, with their heads together in deep conversation.

COUNTY SCANS ZIEFEL CHARGE

Declaring that it was useless to instigate criminal prosecution against persons revealed as having abused public trust while in office under former administrations, Leo A. Riordan, chief county investigator, has refused to make any recommendation to the County Commissioners as to what steps should be taken as a result of his investigation into alleged private work done by county employes on a house in Parkers Landing, Pa.

Riordan's report received by the County Commissioners yesterday stated that an investigation had revealed that William H. Ziefel, former Commissioners' chief clerk, had sent Henry Kunkle and three other county employes to remodel the Parkers Landing home of the mother of Mrs. Ruth Williams, of the Fairfax Hotel.

The report was turned over to the legal department to determine whether the county can take criminal or civil action.

Riordan charges that Kunkle drew more than $500 in salary from the county during the time he was working on the private job.

$108,000,000 IN GOLD RETURNED

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—Gold has been returned to the Treasury and Federal Reserve banks in the volume of $108,000,000 since the first of May when the Department of Justice started its campaign against hoarders.

Federal Reserve Board figures today showed that the total gold reserves of the banks were $3,543,765,000 June 28, an increase of $10,557,000 for the week and $982,356,000 higher than a year earlier.

Attorney General Cummings indicated that the prosecution of gold hoarders was imminent. Many have defied the government's demand that gold be returned. They will be interviewed again and if the gold is not paid prosecutions will start, Cummings said.

Money in circulation has declined by the amazing total of $1,942,000,000 since March 8.

LAST MONACA PRISONER FREE

The last of the 12 Monaca Club defendants was at liberty today when P. J. Haley, 32, 114 Craft avenue, was paroled by Judge Samuel H. Gardner with the stipulation he pay a $500 fine. He had served four months of his term.

Haley was the head waiter who tried to "take the rap" when the Oakland hot spot was raided by state police last February. He declared he was the sole owner and proprietor of the place and was sentenced to one year in jail and a $500 fine after a second quiz before the grand jury.

On his original plea, Haley was fined $100 and sentenced to six months in jail.

COLONEL SLAIN BY VET WHO LOST PENSION

Stalked Congressman With Bomb, Balked, He Kills 'Fine Guy'

DAYTON, O., June 30.—(AP.)—The murder of a government official and a plot to kill a Congressman was attributed by police today to a disgruntled Spanish-American War veteran, who was cut off the pension and disability rolls of the Veterans Bureau three weeks ago.

The veteran, James D. Shadbolt, 53, was charged with murder growing out of the fatal shooting last night of Col. Vernon Roberts, chief of the medical staff of the National Military Home here.

Shadbolt was found hiding in a cemetery near the home, and was questioned for several hours. Later police said he had told them he originally planned to kill Congressman Byron B. Harlan, of the Third Ohio District. Harlan voted for passage of the recent veterans' economy act in Congress.

BALKED IN BOMBING

Shadbolt was quoted by officers as telling them he had gone to the Gem City Democratic Club in Dayton several times in recent weeks, carrying bombs intended for Congressman Harlan. Each time, Harlan was away.

Asked why he turned his wrath against Col. Roberts, police said the veteran told them:

"I must have got the devil in me last night. Col. Roberts was a fine guy, I liked him."

Records of the military home indicated Shadbolt served one year in the Spanish-American War and until this June was receiving about $60 monthly as a pension from the government on a disability claim.

Along with many others, Shadbolt was ordered to leave the home and his pension was discontinued on the grounds that his disability was not incurred in government service.

Vet Dies for Family; Denounces Roosevelt

PHILADELPHIA, June 30.—(AP.)—Ending his life so his family might have "the miserable balance" of his soldiers' bonus money, Daniel W. Thornton, an officer of the Khaki Shirts left a letter to President Roosevelt criticizing the latter's attitude on the bonus question.

Thornton, a former United States Army captain, was found dead in a gas-filled hall bedroom last night where police said he had been living with his wife and child.

His "open letter" to the President stated that, although he wanted to live, suicide was "the only way I can provide for those dependent upon me, by making available to them the miserable balance due me on my adjusted compensation certificate." He added this amounts to about $275.

Disabled Veterans Drop Hines Ouster Demand

CINCINNATI, June 30.—(AP.)—Told that it had "undone the very good we wanted to do," the convention of Disabled American Veterans of the World War today decided to reconsider its resolution of yesterday, demanding the immediate dismissal of Gen. Frank T. Hines as head of the Veterans' Bureau.

The action followed an impassioned plea by William Conley, national commander. The Minnesota delegation to the convention, which sponsored the original resolutions yesterday, agreed to reconsideration. The original resolution demanded the removal of Hines and his assistant, J. C. O'Roberts, and "condemned" Lewis T. Douglas, director of the budget, for his alleged unsympathetic attitude towards war veterans.

The convention ordered substitute or rescinding resolutions prepared at once.

Conley expressed belief the convention had acted hurriedly and was moved by bitterness over slashes made under the National Economy Act to compensation of disabled veterans.

urging the continuation of the inquiry.

Saying he was sorry that he could not dismiss King, Pinchot asked the Senate to return his nomination, but that body adjourned without acting either on the nomination or on Pinchot's request.

GOODNOUGH NAMED

Pinchot then held the nominations dead and reappointed four commissioners. In the place of King he named C. Jay Goodnough, former Speaker of the House, for chairman.

King and Goodnough agreed to a truce under which neither attempted to preside at commission meetings. In the meanwhile the court action was started by Attorney General W. A. Schnader.

The case was argued a month ago in Harrisburg, Schnader appearing for the Governor and Roland S. Morris, Philadelphia, for King.

Goodnough Named To Full P. S. C. Term

HARRISBURG, June 30.—(AP.)—C. Jay Goodnough, of Emporium, today became chairman of the Public Service Commission through the Supreme Court decision ousting Dr. Clyde L. King.

Goodnough was reappointed for a full term today and will be sworn in tomorrow. He will be designated chairman.

ORDER BY NAZIS SPLITS CHURCH

BERLIN, June 30.—(AP.)—Protestant churchmen in Prussia must choose next Sunday between dictates of conscience and dictates of an increasingly powerful Nazi government.

If they choose one, they will approve the Nazis' wish for dominance of all walks of life, including religion; if they choose the other, they will be liable to prosecution.

Their own leaders have asked that Sunday be a day of prayer—of supplication for freedom to conduct their religious life as they desire.

But Nazi commissioners have ordered that the day be one of thanksgiving in which pastors and elders shall thank God that the Hitlerites control theoretically the churches as they do the industrial, political, and commercial life of the reich.

Pittsburgh Girl Asks Aid to Wed in Congo

WASHINGTON, June 30.—(INS.) Two Americans in the far-off Belgian Congo have appealed to officials here to help them get married.

They are Raymond A. Moore, of Lancaster, Pa., and Dorothy M. Beck, of Pittsburgh.

The Belgian Congo, unlike any other country, requires affidavits from officials in the home country of the bride and groom, certifying that they are eligible for marriage under their home laws.

Miss Beck wrote to Representative Kelly (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, who, in co-operation with the Belgian Embassy, prepared the necessary papers. They must be forwarded to the Belgian Congo, be returned, filled out and returned again. Thus several months may elapse before the marriage can be solemnized.

Both are understood to be in mission service, although they did not divulge this in their appeal for aid.

400,000 Veterans Lose U. S. Pensions Tonight

WASHINGTON, June 30.—(AP.)—Upward of 400,000 veterans were on notice today that midnight means an end to payments to them from the government.

Veterans administration officials, meanwhile, pushed plans for early reviews of the cases of hundreds of thousands of other former soldiers to determine whether they shall stay on the rolls, and what they shall be paid.

Under the economy law and subsequent modifying regulations and statutes, approximately 387,000 World War soldiers receiving disability allowances for troubles not directly connected with their service go off the rolls at 12 tonight for an estimated savings of $83,000,000.

Administration officials said there were several thousand others for whom payments will stop tonight, but the total was not available.

Latest official figures showed the economy campaign would cut estimated expenditures for the fiscal year 1934 $345,000,000 under appropriations for the [illegible]33 period.

ROOSEVELT ON CRUISER

WASHINGTON, June 30.—(AP.)—Secretary Swanson today received a wireless report that President Roosevelt and his party were aboard the Cruiser Indianapolis to start the President's trip back to the White House.

The report from Capt. John M. Smeallie stated simply that the Presidential party had come aboard at 8:35 a. m. The message came from Campobello Island, New Brunswick.

CAMPOBELLO ISLAND, N. B., June 30.—(AP.)—Fighting down a four-day fog, President Roosevelt sailed into the sunshine of his home harbor yesterday afternoon after a contest with the elements and delivered to his neighbors of Canada a message for the struggling Geneva disarmament conference. He said:

"I was thinking as I came along, that this reception is the finest expression of permanent friendship between nations that we could possibly have.

"I am glad that I had with me the American chairman to the Geneva arms conference, Mr. Norman H. Davis. Now he will go back and tell them he has seen with his own eyes what a border without fortification means between two great nations."

Bridge Leaper Misses River, Decides to Live

Maybe Joseph Figuld drank too much, but then maybe it's a good thing that he did—it depends upon which way you look at it.

When police took him to the Allegheny General Hospital today with an ankle injury, after firemen had lifted him with a rope from a pier abutment under the Ninth Street Bridge, they wanted to know how he happened to be there.

And here is what the police said Figuld replied:

"Well, I was drinking a little bit, you know, and I jumped off the bridge. Only I didn't jump far enough. No sense jumping again; so I just hollered until someone heard me."

The abutment from which firemen pulled him was 20 feet from the bridge railing and 20 feet above the river bank. The rescue was by Engine Company No. 33 firemen, who were notified by a pedestrian who had heard Figuld moan. Figuld said he was homeless.

POPE AT MASS IN ROME CHURCH

It was the third appearance of Pius in famous cathedrals of Rome following his avowed intention of visiting these basilicas during the Holy Year to obtain plenary indulgence.

Hundreds of especially invited persons, including many American seminary students and lay pilgrims, and thousands of devout Roman citizens flocked to the basilica early this morning.

Among them were Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen, of Germany; Archbishop Mac Nicholas, of Cincinnati, and Bishops Vehr, of Denver, and Walsh, of Maryknoll, N. Y.

GIRL RESCUES MAN IN RIVER, 2ND DROWNS

Lawyer, Ex-Penn Star, Dies in Whirlpool At Kittanning

KITTANNING, Pa., June 30.—Swimming from the swift waters of Lock No. 7 in the Allegheny River, Miss Ann Bonstein, swimming instructor at Gates pool here, spread an alarm that resulted in the rescue of her brother-in-law after a skiff overturned in the river last night.

William M. Heilman, 32, secretary of the Armstrong County Bar Association and former collegiate wrestling champion and coach at the University of Pennsylvania, was drowned.

Miss Bonstein, Heilman and Edward Cree, the young woman's brother-in-law, were in the skiff prepared to swim. The boat was swept into the whirlpool below the dam and overturned.

While Heilman was swept away and Cree was dashed against the dam, Miss Bonstein struck out for the river bank. She was swept about 300 yards down the river, but managed to reach land.

Cree, a son of T. K. Cree, vice president of the Alling and Cory Paper Company, of Pittsburgh, meanwhile succeeded in keeping afloat, but was unconscious and bruised when taken from the water.

Miss Bonstein, sister of Cree's wife, is head of the physical education department at Danville (Ill.) High School. She is spending her vacation with her parents.

FLIERS START MATTERN HUNT

NEW YORK, June 30.—(AP.)—The "Jimmie Mattern Rescue Expedition" soared away from Floyd Bennett Field at 8:06 a. m. today for Alaska.

The rescue plane is a large craft in which Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon, Jr., once flew around the world. With Alexander went Fred Fetterman, mechanic, who put Mattern's plane in shape for the flight; Harold Persons and Thomas Abbey, motorcycle cop, who obtained a furlough to help with the search.

"I have made a personal investigation upon the orders of the District Attorney and I want to say that the correct name of this man who represented himself as being a son of this prominent official is McIntyre.

"I am positive that this man's son was not in the fight and had absolutely no connection with this case. I myself have faced both sons and am positive neither of them had any connection with it whatsoever."

POLICEMEN AGREE

Police Capt. John Swoager, of Mt. Lebanon, said:

"I have seen both young men and am positive neither was involved."

After hearing the testimony of Officers Swoager and Seifert, Weitzel questioned several of the defendants. Turning to Killeen, he asked:

'LITTLE ARGUMENT'

"What have you got to say for yourself?"

Killeen replied:

"Well, squire, it was like this, were were taking Markey to the hospital. He had been hurt, and there was a little argument."

Weitzel interrupted:

"A little argument—if that was only a little one, I'd hate to be in a big one from the looks of you fellows the other night."

Markey, explaining his injury, said:

"I was standing up at the bar drinking beer when someone hit me on the head with a bottle. After that I don't know nothing."

WOMAN KICKED

Anna Jones, in response to Weitzel's questioning, declared:

Her husband had a cut on the side of his head.

MUTUAL BANKS NOT TAX FREE

The county can collect the 4-mill tax on deposits in the Dollar Savings Bank, according to a ruling in Orphans Court announced today.

President Judge Thomas P. Trimble rendered the opinion, concurred in by Judge E. C. Chalfant. Judge H. Walton Mitchell, who ruled April 27 the deposits were not subject to the tax, dissented.

The opinion said deposits in mutual savings institutions are not tax free, although counsel for the estate of Jerry McCarty, a depositor, argued that under an old charter a mutual savings bank's depositors were stockholders and the provisions of the law did not make them liable to the tax.

Assistant County Solicitor Thomas E. Whitten said the county will obtain more than $150,000 in revenue by the ruling. The tax will not be effective after this year.

CROWDS VIEW 'FATTY'S' BIER

NEW YORK, June 30.—(AP.)—In the same Broadway funeral church where mobs of clawing women once fought to see the dead Rudolph Valentino, the body of Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle lay today.

Two floral tokens rested by the casket in the funeral establishment's "gold room." A line of people filed quietly by the coffin.

At 1 p. m. tomorrow services will be held by the Elks lodge, and the body of the screen comedian will be cremated at Fresh Pond Cemetery.

His widow, the former Addie McPhail, screen actress, who became hysterical after his death, is expected to follow the body to the cemetery.

HUSBAND OWN LAWYER, FIGHTS DIVORCE SUIT

Refuses to Let Son Testify Against Mother

Without money to hire counsel, Joseph F. Amedick, father of three children, contested as his own attorney, his wife's plea for divorce in a Common Pleas Court hearing today.

Taking the privilage of representing himself on advice of court, Amedick, a former Castle Shannon constable, heard his wife, Mrs. Marie Amedick, accuse him of threatening to shoot her if she came to court today.

She further testified that Amedick drank considerably, beat her frequently, abused her, and on one occasion chased her out of the house through a window. She said he accused her of going with other men.

NIECE IS WITNESS

Cross-examining his niece, Madeline Stenger, Amedick wrung from her an admission that she had told him his wife was unfaithful. Later she discovered this wasn't true, she said. She, too, claimed Amedick had threatened to shoot her if she appeared against him.

Amedick denied his wife's allegations, denied threatening to shoot either of the women. He said:

"The whole thing was I thought too much of her."

MAINTAINS HOME

He said he had not used rough language to her until he heard she was untrue. Asked by the court if he would live with her again, he answered:

"The home is still there."

Asked if he could produce witnesses, Amedick said he had his son, but that he refused to let the boy testify against his mother.

Mrs. Amedick testified her husband kept their three children at his home, Library road, Castle Shannon, and did not allow her to see them. She lived with a brother at 450 North avenue, Millvale.

MRS. PINCHOT JOINING NEW PICKET LINE

READING, Pa., June 30.—(AP.)—Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, crusading wife of Pennsylvania's Governor again makes her appearance in a picket line, this time in a proposed visit to the Reading hosiery strikers.

Announcement that Mrs. Pinchot would join the pickets here today was made by John W. Edelman, research director for the American Federation of Full-Fashioned Hosiery Workers.

Vieing with Edelman's statement for attention came the announcement from Washington that Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, had deputized Dr. Benjamin M. Squires, labor expert and czar of the Chicago dyeing industry, to investigate the strike. Dr. Squires is to hold a public hearing tomorrow.

Mrs. Pinchot's visit was awaited with interest, strikers recalling the ovations given her by groups of pickets in Allentown where so-called "baby strikers" were protesting alleged sweatshop conditions and at Mahony City where, more recently, she joined a picket line of girl strikers.

GIRL WORKERS TESTIFY

LEBANON, Pa., June 30.—(AP.)—Accusations and denials of unfavorable working conditions in Pennsylvania factories continue to pour into the record of the legislative committee investigating reported "sweatshops."

The committee finished another of its scheduled hearings last night after listening to girl workers and their employers give both sides of the story. The next hearing is to be held at Doylestown July 6.

Girl workers from three counties told the committee yesterday they worked long hours for small pay, in some cases amid unsanitary conditions. One witness testified that eight weeks' wages from 1932 still are due the employes.

The few operators who appeared at the night session, reserved for their testimony, asserted the workers' stories were not true and some offered to permit their books to be inspected.

Paul Muni Signs 5-Year Contract

HOLLYWOOD, June 30.—(AP.)—Paul Muni, stage and screen actor, cast his lot definitely with the movies yesterday by signing a five-year contract with Warner Bros. Studios.

He will begin work on "The World Changes," next week as his first film under the agreement.

Father Invokes Slave Law in Fight for Girl

CHICAGO, June 30.—(INS.)—Rudolph Cudshoff today invoked the Dred Scott decision of 1850 in the legal fight to gain custody of his 9-year-old daughter Margaret.

Cudshoff is attempting to block admission to probate of his divorced wife's will in which custody of their daughter was left to the child's maternal grandmother. Mrs. Margaret Cudshoff died May 17.

Basing his fight on the historic anti-slavery decision, Cudshoff declared:

"This decision is fundamental in asserting the freedom of the individual. It holds that humans are not chattels subject to disposition by will or sale."

Los Angeles Gangs Kill, Wound 2 Men

LOS ANGELES, June 30.—(INS.)—Gangland's guns took their toll here again during the night. An unidentified man was killed and his body thrown from an automobile by four gunmen who entered his establishment.

MOVIE TO HELP ROSELIA HOME

A special benefit show for Roselia Foundling Asylum will be held at Sheridan Square Theater, East Liberty, on Sunday, July 2.

Founded by Charles Donnelly in 1892, the institution never had a benefit performance in any theater in Pittsburgh, and this, the first, will probably be liberally patronized because of the excellent work the institute does in the care of deserted children, of which there are over 100 in the institute at this time.

The show scheduled for Sunday will feature Joe E. Brown in "A Local Boy Makes Good," plus a special selected program of short subjects. Admission for the performances, which start at 2 p. m., and run continuously until 10 at night, will be some article of food. This can be a bag of potatoes or other vegetable, canned goods, in fact any article of food. The food will be turned over to Roselia Foundling, where it will be used to feed the children at that home.

Grade Separation At Tubes Proposed

A grade separation plan for the south end of the Liberty Tubes, to be included in the National Recovery Act public works program for the city and county, was recommended yesterday by the Better Traffic Committee.

Meeting with other sub-committees in the Council chambers, the group also suggested changes in parking regulations, new one-way streets and the construction of street car loading zones.

'Moonshiner' Slain In Fight with Drys

JOPLIN, Mo., June 30.—(AP.)—Federal agents yesterday shot and killed Homer Weese, about 45, at a farm house near here in which they were seeking a whisky still. Harold Lane, leader of the agents, said Weese was slain after he opened fire on them.

Weese once published a weekly newspaper here. He served a short term in the state penitentiary about two years ago after being convicted of conspiracy to violate the counterfeiting laws.

Plane Drops Serum By Parachute for Ill Woman

DANSVILLE, N. Y., June 30—(AP.)—Miss Grace Willey, 41, of Mount Morris, in a hospital suffering from gangrene, was reported to be improving last night as the result of an injection of serum brought by airplane from Newark, N. J.

The package of serum, attached to a small parachute dropped from the plane two hours after it left Newark.

Pitt News Service Being Transferred

The University of Pittsburgh news service, heretofore conducted by William Morrell, will be transferred to the Department of Journalism, headed by William S. Maulsby, tomorrow, it was announced today.

Morrell will continue as university editor, and will have charge of all formal catalogues, bulletins, and university publications, as well as the editing and publishing of abstracts of theses written by students working for advanced degrees.

Election Officials Appointed by Court

S. Wayne Lauder has been appointed judge of elections for the First District, First Ward, Crafton, to succeed the late George Hardy.

Francis H. Stetzer was named majority inspector of the Third District of the Ninth Ward to replace Estelle M. Graham. The appointments were made by Judge Samuel H. Gardner.

CLAIRE BLAMED IN LOVE THEFT

LOS ANGELES, June 30.—(AP.)—Brought to the Los Angeles Superior Court from San Francisco on a change of venue, a suit for $100,000, alleging alienation of affections, was filed against Claire Windsor, motion picture actress, by Marion V. Read, who asserts Miss Windsor stole the love of her husband, Alfred C. Read, Jr., formerly of Oakland.

With Mrs. Read's petition was an answer filed by the film actress denying all the allegations.

Mrs. Read's suit relates she and her husband were married in San Francisco in 1927 and have two children. Mrs. Read asserts the family was happy until September, 1931, when Read met Miss Windsor, but thereafter, because of their association, Read was "completely enticed away from his home and family."

Shadyside Woman Wills $19,500 Estate

COX AIDES PLAN PARK BENEFIT

When Father Cox left for Rome his friends assured him they would put their shoulders to the wheel and keep his activities going for the aid of the destitute. Following out this idea a big food benefit will take place at West View Park next Monday, all day. Tickets for the rides and attractions will be available in exchange for canned goods and standard package groceries to be distributed to needy families.

The exchange will be made on the basis of one strip of eight tickets for every 30c worth of food donated. Aside from the rides and other regular attractions, there will be an exceptionally big holiday week free outdoor show including the "Fearless Falcons," a daring aerial act.

The Father Cox-Sun-Telegraph drive for subscriptions is still on. Every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page or is telephoned in with the request that the Father Cox relief fund be given credit for it, brings a liberal cash commission to the fund. The commission on each subscription pays for the food for approximately 40 homeless men and boys for one day in the breadline. Father Cox is still feeding more than 2,00 persons daily.

BOLD JUAN BLAS MAIN HOPE OF CUBAN REBELS

Karl Decker, veteran newspaperman, who has campaigned with the rebels in other Cuban revolts and who has just returned from a secret tour of insurrecto territory, tells of Juan Blas, the outstanding leader in the fight against Machado.

By KARL DECKER
Newspaperman and Soldier of Fortune.

An airplane trip from Moron to Camaguey made clear to me the difficulties faced by the insurgents in Cuba today for what is true of that stretch of territory is true of Central Cuba.

The great forests and the masses of "manigua," the heavy bush and undergrowth that covered this section when Gomez, Maceo and Lacret operated against the Spaniards, have disappeared. Central Cuba is bare of cover. Everywhere there are canefields and the cane at this time is only a few inches high. The only cover is in the hills to the south and an attack upon the railroads or the central highway means a long night ride to reach the objective and a running battle back to the hills with the Machadistas in overwhelming force.

SUCCESSFUL ATTACKS

Nevertheless several successful attempts have been made to blow up bridges and tear up and carry away the curved rails, causing long breaks in train service.

The only leader engaged in this work is Juan Blas Hernandez, known to all Cubans as Juan Blas. He went out in the August revolution of 1931 and has been out ever since and declares he will not let up until Machado is out of Cuba.

When I hunted him there was a reward of $500 on his head and Maj. Arsenio Ortiz, Machado's mulatto killer, had been driving the 1,500 men under his command in relentless pursuit of Juan Blas.

There is no actual leadership and no organization of the insurgents. Each band acts on its own initiative. No commissions are issued and there is no general command and only the slightest semblance of communication with the various juntas that have been set up. Yet Juan Blas can count upon the co-operation of every group in Camaguey and Santa Clara and it was he who organized the series of attacks on garrisons and towns on May 18 and 19.

FIGHTS TO LIBERTY

Juan Blas has lost only one man in the fighting of the last six months. He planned an ambush for Maj. Ortiz, but through some oversight permitted a guajiro, with saddle bags filled with country cheeses, to ride on and the guajiro was caught by Ortiz. When the wires were tightened about the sensitive flesh of the guajiro with pliers he cracked wide open and told all he knew, and Ortiz started an encircling movement that gave Juan Blas the hottest fight of his career. He shot his way through with three men wounded and one killed.

Should the insurgents ever get a supply of arms and ammunition, enough to equip the thousands who now fret helplessly in the towns and countryside, Juan Blas will be the man who will lead Cuba out of the swamp of Machadism.

Snake in Nest, Bird Calls Aid Of Woman

STEUBENVILLE, O., June 30.—(AP.)—A black snake crawled up a screen door and entered the nest of a wren in a hanging basket on the back porch of the Frank Huston farm home.

The mother wren, fluttering and screeching, alighted on Mrs. Huston's shoulder. Mrs. Huston called two sons, who killed the snake. The mother bird returned to her nest to care for the one baby of her flock of five that survived the snake's attack.

SCREAMS SAVE ABDUCTED GIRL

Screams of a 10-year-old Turtle Creek girl as she was dragged through the underbrush after being snatched from a children's picnic in Wilkins Township last night, attracted attention of nearby residents and resulted in the capture of her alleged abductor, according to Turtle Creek police.

Police said the girl, Alice Wenthroble, of 412 Brown avenue, Turtle Creek, told them she had left a wiener roast in Browns Hollow to watch a mushball game at the nearby Wilkins Township fire station, when she was grabbed by Albert Smith, 24, who told police he was an orderly at the Veterans' Hospital, Aspinwall, and carried into the underbrush.

Attracted by her screams, neighbors called police. Smith was captured by Capt. Joseph Sauter and Patrolman Russell Brown, of Turtle Creek, and Patrolman Fred Harmuth, of Wilkins Township.

She was taken to the office of a physician where, save for suffering from bruises and shock, she was reported unharmed.

Smith will be given a hearing today before Justice of the Peace Ralph T. Seness, of Turtle Creek.

CUBANS BOMB U. S. STORES

HAVANA, June 30.—(AP.)—Two bombings of American properties occurred early today apparently in protest, authorities indicated, against efforts of American Ambassador Welles to settle Cuba's political differences.

Two bombs exploded almost simultaneously inside and outside the National Cash Register Company agency. Windows were broken, but no one was hurt.

An American grocery was damaged by an explosion about an hour later.

Authorities believed a small faction expressing dissatisfaction with the plans for mediation, was involved.

Four Gunmen Rob Chicago Hospital

CHICAGO, June 30.—(AP.)—Four gunmen went to the Billings Memorial Hospital, but not for medical attention.

They went there to take the $175 they found in the hospital's office.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico: This spot still remains a whistle stop, even with its grade A hotel and gee-gee track . . . The last time the dust of its soil settled on my boots was back in 1916 and the very fact that I was in a strange country was thrill enough . . . Now it appears to be almost any other small burg in Iowa or Florida —a little more glamorous because of the all-star casts you encounter in the dice houses and the other fascinating rendezvous of chance . . . The best of the casinos entice the femmes by permitting roulette chips as low as two-bits—so stiff is the opposition . . . There is no big money play . . . Because some of the actors from Hollywood nipped the impresarios for too much coin—so now the limit is $100 . . . A century note on the line (at the dice tables) and ditto if you want to toy with the field . . . In sum, you can't wager $101 on any one thing—the lads who govern the places deciding if anyone is going to be the chump—it has to be the player . . . None of the games fascinate me so much as the slanguage of the stickmen at the aggravating cube tables. Frixample: when a star, a little loud, hurled the dice with force and barked, "Come on, eight!" the stick-man's squelch was: "A little less noise, please—we can't hear the point!" . . . And when a shooter's roll is prolonged trying to make his point or lose it, someone is sure to mumble: "He's got the wrong address."

The New Yorkiest of the ports in Hollywood, it seems to me, is Bob Perry's on Hollywood blvd.—where gather the more colorful characters of Broadway . . . Jim Tully, who settled at his mansion on his own private lake, christened Taluca—snubs it for the tenderloin scene at Perry's surrounded by gentlemen of talent . . . Gentlemen of talent, one means to say, who do not make their livings on the stage or screen—but with skill at this and that . . . "Fuzzy" Knight, too, who first enchanted me and my crowd with his nimble fingering of a toy piano as he accompanied himself with husky-throated but gay ditties . . . Fuzzy it was who started this fad—only to stand by in a daze witnessing copyists click with his own routines . . . . . . Fight promoters, fighters, wrestlers, screen stars, discarded wives of famous men and other Broadwayish folk people the place—and for the first time last night—I felt at home in this city of make-believe . . . And, for the first time, they say, Hollywood has a place with singing waiters, juggling trays of lager and quartetting with instruments in a big-time way . . . It is also the only place where the highest paid stars and others will get up alongside the tinny piano and offer their specialties and "let their hair down" . . . Your New York and mine hasn't anything so gay . . . I'm staying up till dawn, again.

Another reason why the Colony, the class place of the movie belt, is tops is that the dapper, but hard-hitting deputies will not tolerate any tiffs among the guests . . . You cannot, for instance, make a pass at another there and suffer torture by doing so . . . The torture comes with permanent exile from the Colony gate . . . There have been two disturbances, between actors (girl trouble, of course) when tempers strayed . . . All concerned, even the victim, were gently taken to their cars and warned never to return . . . And even if you know Franklin Delano Roosevelt or the toughest guy in town—it doesn't matter . . . There is no forgiveness—only the pangs that come with being Elba'd . . . It is very, very sad, really . . . For there is no other "smart" place . . . The owners are well-mannered men — and all they expect from their guests is that they play the parts of ladies and gentlemen —skillfully or not—from memory.

That conversation last night regarding the "best lines from the better movies" served to revive pleasant moments in the theaters . . . George Raft decided that the ace of the passages in Rowland Brown's "Doorway to Hell" shadow show was that one when the gangster (carrying a violin case which contained a machine-gun) was asked by a friend: "Where are you going?" . . . "I'm on my way," was the grim reply, "to teach a guy a lesson." . . . Estelle Taylor liked that bit in Mizner's "One Way Passage" better . . . When Aline MacMahon said to a cop: "It doesn't matter if you're a 100 per cent square guy or a 100 per cent thief—you're still head of your class!" . . . The babble switched to why Lyle Talbot couldn't hold his last girl, who it appears—explained that she had to give him up—because he was always reading her his press notices . . . The prettiest lamps in Hollywood belong to Julie Carter, who could have made the Broadway choruses often—if she could hoof . . . And the prettiest legs are Heather Angel's, an importation from Britain to the Fox studies. . . . But the Fox focusers must not snap any leg-art of her—on the ground that Miss Angel is "too ethereal."

Among other items that escaped the newspaper sleuths years ago was one told by Estelle Taylor and Lupe Velez early this morning . . . When Estelle and her groom, Jack Dempsey, the champion, had their first fierce quarrel, Estelle hastened out of the place to Lupe's home for shelter . . . So incensed was the Mexican firecracker that she called on the world's heavyweight champion that same dawning to ask him just what was the big idea —after, that is, she stuck a .45 revolver in his middle! . . . Talk about situations—on the way home in Rowland Brown's car, with her head on his shoulder, Dempsey's ex-bride cooed: "Walter, tell me something. What sort of a man is Jack Dempsey?" . . . "He's a nice guy," I said, "I like him, always did, in and out of the ring" . . . I also remarked that no fighter ever thrilled me so much as Dempsey when he was committing legal murder . . . Then, to my amazement, Miss Taylor shuddered that she couldn't understand how anyone enjoyed seeing blood or men trying to kill each other. . . . "It isn't that," I replied, "it was Jack's graceful manner and so forth." Estelle still couldn't savvy . . . She never saw him fight.

Times are certainly changing . . . Now with beer back the church bells near the Ambassador grounds play: "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes" . . . The surest way to bring on a headache is to parade the streets of Hollywood without your sun specs—the glare blinds you—via my orbs Hollywood, of course, is a nice place to be in . . . There are armies, though, of men and women here who are in despair—men and women who were in despair when I knew them on 46th street . . . They must become so weary of being weary of life and the struggle . . . The biggest thrill in Hollywood is motoring at a fast clip up to the home of Walter Wanger and Justine Johnston, which has a corkscrew approach . . . More fun than a scenic railway .

Notes About New Films

"The Barbarian," with Ramon Novarro and Myrna Loy in the leading roles, opens today in the Penn. The story concerns an English girl who goes to Egypt to meet her fiance, but falls in love with a native guide.

Barbara Stanwyck and George Brent are featured in "Baby Face," opening today in the Stanley. It is a tale of a girl who gets work in a New York bank and vamps everybody.

"The Mayor of Hell" is the photoplay opening today in the Warner, with James Cagney and Madge Evans in principal roles. Cagney plays the part of politician who reforms a reform school.

Dorothy Jordan and Eddie Quillan supply the love romance in "Strictly Personal," one feature opening today in the Davis and Sheridan Square. The second feature is "The Big Brain," with George E. Stone and Fay Wray.

Farrell Is Assigned To Lead Role

Charles Farrell has been signed to play the leading romantic role in the forthcoming screen adaptation of Joseph O. Kesselring's play, "Aggie Appleby, Maker of Men." Aggie will be played by Helen Mack, character ingenue who has recently completed roles in "Melody Cruise" and "Fog Bound." Helen Broderick, Broadwas musical comedy star, also is prominently cast.

Benchley Is to Act As Well as Write

Robert Benchley, journalist, critic, author, screen writer and actor, will play the part of the humorous radio broadcaster in "Headline Shooters." Signed recently to a writing-acting contract by RKO Radio, the humorist already has prepared the dialogue for "Fog Bound," and is now at work in a similar capacity on another production.

Mary to Film Picture as Producer

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, June 30.—A few days ago Mary Pickford startled Hollywood by announcing that she plans to write a play for Grace Moore. Now the hot tip comes to me that she intends to step temporarily out of the role of star and become producer of a picture called "War Horse."

Mr. Cooper

The story, and you'll agree it is an unusual one, centers in the comradeship of a cavalryman and his favorite campaign horse.

Mary, as I get it, is trying her best to borrow Gary Cooper from Paramount for the part of the soldier.

She also is enlisting Frances Marion, one of Hollywood's ranking writers, to work on the screenplay and she is considering George Hill for director.

In all likelihood, business matters in connection with the deal will take Mary east again in about two weeks. She plans to call the picture a Mary Pickford Production, and to release it through United Artists.

Zeppo Marx good-naturedly accepts the subordinate role in the comedies of the famous brothers.

The other day the whole tribe was discussing a way to finish a certain scene. Back and forth they argued, with the writers and the director also putting in their suggestions.

Finally, Zeppo flipped:

"I've got it. Why not fade out on my entrance?"

ALL IN A DAY

By Mark Hellinger

The Legacy

FROM THE Rev. Kenneth R. Waldron, of North Girard, Pa., comes the story that I relate to you today. The good clergyman writes that the story is an actual happening and I present it to you as such. Thus:

Just over the Virginia line a small town rested protectingly in a cup formed by the surrounding hills. It wasn't much of a place and I doubt very much that you'll find it on any map you choose to bring out.

But this little place epitomized peace, which is something you don't find on the map either. The dwellings were all white, and the only sign of life you would find on an early spring morning was the whitish smoke that curled out of a dozen chimneys or so and crept up through the green trees in the sunlight.

You might hear a dog bark. But most likely you wouldn't, because strangers in that town were few and far between. Later in the day the kiddies—and there was always a fair-sized crop of them—could be seen playing in the quiet, dusty streets.

And among those children—some 20 years ago—you might have noticed the Warren kiddies. There were five in all—but Jennie and Frank and Charles were too old, even then, to play in the streets.

But Joe and Tommy—well, what would you expect from a lad of 6 and another of 4? Their little, round faces were always caked with mud. And Joe, the elder, could always be counted upon to think up some devilment that would later be blamed upon little Tommy.

Tommy was always like that, even in later life. He seemed forever to be taking the blame for someone else's wrongdoing. He was an easy-going kid who thought that life was composed only of eating, sleeping, playing—and his father.

His father, incidentally, was much more important to him than the other three. To him mother was just a picture in the parlor. He never knew it; but this was the first thing that Tommy had been blamed for; his mother's death. The infant had just given his first gasp of life when his mother gave her last.

Sometimes Tommy and his dad traveled the seven miles into the big city in which she was buried. And, with his face scrubbed bright, he would stand at the graveside in open-mouthed wonder as his father knelt bare-headed and moved his lips silently.

Once Tommy knelt, too. He didn't know why; he just got on his knees and bowed his head. And because he didn't know what to say, he simply moved his lips just like his father. It was then that dad had come over and lifted him to his feet.

"Well, mister," his father had asked seriously, "why did you do that?"

The child looked at the ground, and shrugged his shoulders. And that night, his father first taught him how to pray . . .

He was nearly six when the cuff links accident occurred. Vaguely he knew that his father was a lawyer—and even more vaguely he understood that his dad had achieved a certain renown in the big city to the north. It took dad quite some time to get to his office, but he did it every day.

He didn't know very much—but the night that dad came home with the cuff links stood sharp and clear in his memory. He never forgot it.

At the supper table, Mr. Warren smiled proudly and produced a red plush case from his pocket.

"A present," he said. "From a wealthy client of mine."

In the plush case were the cuff links. When it came Tommy's turn to look at them, his eyes opened wide. Two large diamonds glittered up from the case. They smouldered with a dull red and blue fire. Bordering each link was a thin band of onyx. And outside of that was gold.

Tommy liked those cuff links. They fascinated him, even though someone—some stranger—had given them to his father. But he said nothing, even when Joe grabbed them roughly from him to have another look.

No, he said nothing then—but on the following day, the child was missing. And it wasn't until the police of the neighboring city told Mr. Warren to call in person, that anyone knew where the boy was.

On the way home, Tommy told his dad why he had run away. He had emptied his bank that morning, and had found 12 pennies in it. Determinedly, he had walked the seven miles to town and entered the five-and-ten-cent store. And there, at the jewelry counter, he had bought his father a pair of cuff links, with diamonds in the center . . .

Call it superstition, or call it what you will. But from that day on, the expensive cuff links never left the red plush box. Lawyer Warren could always be seen in court, or out of it, wearing the cheap, ugly cuff links that his youngest boy had bought for him.

Within a week the gold had turned a sickly green and the "diamonds" had turned to a glassy dullness. But that made little diffirence to Tommy's father. He thought more of those links than of anything else he had.

For 19 years, these cheap links were justly celebrated. Lawyer Warren was never without them. Tommy said nothing, but the other children—and Joe especially—complained about their father wearing the valueless trinkets.

Once, Joe even went so far as to attempt to steal them. His father was angry; very angry. He told Joe that if he ever tried such a trick again, he'd put him out of the house. Lawyer Warren was funny that way . . .

Two years ago, Lawyer Warren passed from the picture. The cause I cannot give you. But when the five children—now all men and women—stood around the casket, Joe broke the silence by pointing to something.

"Look," he said to Jennie, "look at the cuff links. See them? Tommy has his nerve letting father be buried with those cheap things on him. He should know better."

He took Tommy aside. He told the youngster of the family that he should be ashamed of himself. And he brought out the diamond links in the red plush case; the beautiful links that had been given to their father so many years before.

"I'm going to put these on him," said Joe to Tommy. "They're at least decent."

Tommy pleaded and begged, but to no avail. He said he knew what his father really wanted, but they pushed him aside. Joe changed the links. The old ones were tossed into a bureau drawer and the beautiful ones were carefully snapped on to the shirt cuffs of the dead man. It was as simple at that.

It was a week later that the five children sat in the parlor and listened to the reading of the will. A goodly share of the estate went to Tommy. And then—

"And to my son, Joe, because of his interest," the will read, "I bequeath with affection just one item; the beautiful links in the red plush case." . . .

SON 'KIDNAPED' BY FATHER

NEW YORK, June 30.—(AP.)—Thomas F. Cullen, in charge of the United States Bureau of Investigation in the New York district, said yesterday the Irving Austin arrested in Los Angeles is wanted here on a technical charge of kidnaping arising from his alleged abduction of his own son.

He said Mrs. Irene Austin, a Brooklyn school teacher, filed the complaint, alleging that her estranged husband "inveigled, abducted and kidnaped" the eight-year-old boy from her home here and transported him to Blooming Grove, Pa., and Los Angeles, "for ransom and reward."

The Austins were separated last year and the wife was given custody of the child.

GOSSIPY CHAT

By NANCY JANE

As she went by one of these sophisticated child dummies with long fabric braids, little curly-headed Sara Jennings gave one of the braids a tweak, seemed to have her curiosity satisfied, and strolled out on the terrace. All this at the West Penn benefit at Fox Chapel Wednesday.

There'll be every kind of a dog you've ever seen or heard about in the Sewickley Dog Show tomorrow in the Allegheny Country Club show ring for the benefit of the social service department of Allegheny General Hospital.

But there'll be no pet show. When the comimttee commenced to imagine the pets that might be entered—such as slippery little pigs—it decided against it. For there would be too much expense in housing and caring for a peculiar assortment of pets.

Fox Chapel Golf Club had on its best bib and tucker for the West Penn benefit Wednesday. The lawn in front of the clubhouse was cut to an amazing smoothness. And most decorative walks of large flat stones, with tufts of grass between, have been arranged.

Do you notice in the picture above that Katharine Collin, or Kittie as her friends call her, has succumbed to the revival of middy styles? Note the large star distinguishing her frock.

Katharine and her sister, Georgianna, are always to the fore in smartness among the younger set.

SCHOOL-GIRL SAILOR STYLES INVADE THE FASHION PICTURE

REMEMBER THE middy suits we wore when we were children—that our own well-dressed daughters wear today? We used to be sent off to school in them, to dancing classes and gymnasium, when we longed for frilly clothes instead.

WHAT COULD be a more amusing fashion development than to find the very same middy collars and other familiar school day fashions on some of our best summer things? We have organdies with square collars, linens and piques, with stars and stripes, and sheer, dark frocks with crisp white middy touches. Designers have even been beguiled into giving us evening gowns with childish collars!

ALL THE social affairs at the shore show a great many schoolgirl fashions (at the opening of a yacht club, for example, where the two sketches were made). Both suits stress the vogue for dresses with contrasting jackets. The model at the left takes an electric blue coat, belt, tie, buttons and buttonholes to set off the soft turquoise blue dress. An anchor applique supplies an added nautical touch. By day, run around town in this, from luncheons to matinees and then back to the shore.

NEXT TO it, the white dress with a navy coat is just the sort of thing to have hanging in your closet when hot July hits us all and we cannot bear all-dark things. The pleats starting half-way down the waist are stitched to the knees in front and are then allowed to flare out sharply. There's a double collar, one clear cut white band accenting the shoulders. And patriotic stars on the collar and pockets! The navy jacket takes the country-curse away from the white dress, making it appropriate for town wear as well as for the shore. No matter what the setting, you'll enjoy suits like these tremendously.

NAVY LAUNCHES MODERNIZATION PROGRAM

By FULTON LEWIS
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—A new $75,000,000 program of battleship modernization under the public works construction program is to be undertaken by the Navy immediately, Universal Service learned, as Secretary of the Navy Swanson promulgated a militant and greatly strengthened naval policy for the Roosevelt administration.

The new policy definitely commits the administration to "build and maintain a fleet of all classes of fighting ships of the maximum war efficiency as permitted by treaty provisions."

It further promises "to develop the Navy to a maximum in battle strength and ability to control the sea in defense of the nation and its interests."

POLICY OUTLINED

The fundamental policy of the United States under the Roosevelt administration was stated as follows:

"To maintain the Navy in sufficient strength to support the national policies and commerce, and to guard the continental and overseas possessions of the United States."

The new building program, in addition to the recently announced $238,000,000 program for 32 new ships, is designed to bring all battleships to 100 per cent modern efficiency and to make the battleship force second to none in the world.

The program will involve extensive replacements of machinery, boilers and turbines of several of the older battleships and modernizing gun elevation machinery and turrets on the New York and Texas to permit longer range firing.

PLEDGES PROTECTION

The revised naval policy of Swanson reverses the former stand toward lighter-than air craft which held that dirigibles were mere experimental adjuncts to the fleet. It commits the Navy:

"To maintain as necessary the rigid airships now built and building to determine their usefulness for naval and other governmental purposes and their commercial value."

In airplanes the policy commits the Navy "to build and maintain airplanes to the full complements authorized for aricraft carriers and tenders, battleships, cruisers and marine expeditionary forces."

Of particular importance is the new statement advocating the development of "two main home bases on each coast." The former naval policy committed itself only to the development of one main home base on the Pacific Coast near San Francisco.

The Swanson policy specifically promises "protection of American lives and property" as one of the major duties of the naval force.

Social Register Shows Trend Of Times

The 1933 Summer Social Register now being distributed again indicates the trend of the times with its variation of information.

Last year showed an astonishing decrease in the number of families who left their city homes for the summer but this year the situation is even more marked. This applies to all resorts generally. In 1930 a total of 1,350 families were listed as abroad. The number has been steadily decreasing and the figure this year is 824.

The seashore resorts have not fared so badly as they show 5,565 as compared with 5,652 in 1932. However, the figure in 1931 was 6,183. Of this group, the North Shore of Long Island and the South Shore, including the Hamptons, list 1,629 as against 1,650 last year. The New England Coast, including Bar Harbor, Newport and Narragansett shows 2,437 whereas they had 2,587 during the summer of 1932.

The Jersey Coast is one of the two sections that boasts an increase since 497 families are summering there as compared with 424 last year. Long Island Sound approaches the 1931 level of 1,033 with 1,002 this year instead of 991 last.

The inland sections, which include the Adirondacks and other mountain resorts, rural New England, the lake district, the Western Coast and Canada, show 6,514 addresses as against 6,891 the past summer. Not a few families are spending the summer on western ranches, especially when their children have attended ranch school during the winter.

There is a slight increase in marriages, the number of persons married being 863 as against 845 listed last year. This is still far below the 992 of the 1931 edition. Deaths among women have increased from 225 last year to 268 this year. The figures for men show a decrease from 322 last year to 308 this.

The names of yachts are, as usual, inserted opposite their owners with an illustration indicative of their class, and at the back of the Social Register 1,251 yachts scattered throughout the book are listed in alphabetical order with the names of their owners. This is a much smaller decrease than would be expected, the figures for 1932 and 1931 being 1,303 and 1,362, respectively.

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Mrs. John A. Caughey, twentieth president of the McKeesport Woman's Club, will take office on October 6 when the club begins its new season and its study of "Main Currents in American Thought." Two programs on "The American Indian" will be the first steps along the new way and on one of these the Rev. Dr. Jacob Simpson Payton will speak of "The Trail of Tears."

"The Puritan will furnish material for another program and "The Colonial and Revolutionary Period" a fourth. The club's birthday party is its only December event and next comes a guest day in January with George Seibel, literary and dramatic editor of the Sun-Telegraph, as speaker.

"The Pioneer," "The National Period" (which includes much about the old South and its changing mind, Philadelphia, New England and its illustrious men and women,) a drama day, a memorial day, the anual meeting and an annual outing are the closing events of what promises to be an unusually worthwhile season.

Mrs. Caughey's official family includes Mrs. W. H. Coleman and Mrs. Fred R. Steadman, as vice presidents; Mrs. N. E. Ferguson, recording secretary; Mrs. George L. Edmundson, corresponding secretary; and Miss Addie M. Gibson, treasurer.

THRONG 'MOBS' TITLED BRIDE

LONDON, June 30.—(AP.)—The combined efforts of police and the ushers were required yesterday to open a way when Lady Patricia Moore, only daughter of the Earl and Countess of Drogheda, arrived at St. Margaret's Church, Westminster, for her wedding to Sir Paul Latham, Conservative member of Parliament.

One thousand guests filled the church and others were lined four-deep outside when Lady Patricia arrived 15 minutes before the ceremony. Police and ushers opened an aisle to the door, which was closed after she entered.

Prominent society women unsuccessfully sought admittance. Lady Patricia, 21, last year went to Morocco on a cargo vessel with a girl companion, paying $30 for her passage. She recently took employment with a book firm in Charing Cross.

SCREEN STARS GOING ABROAD

LOS ANGELES, June 30.—(AP.)—Fay Wray and Loretta Young, screen actresses, yesterday applied for passports for pleasure and business trips to European countries.

Miss Wray gave her age as 25 years and her birthplace, Canada. She said she would go to London to work in a picture and would sail about August 1. Miss Young said she is 20 years old and was born in Colorado. She and her mother, Mrs. George Belzer, plan a pleasure tour of England, France and Italy.

Earlier yesterday a contract between Miss Young and the Twentieth Century Pictures, Inc., under which she will receive $1,731 a week for the first year, was approved in Superior Court.

WALLACE MADE FOODSTUFFS DICTATOR

WASHINGTON, June 30.—Co-operation between the federal administrators of industry and agriculture was directed today by President Roosevelt, in an order issued while cotton manufacturers fumed in a hot hotel room over a compromise on the first code of fair competition submitted under the recovery act.

In a document rushed to him on his sailing trip for signature and back to the capital, the Chief Executive delegated to Secretary Wallace, of the Agriculture Department, various powers vested in him in the industrial control law with respect to the handling of "milk and its products, tobacco and its products, and all foods and foodstuffs."

CONFUSION ENDED

The move was designed to clear up the doubt of these industries as to which administration to approach in regard to a code.

Meanwhile, reports floated from the conference of textile men that some leaders were supporting a move to offer a higher minimum wage than that presented for labor in the code upon which hearings virtually were completed yesterday. Others of the manufacturers were standing pat on the code providing for a $10 and $11 minimum wage in the southern and northern mills, respectively, and a 40-hour work week. To all of these provisions labor has objected in no uncertain terms.

The "national recovery administration" was seeking a compromise satisfactory to all parties.

COAL CODE PROBLEM

The "pineapple" of all industrial codes, that of the coal industry, today faced Brig. Gen. Hugh S. Johnson.

Close behind it, so that it may nose out the coal industry for second place in the list of codes to be put through the "recovery mill" run by Johnson, is the steel industry. Aides of Gen. Johnson were uncertain if the steel industry's code might not come in ahead of the coal operators.

The coal code, in Johnson's picturesque terms, is regarded as a "pineapple," by which he mans a tough one. He was reassured with news that a major element of the country's operators were in agreement and would present their code July 5.

He is encouraged by the code which the coal operators are understood to have drawn. This recognizes the need of a shorter work-week, and a definite minimum wage, by providing for a nationally recognized work-week of not over 36 hours in the bituminous fields and a minimum of 40-50 cents per hour for an eight-hour day.

Coal operators are not ready to accept a flat rate per week, it is understood. They also must win over the so-called Southern fields on some points, though these are not a majority factor.

MINIMUM WAGE

The coal code provides, besides a shorter working week, for elimination of employment of workers under 16 years, and payment of the minimum adult wage for workers of 16 and over. Some so-called Southern mines, it was said, pay as low as 17 cents per hour.

The code allows a differential of 10 per cent on living costs recognizing that this factor in wages may be lower in some parts of the country.

A minimum coal price, based on the actual cost of production, which in turn will be determined by nationally recognized accounting practices, under government supervision, also is asked.

Three work shifts of 8 hours each are provided, where production requires it. On collective bargaining, a sore spot in coal areas, the operators say they recognize that it is in the law, but are not very specific as to their position.

Ben Gray, executive of the Central Coals Associates, states that his group, and those of the North and West control 225,000,000 tons of the total production for 1932, aggregating 306,000,000 tons.

Manufacturers Deny Law Tool for Unions

CHICAGO, June 30.—(AP.)—The Employers' Association of Chicago advised its members today that the industrial recovery act did not require them to unionize their employes. The association quoted Gen. Hugh Johnson, administrator of the industrial act, as saying:

"This administration is not going to be used as a means of unionizing any industry."

State's Unemployed Reduced by 64,516

HARRISBURG, June 30.—(INS.)—Pennsylvania's army of the unemployed lost 64,516 members since March, a report from the Department of Labor and Industry showed today.

Unemployed persons during May totaled 1,314,835, or 35.3 per cent of the state's working population, a decrease of 31,714 from April's jobless.

Recovery Act's Failure Seen By Al Smith

NEW YORK, June 29.—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, writing in the New Outlook today, asserted he might be "old-fashioned," but he could not understand how the National Recovery Act "can possibly work." The Democratic presidential nominee in 1928 wrote:

"I have never hesitated to recommend the extension of government activities to meet the needs of a growing population in an age of industrial invention, but this plan goes beyond anything my imagination can follow."

At the bottom of the causes of the depression, said Smith, is human nature. He added that it was only by raising the general level of human character throughout the world that new society free from the causes of depression could be brought about. He continued:

"Viewed from this angle, the job is one for the philosopher, the priest and the doctor rather than the statesman, lawyer or business executive.

"I do not mean to say that we must spinelessly accept present conditions. I do mean to imply that there is such a thing as putting too much faith in political and scientific schemes of salvation. This is the field day for the academic planner, for the man who has been reading in the library, writing books and lecturing to students, and who now has a great big laboratory for experiment."

Pinchot Declares Monday Holiday

HARRISBURG, June 30.—(INS.)—All Capitol Hill employes under the jurisdiction of Gov. Gifford Pinchot today were authorized to remain idle on Monday and Tuesday, "provided arrangements can be made so that the work of the government shall not suffer."

GROCERS DECIDE WAGES, HOURS

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 30.—(AP.)—A master code of fair practices and competition for the retail grocery industry in accordance with the industrial recovery act was adopted by the National Retail Grocers' Association last night at the closing session of the thirty-sixth annual convention.

A minimum wage scale for male adults over 18 was set at $18 a week in the North and $15 in the South; for inexperienced junior clerks under 18, $12 in the North and $11 in the South; for female help over 18, within the metropolitan area of a population of over 1,000,000, $11; over 250,000, $10, and other sections $9; for managers, $30.

The code stipulated a six-day week with a maximum of nine hours a day and 48 hours a week for female help and 10 hours a day or 54 hours a week for male help.

It was declared that the sale of goods at a price less than replacement costs, plus 10 per cent, be considered unfair practice.

The code terms as unfair, offering of rebates, prizes, premiums, coupons, gifts or free goods, directly or indirectly, in connection with the sale of any goods.

BUILDER DENIES LABOR CHARGE

JEANNETTE, Pa., June 30.—(INS.)—Denial that he promiscuously hired out-of-town labor for construction work on the new Jeannette postoffice was made today by J. R. Redding, the contractor, after Miss Emmelinne Pitt, special agent of the Department of Labor, finished an investigation of workers on the building.

Redding said 90 per cent of the labor employed was local and that the only reason the other 10 per cent was out-of-town help was because Jeannette could not offer qualified men for certain types of work. The contractor also denied telling Miss Pitt he would remedy the situation, stating "there is nothing to remedy."

POLITICS

Martin Seeks Favor Of Vare at Rally

—By MARK SHIELDS—

HARRISBURG, June 30.—William S. Vare, accepting election yesterday as Republican national committeeman from Pennsylvania, virtually repudiated the Pennsylvania State Senate and that portion of the last Republican national platform which applied to prohibition.

Mr. Shields

As Republican State Chairman Edward Martin directed the Senate fight against old-age pensions, defeat of which Vare assailed, and was the chief factor in securing the Pennsylvania delegation's adherence to the prohibition straddle in Chicago last year, it might be assumed that Gen. Martin and his gubernatorial ambitions were embraced in the repudiating program of Mr. Vare.

But that assumption would be wrong at this time. Gen. Martin still is striving for Philadelphia support. He and his aides have hope that he will get it.

And this is one of the reasons yesterday was "Philadelphia organization day" of the Selinsgrove rally. Philadelphia was the works, the laudation of its organization activities being a bit oversaccharine, particularly when the fair words of Gen. Martin, Mrs. Marion Margery Scranton and others were sized against the past attitude of some of the rural Pennsylvania counties toward anything Philadelphia wanted.

Vare Dominates Despite Physical Ills

But now Philadelphia is dealing, so far as organization politics is concerned. There was signal evidence that the politicians present yesterday recognized that the illness-weakened hand of Bill Vare held the fate of more than one aspirant for the governorship nomination. With greater physical handicaps than anyone at the picnic ground, Vare dominated the scene.

The attention paid him was more than the ordinary courtesy of strong men for one who had been stricken but was carrying on against physical handicaps. There was something of pathos when Vare spoke, but the spectacle also was stupendous in its scope.

Vare was the committee meeting. Leaning on his cane, helped to a chair, he spoke his few words clearly and with positiveness, and he was the boss, receiving something approaching a servility in that recognition.

Apparently he had received the telegram sent by Gov. Pinchot, a companion of which was addressed to Martin, in which the Governor promised a special session on old-age pensions if the organization would guarantee the votes to put it across. Vare was bold enough to take his stand.

Martin Ignores Pinchot Message

Martin made no recognition of the telegrams, and so far as the state committee members knew, they had not been sent—that is, until the state committee members read the newspapers. Vare was forthright. He said he was for old-age pensions, and minimum wage legislation, always had been, and it was unnecessary for him to re-state his position at length.

He said he was for modification and repeal, and had been in 1926 when the subjects were not popular.

It was a dramatic picture. On the stand as he spoke were men and women active in politics who had forced the Pennsylvania straddle at Chicago, and had maneuvered the Senate into defeat of old-age pensions and a refusal to consider minimum wage legislation.

There were persons in the audience who felt that Vare's pronouncement meant that any candidate he supported for Governor would be compelled to espouse those two causes.

Pinchot Can Place Blame On Machine

By his telegram Mr. Pinchot again has played adroit politics. He has put on the regular Republicans the burden for refusal to act on social legislation. He said he would not waste the state's money on a special session, unless assured of support. He will not get that assurance, and he can and will say that it was the organization which kept the subject of old age pensions from decision by the people next November.

The words of Mr. Vare cannot counteract that impression, because in this instance the words are not to be followed by immediate action.

Yesterday's affair was originally for the Young Republicans, an outfit which is Martin-directed. The State Committee meeting was an afterthought, one difficult to understand, because the election of Mr. Vare as successor to the late Jay Cooke already had been unanimously decided by a mail vote.

There were leaders from all over the state, though Allegheny County was rather thinly represented. Philadelphia was out in force, and so were the hard coal counties.

County Chairman William H. Coleman was present, so was Miles Bryan, the McKees Rocks leader. But there were no county officials of Allegheny County in the audience. There was no one from the city administration, unless Senator James J. Coyne can be pictured as representing that section of the government.

Senator Coyne was among those introduced by Martin as outstanding Republican leaders, though he had to be reminded to call on the Senator by Mrs. Scranton and Mrs. Sarah Etter, vice chairman of the Republican State Committee. Mr. Bryan also was introduced, Martin saying he would fit well into the scheme of the Philadelphia organization.

Prohibition Rally To Be Held Tonight

A "Save Prohibition" rally will be held at 7:45 p. m. tonight in the First Christian Church, Montgomery avenue and Arch street, North Side.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., June 30. To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

That economic conference ought to be starting now over in London. The American delegation arrived there Wednesday.

Will Rogers

There has been millions and millions of dollars made out of wheat in the last month, but not a cent made by anybody that ever raised any, or anybody that ever really owned any. No wonder the people in so many states voted for legal betting on horse racing. The state does get a per cent of that.

Those who demanded their pound of flesh, finally received their satisfaction. "Fatty" Arbuckle accommodated 'em by dying, and from a broken heart. He brought much happiness to many, and never knowingly wronged a soul. The Lord will pass on his innocence or guilt now and not the reformers.

Yours, WILL.

TURTLE CREEK BANK SEEKS TO FREE ASSETS

Gordon's Decision on Plan Approved by Swigart Awaited

Officials of the Turtle Creek Savings and Trust Company today awaited word from Harrisburg on a reorganization plan scheduled to free $1,000,000 in deposits.

The plan was sent to Harrisburg with approval of Chief Banking Examiner J. D. Swigart, it was learned, two weeks ago.

No action has been taken as yet and final approval is not certain as the arrangement would freeze, temporarily, a larger amount in deposits than Dr. William D. Gordon, Secretary of Banking, is understood to favor.

At the time of closing, the company had deposits of $1,461,000, with capital of $125,000. It was burdened with some slow assets, the result of having taken over the the First National Bank of Turtle Creek in 1931. Its capital was never impaired.

STOCK SALE PLANNED

The new scheme would call for sale of $75,000 in common stock to raise the capitalization to $200,000. It would have a total of $760,000 in cash, government and other bonds and $240,000 in other assets, raising the total to $1,263,000.

Depositors would be asked to relinquish their claims to immediate payment of $461,000. A trusteeship would be set up with slow assets appraised at $526,000 to guarantee payment of the $461,000. With liquidation the rest of the deposits would be paid.

Assets securing the deferred deposits would be in addition to the $1,263,000 in the reopened institution.

New officers are contemplated in the changed set-up.

LIQUIDITY RAISED

At the time of the holiday, the bank's liquidity was estimated at 28 per cent. This has already been raised to an approximate 35 per cent and would be increased as stated to some 76 per cent with reorganization.

Meanwhile, other reorganization and reopening plans continued throughout the district. Every indication pointed to reopening of most of the unlicensed institutions in Allegheny County with plans under way. Some of the other nine were expected to reopen as well with further liquidation aids from the government and a rising market.

BANK TO REOPEN AT JOHNSTOWN

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 30.—The United States National Bank, closed since the bank holiday in March, today announced plans to reopen.

Approval of the Comptroller of Currency at Washington has been placed on reorganization plans which will free $8,000,000 to depositors. The reopening date has not been set but probably will be within two weeks.

With one exception, the Moxham National Bank, all of Johnstown's banks have been closed since the holiday.

MISSION PROBE REPUDIATED BY U. P.'S

Assembly to Meet in Oxford, O., in 1934; Delay Unity Action

Severance of all connection with the Laymen's Foreign Missions Inquiry, whose findings were termed an attack on Christian faith, today was voted at the seventy-fifth anniversary General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church.

Findings of the inquiry, in which five United Presbyterian laymen assisted but disagreed with the report, were repudiated upon recommendation of the standing committee on foreign missions. The action took place at the assembly's single session today in the First Church, Oakland, while the Women's General Missionary Society and the Young People's Christian Union were meeting simultaneously in their separate conventions.

Discussion of the laymen's inquiry occupied the chief part of the assembly's business session.

UNITY REPORT DELAYED

The second important matter pertained to the proposed merger of the denomination with the Presbyterian Church. The delegates accepted the committee's recommendation to postpone discussion of a complete report until the next assembly. The report merely cited progress was being made by the joint committee on the plan of union.

The laymen's inquiry findings, which were first made public last November, were assailed in the assembly's resolution as follows:

"The report constitutes an attack upon the historic Christian faith; it deprecates the distinction between Christian and non-Christian; it belittles the Bible and inveighs against Christian doctrine; it presents Jesus as a great religious teacher and example, as Christianity's 'highest expression of religious life' but not as our God and Saviour; it belittles evangelism, definite conversion, open profession of faith in Christ, membership in the Christian church and substitutes 'the dissemination of spiritual influence' and 'the permeation of the community with Christian ideals and principles for the regeneration' and is, in the whole doctrinal position, out of harmony with the evangelical faith."

CONDEMNS BEER

Following a joint meeting of the Women's General Missionary Society in Syria Mosque, thoughts of the women turned to election of officers slated for tomorrow. Among those mentioned for president was Mrs. W. T. Lytle, wife of the pastor of the Ben Avon Church. Reports on the work of the aged and sick were made.

Oxford, O., will be the scene of the next assembly, it was decided, while the Young People's Christian Union will hold next year's meeting August 22 in Lakeside, O.

Tonight, a home missions meeting will be held in the Mosque, with members of the assembly, women's and youth's organizations participating.

Prospects of improved financial conditions were expressed for the coming year in the assembly's annual report. The present budget calls for $515,000. The pension system was declared successful. Reports were likewise made to the women's missionary group, Mrs. Ada Kerr declaring 70 per cent of the medical work in the two mission hospitals is free. Mrs. Harriet B. Boobyer condemned the legalized sale of beer and deplored the power of the wet forces.

Officials Apportion Maug, Turpac Reward

Ignoring one claimant, the County Commissioners and District Attorney Andrew T. Park today had divided the $10,000 offered for the capture of John Maug and Edward Turpac, escaped convicts.

Although the representatives of the Lakewood, O., police pension fund would have been content to take half the amount for the work done by the two police officers who captured the convicts, the County Commissioners and District Attorney gave them $7,000.

The remaining $3,000 is to be divided between the taxicab driver who was bound and gagged by the escaped convicts and the woman who telephoned to the Lakewood police after the cab driver was discovered in her back yard. The cab driver, Norman Piccus, will be given $2,300 and the woman who spread the alarm, Mrs. Roy C. Koonz, is to receive $700.

The Commissioners had agreed to give the cab driver $2,500 and Mrs. Koonz $500, but attorneys for both parties agreed on $700 for the woman. The Commissioners were not greatly concerned with the division of the reward beyond the belief that the police fund should get no less than $7,000.

Dalmayer Potts and Edward Graske, the police officers, told the Commissioners how they had disarmed Maugh and Turpac. Restrained by law from taking any of the reward for themselves, they claimed the money for their city's pension fund.

Mrs. Koonz and Piccus also told their stories to the Commissioners.

Attorney John L. Dowling, of Cleveland, spoke in behalf of Miss Thelma Kindle, employed in a Western Union branch office in Lakewood. She had been held up by Maugh and Turpac several days before the capture and helped to identify the prisoners as the men who had robbed her of $118.

She said the additional identification of the men as robbers led police to make a closer check on their records, revealing that they were the escaped convicts. Her claim was denied.

The cash will be paid when the claimants sign releases. Unless they sign the division will be put up to the courts, the county officials said.

IDLE 3 YEARS; KILLED ON JOB

Rade Kosonovich, 47, back at work in the Jones & Laughlin South Side plant after three years of idleness, is dead today and his wife and six children again must turn to county relief.

Depression had dogged the life of Kosonovich. First came the great war which wrecked farm life back in Serbia. After the war Central European powers decreed that Serbia would become a part of Jugoslavia. Farm life became intolerable and he set out from Croatia with his little brood to enjoy prosperity in the United States.

In the steel mills he discovered prosperity a fleeting thing and a year later he found himself beginning to wonder if he would not have been better off in his homeland.

Three months ago the skies began to brighten He got back his job in No. 3 blooming mill and he worked three days a week. The family went off relief. As he walked through the mill at the end of his night's labors this morning, an ingot jammed in one of the rolls. Kosonovich was in its path when it shot from the rolls and struck him dead.

Kosonovic leaves a widow and six children. His wife, Mary, is 47. His oldest daughter, Mrs. Sophia Tervoitz, who lives at home. Other children are Mildred, 17; Martha, 14; Louis, 12; Betty, 10, and Ralph, 6.

ENFORCEMENT OF FIREWORKS LAW PLEDGED

Holiday Safety Rules Given by City's Health Chief

If this year's observance of the Fourth of July runs true to form, accidental deaths will reach their peak for 1933 on that day.

However the safety and health departments, according to their directors, will do everything possible to cut down the number of fatalities.

Director of Public Safety Harmar D. Denny, Jr., has announced that his department will do all in its power to enforce the fireworks ordinance of 1931.

The ordinance provides that retailers must obtain licenses from the city before selling fireworks of any description. The license fee is $50. Sixty-one licenses have been issued to date by the Bureau of Building Inspection.

AGE LIMIT 12

The ordinance also provides that dealers shall not sell fireworks to children under 12 years.

Dr. William W. McFarland, health chief, today issued the following rules for safety:

"Play safe on the Fourth and get medical attention at once for fireworks injuries, no matter how trivial. Fireworks destroy eyesight, cause lockjaw (tetanus) and may cripple you or your child for life. The only way to combat lockjaw is early inoculation of tetanus antitoxin.

"Don't drive your car fast in heavy traffic, and see that your brakes are in perfect condition before starting on the holiday trip.

"Don't take chances while swimming, even if you are an accomplished swimmer. Don't swim to the point of exhaustion. Don't enter the water until at least an hour after eating and don't get in without cooling off first. Don't dive in strange water.

"Don't take chances in boats. If your boat should capsize, don't try to right it—just hang on until help comes."

TOLL REVEALED

Dr. McFarland has compiled figures which reveal that in the Fourth celebration of last year an estimated 245 lives were lost throughout the country. Of these 10 were from fireworks, 119 automobile fatalities, 90 from drownings and 26 miscellaneous accidental deaths.

While the number of immediate deaths from fireworks numbered only 10, figures are not available for the later deaths due to lockjaw and blood poisoning.

Dr. McFarland emphasized the necessity for parents to explain the perils of the day to their children. He continued:

"There are more satisfactory and safer methods of expressing patriotism on the nation's birthday than by running the risks incidental to the commonly accepted method of celebrating the Fourth of July."

Geneva Is Neatly Folded Up; London Ready to Follow

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Everything is riding smoothly, as the world's first hitch-hiker said after he met the good Samaritan.

The Geneva Disarmament Conference folded up as gracefully as a sunflower at twilight. Like a cat down a well they finally realized they weren't going anywhere.

Bulletins from the London economic bedside indicate the American dollar is still playing monkey-on-a-stick. France just issued another last will and ultimatum. It's getting so these days that constitutions, charters and ultimatums are just daily bulletins.

Coming home again will be a tougher job than usual for our diplomats. This time they have something left to pack up.

Our golf team lost over there because a string of box cars went by the links at a critical moment. And a box car reminds our professionals of Johnny Goodman.

'Consent Divorce' Plan Scored by Clergymen

Divorce by "mutual consent," as proposed by Prof. Charles R. Metzger, of Indiana University, before the Association for the Advancement of Science, is firmly opposed by clergymen gathered here at the General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. Dr. W. B. Anderson, moderator of the session and secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions, said today:

"The proposal loses sight of the fundamental nature of marriage which aims at a human relationship resulting in the founding of a permanent home. History proves that this divine provision alone will satisfy the needs of a foundation for human society."

While other ministers referred to the plan as nothing more than companionate marriage and love, the Rev. Dr. T. H. McMichael, President of Monmouth College, said:

"It would be a blow at the home life of our civilization."

The Rev. Dr. C. E. Hawthorne, evangelism committee chairman of the church, pointed out:

"Marriage is one of the finest and sweetest relationships of the civilized race. Any such loose lowering of our standards to the level of the beasts shows diseased thinking."

LINDBERGH SET FOR TEST HOP

By DAVID P. SENTNER

International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 30.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, whose air adventures and private joys and sorrows are better known to the world than those of any living mortal, is back in the headlines again.

Weather permitting, the aviator today or tomorrow will test out his plane in which he will make a flight to Greenland with his wife within a few weeks.

The new Lindbergh air saga will consist of a survey for a northern flying route to Europe for passenger and mail planes.

It is probable that the famous flying couple will continue across the Atlantic Ocean from Greenland to Iceland and perhaps to Denmark.

DRYS TO URGE ABSTINENCE

MILWAUKEE, June 30.—(AP.)—Mrs. Ella A. Boole, of Brooklyn, national president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, today planned to urge the convention of the organization to stress a campaign for voluntary abstinence from liquor.

Commenting in advance on the proposal she will make, Mrs. Boole said there is to be no let-up in aggressive efforts to enforce and retain prohibition legislation, but that more attention would be given educational campaigns stressing the evils of use of alcoholic beverages. She suggested resumption of pledge-signing among all groups of persons striving for social welfare.

Mrs. Boole recommends that members of the union and others interested in promotion of temperance refuse to deal with merchants who sell beer.

PEW INJURES NEWLYWEDS

ALTOONA, Pa., June 30.—(INS.)—Norman and Henrietta Krauth, Pittsburgh newlyweds, are in Spangler Hospital here today suffering from injuries received while walking in a highway south of Carrolltown. A truck load of church pews broke down. One of the benches struck the newlyweds.

Krauth, who lives at 4725 Bayard street, is a laboratory assistant. His bride, whose Pittsburgh address was given as 3891 Bigelow boulevard on the marriage license application, was the former Henrietta Hoffer. They are visiting Mrs. Krauth's parents at Carrolltown.

Plunges Nine Floors, Bump Only Injury

NEW YORK, June 30.—(INS.)—Not through the "Valley of Death," but through eight awnings rode Roy B. McDavidson, a visitor from Hanover, Pa., when he fell out of the window of his ninth floor room today at a hotel.

McDavidson's only injury when he picked himself off the sidewalk in Times Square was a bump on the head.

Hoover, Justice Stone Take Fishing Trip

PALO ALTO, Cal., June 30.—(AP.)—Former President Herbert Hoover and Associate Justice Harlan F. Stone, a guest at the Hoover Stanford University home, left here yesterday by motor car for a fishing trip to Placer County, in the Sierra Nevada Mountains.

AIMEE TO SAIL FOR U. S. SOON

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 30.—(AP.)—After all this furore over a baby and divorce rumors and cliques at Angelus Temple, Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson-Hutton is coming home quietly to settle down after her latest fling at globe-trotting, her husband, David Hutton, said yesterday.

Hutton said the evangelist was coming home in about two weeks, having shown remarkable recuperative powers after an operation in Paris that is now generally understood to have been plastic.

He added that Mrs. McPherson-Hutton had announced her plans in a private message to him. The husband of the evangelist fumed a few days ago because she had been addressing her messages to him through Temple headquarters.

But right on the heels of the peace and quiet, which pervaded the parsonage where Hutton is living, came another announcement — that Roberta Semple Smythe, daughter of Mrs. McPherson-Hutton, had sailed for Paris from New York Tuesday. That, admitted Hutton, was a fresh mystery.

NEW COLLECTOR TO TAKE OFFICE

David L. Lawrence, new collector of internal revenue for the Pittsburgh district, will be sworn in tomorrow by Judge R. M. Gibson in United States District Court.

James Houlahen, recently appointed collector of customs, will also be sworn in tomorrow if his commission arrives in time. Lawrence, Democratic chairman of Allegheny County, will succeed D. B. Heiner, who has served 24 years in the position.

Larry Fay's Slayer Gets 8-Year Term

NEW YORK, June 30.—(INS.)—Edward D. Maloney, giant night club doorman, who killed Larry Fay on New Years night, was sentenced to from 8 to 16 years in Sing Sing today by Judge Collins in General Sessions, following his conviction by a jury last week.

Aesop Vindicated As Turtle Bests Hare in Race

BALTIMORE, June 30.—(AP.)—The newspapers today were hailing as a contribution to scientific research the corroboration given Aesop at Johns Hopkins Hospital yesterday.

Following the annual turtle race on the hospital grounds, the winner, Panic II, defeated a hare, described as being from the Whitney Stables.

Panic II won the right to race in this feature event by defeating Fragments, from the Othopedics Stable, and Blessed Event, a last-minute entry from the Obstetrics Paddock. Fragments appeared to have the race in the bag, but as photographers rushed to the sidelines to snap his picture he stopped to pose, permitting Panic to win.

COMMISSARY VOTE TODAY

Final steps for the elimination of the Tarentum commissary were to be considered at a meeting of the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board late this afternoon.

The State Emergency Relief Board recently approved the county board's recommendation that the commissary be abolished and the community placed on the store-order system of relief found in other districts. The time of the change was left to the county board.

Director George P. Mills has stated that the transition will probably require several weeks, as there is a good-sized inventory at the Tarentum warehouse. The relief needs at Tarentum have decreased abruptly recently due to calling men back to steel and glass plants.

Doctors Examine Percy Rockefeller

NEW YORK, June 30.—(AP.)—Percy A. Rockefeller underwent an examination yesterday at the Doctor's Hospital.

Hospital attaches would not disclose the nature of the examination and said Rockefeller, a nephew of John D. Rockefeller, Sr., left soon afterwards.

Girl Hurt in Dive At South Park Pool

Anna Daugherty, 34, of Steiger street, McKeesport, was injured today when she dived into shallow water in the South Park swimming pool. She was taken to the McKeesport Hospital, where she was reported suffering concussions.

FIGHT STRANDS TECHNOCRATS

CHICAGO, June 30.—(INS.)—Technocracy's national convention was stranded on the rocks of dissension today.

The whole meeting was called off when the All America Technological Society, one of the three groups sponsoring the convention, withdrew.

Members of the society said they receded when they interpreted the remarks of Howard Scott, "father of technocracy," to mean that he favored taking over the government by force.

But Scott, a former member of the Columbia University faculty, said his address did not imply the use of violence, at all.

DANCE CONTEST MAN KILLED

HAMMONTON, N. J., June 30.—(AP.)—A marathon dancer was killed and six other persons, including three women, were injured early today in an automobile collision near here.

The dead man was "Kid" A. Cooley, 22, of St. Louis.

Cooley had been connected with a "walkathon" contest at Camden and was on his way to another in Atlantic City.

Mrs. Russell Freeman, of Seattle, Wash., injured in the crash, was not expected to survive, physicians said.

New Ocean Record Set by Liner Bremen

CHERBOURG, France, June 30.—(INS.)—Completing her seventy-fourth trans-Atlantic voyage, the North German Lloyd liner Bremen discharged passengers here today after breaking the world's and her own previous records for the crossing in time and speed.

The ship covered the 3,199 miles from New York at an average speed of 28.51 knots, negotiating the passage in 4 days 16 hours and 15 minutes to arrive here at 11:40 p. m. last night.

George Meeker, Film Actor, to Wed Bud

HOLLYWOOD, June 30.—(AP.)—George Meeker, stage and screen actor, and Joan Waddell, New York debutante, advised their friends yesterday they planned to fly to Yuma, Ariz., and be married tomorrow.

Meeker met Miss Waddell last year in New York when he was playing a role in the stage play, "Strictly Dishonorable."

FLIERS POISED FOR AIR RACES

CHICAGO, June 30.—(AP.)—Famous air pilots tuned up their racing and stunting planes today in preparing for the opening of the American air races.

Although the four-day race card does not open until tomorrow a colorful parade depicting the development of transportation was scheduled for today.

Some of the most famous names in aviation were listed in the program of daily races. Women will be represented in the several 50-mile speed races by Helen MacCloskey, of Pittsburgh.

LOS ANGELES, June 30.—(AP.)—The national air races, 1933 edition and a lusty youngster if progress in the field of speed is any measure of accomplishment and growth, will get under way here tomorrow while at least seven noted pilots, five men and two women, streak across the continent in one of the most spectacular of the scheduled events, the Bendix trophy race.

The highlight of the initial series of events will be the arrival of the transcontinental fliers from New York. Their members include Col. Roscoe Turner, present holder of the East-West mark of 12 hours 33 minutes; Russell Boardman, Russell Thaw, James Wedell, Lee Gelbach, Amelia Earhart and Ruth Nichols.

GIRL FLIERS TO RACE OVER CITY

The "all-woman air derby," the first air race ever held over the city, will be viewed by the downtown crowds shortly after 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Four girl pilots entered in the event will race from Bettis Field to the Point, circle there and dash back to the field. The four competing for the $500 prize to be given are Helen Richey, Helen Ball, Sally Callahan and Rae Trader. The race will be the opening event of the two-day air show to be staged Saturday and Sunday at Bettis Airport by the One Hundred and Eleventh Infantry Drum and Bugle Corps. Among the events scheduled for the show are parachute jumps, stunt flying by Bob Hart, Jim Franklin and Bob Trader, a parachute race against time on Sunday; and a "spot landing" contest on Sunday among 10 fliers.

MOTHER DIES, SON HELD

JENKINTOWN, Pa., June 30.—(INS.)—Two men were held for investigation by police here today following the death of Mrs. Anna Abromovitz, 42, Pittsburgh, the mother of one of them on a Philadelphia-Easton bus in South Jenkintown.

Those held are Nicholas Teslevy, 22, a son by a previous marriage, with whom she resided, and George Parks, of Pittsburgh, who said he was a private detective.

Police said the three were on their way to Easton for a civil suit to recover money which had been paid by an insurance company to Mrs. Abromovitz's brother-in-law, who was named beneficiary in policies on the life of her husband.

According to her son, Michael Terlecki, 18, Mrs. Anna Abromovitz, 40, and her other son, Nicholas Terlecki, 20, and an attorney's investigator, left Pittsburgh Wednesday night by bus for Easton, where his mother's brother-in-law lives. The boy said she went there to collect some money on his stepfather's insurance. His stepfather, Jacob Abromovitz, died May 22.

YEGGS CRACK DEALER'S SAFE

Safe crackers ransacked the safe of the McKinley-Gregg Auto Company, 447 North Craig street, during the night and escaped with between $200 and $300, detectives learned today.

Entrance was gained by jimmying a third floor rear door. The yeggs knocked off the safe combination with a sledge hammer. Detectives from the bertillon department hunted finger prints on the receipts and other papers found scattered over the second and third floors of the building.

Rhubarb Is Recommended As a Dessert

Health Expert Discusses Methods of Preparing This Tempting and Nutritious Dish

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator From New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

In a little French restaurant the other day I was served a dish of the most delicious stewed rhubarb I had ever eaten. I noticed that many of the diners had ordered this dish and was told by the head waiter that it was a very popular dessert. It was cut in pieces about two inches thick, had a delicate pink color and tempting flavor.

Though highly recommended as a nutritional food, many persons dislike rhubarb because of the way it is prepared. I was told it is best cooked with very little water, and sugar added to taste. The pieces are kept whole by not stirring while being cooked. This method of preparation insures the flavor and appearance of the rhubarb.

Rhubarb belongs to the buckwheat family and is a stem vegetable. It is often called "pie plant" or "wine plant," for it is commonly used for making pies, sauces and other desserts. As everybody knows, the thick, leafy stalks of the plant are used for these purposes.

The stem has large fibers which are made soft by cooking. It contains quantities of potash and lime oxalate which give it a bitter taste. Thus the addition of large amounts of sugar are required to flavor. The added sugar increases the food value of this vegetable. Best rhubarb has tender stalks, is only mildly acid and has a thin skin.

PREJUDICE UNDESERVED

The older the plant the more oxalic acid it contains. This has given rise to an undeserved prejudice against rhubarb. May I assure you that the amount of oxalic acid in this vegetable is not harmful when taken in temperate amounts. I would advise, however, that persons suffering from kidney disturbances, arthritis and gout, omit this vegetable from their diet.

Rhubarb can be kept fresh by first cleaning the stalks and placing them in a jar of cool water. Then close the jar tightly.

When rhubarb is dried in the sun it may be kept for a long time. Then when it is desired for use, it should be soaked in water overnight.

FLAVOR IS TEMPTING

In the days of Queen Elizabeth, rhubarb leaves were used as herbs. As a matter of fact, it has little medicinal value. Yet the vegetable has definite mild laxative properties.

It has a tempting flavor and combines well with other foods. It is easily digested, has a tart flavor and stimulates the appetite.

I am glad to say that rhubarb is cheap, available to every family budget. At one time it was considered a luxury. It is now obtainable almost all year round. Modern methods of cultivation, refrigeration and transportation have brought this attractive and pleasing vegetable within the almost daily reach of every housewife.

Set the pastry covered tins on a baking sheet and let bake 10 or 12 minutes. Cut out rounds for covers, decorate with small figures cut from the paste and brush underneath with water to make them adhere. Chill and bake. Remove paste from tins and fill with:

2 cups of cubed cooked chicken, stirred into two cups of cream sauce and set the covers above. Serve at once.

Cover and let cook about 25 minutes, or until the rice is done. Remove the onion, cloves and parsley. Grease a mold with butter and place cooked rice and sliced chicken in the mold in alternate layers. Make each layer solid and have the first and last layers of rice. Set to cook in the oven in a pan of hot water. Let bake about 20 minutes. Unmold on a hot dish. Serve with tomato or cream sauce.

HIGH QUALITY MENUS MARK CONTEST

Recent Entries Are Closer to Price Figure

Governed by the several prize menus that have been printed during the last few days in the Sun-Telegraph, the judges found that as a whole the entries submitted in the second week's Prudence Penny Dinner Menu Contest disclosed more thought and care in their makeup than marked the general run of the first week's entries.

There were not so many who sent in menus far below the $1.50 cost price—in fact the majority were closer to the price designated in the contest. The judges spent the entire day yesterday weighing the merits of the best entries, and their final decision awards the $100 in cash prizes to the following women:

First prize, $25, Mrs. Edith Steel Hallstein, 111 North Third street, Apollo.

Second prize, $15, Mrs. J. Charles Prowten, 449 Meadowcroft avenue, Mt. Lebanon.

Third prize, $10, Mrs. R. E. Engelhardt, 659 Means avenue, Bellevue.

Fourth prize, $750, Mrs. T. W. Reilly, 305 Fifth street, Irwin.

Fifth prize, $7.50, Mrs. J. R. Caldwell, 265 Maple avenue, Edgewood.

Four prizes at $5 each: Mrs. Ella H. Nicholson, Lark Inn Fields, Leetsdale; Mrs. Grace Holmes, 186 Plum street, Greenville; Mrs. J. F. Broida, 5626 Northumberland street, Squirrel Hill, Pittsburgh; Mrs. M. A. Goodstone, 5645 Hobart street, Pittsburgh.

Five prizes at $2 each: Mrs. J. A. Grant, 189 Superior avenue, Emsworth; Mrs. E. J. O'Brien, 1505 Chelton avenue, Pittsburgh; Mrs. Harry W. Ryan, 1404 Jefferson street, Latrobe; Mrs. Edwin T. Clark, 6309 Jackson street, East End, Pittsburgh; Mrs. D. J. Coullie, 2502 Wedgemere street, Pittsburgh.

Five prizes at $1 each: Mrs. O. K. Bingham, 441 Washington avenue, Bridgeville; Mrs. Laura W. Martin, 325 Melwood street, East End, Pittsburgh; Mrs. A. V. Crouch, 408 Pershing drive, New Kensington; Mrs. L. R. McKibbin, 1540 Asbury place, Pittsburgh; Mrs. J. Scott Brown, 916½ Murtland avenue, Pittsburgh.

Cover with the following fudge frosting: Fudge frosting—2 squares chocolate, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 tablespoon flour, 1-3 cup milk, few grains salt, 2 tablespoons butter, ¼ teaspoon vanilla.

Melt chocolate over hot water, add sugar, flour and salt mixed together and, when smooth, add milk slowly. Cook until it spins a thread (one inch long). Add butter, vanilla and cool, beat until right consistency to spread without running.

TELL IT TO ELSIE -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By ELSIE ROBINSON

Understand Others and You Will Win Friends

Why doesn't Edna get a break?

Why does she sit, dateless and alone, night after night?

She's not homely, or dowdy, and she longs for a home and a nice, rosy kiddie or two,

But has she any prospects of getting them?

No; apparently not. What's wrong?

Dear Miss Robinson:

I wish you would consider my problem and answer it if you can.

I am no longer very young, but I manage to make a good appearance. I know I make a good impression on people I meet, because they tell me so. I have a good character and try to make myself interesting, but I don't go in for being obvious, like a good many girls.

I have a certain amount of business success, yet I know that my real vocation lies in being a good wife and mother. But have I had any real chance to attain that vocation? No. And I don't know why.

So far, I have been unfortunate in attracting to myself only a man who was too lazy to support himself, one who was hopelessly incapacitated and correspondingly selfish, and another whose background was so different from mine that you could almost say we didn't speak the same language.

I am utterly dissatisfied with life as it is going with me. I long for a home and children, but men don't seem to come my way—that is, the right men.

BORED BY FRIENDS

I am getting so my friends bore me to death, and I am beginning to have difficulty making new ones, because those I meet and who would be friendly don't appeal to me. Those I might be interested in don't return the compliment. I am just fed up with the daily routine of existence. I must have some interesting men friends, or go batty.

What does a person do—hit a man on the head with a brick, in order to attract attention? What if a girl lacks aggressiveness, cannot act kittenish and cute (not the type), and is more natural if she lets the man make the first move? And where will she meet men who are not in holy fear that when they greet a girl she will set her claws in their necks? It's all so hopeless at times!

I (and there are thousands like me) know that I could be a good wife and mother, but I lack the come-hither allure of a Harlow. So what? Why am I in a fix like this? EDNA.

Why are you in fix like that? You're why, Edna.

Read over your own letter and, if you're brave enough to face facts, you'll speedily see who is the villian in this plot. That letter is filled with your wants, isn't it? All the lovely things that you want life and other people give to you, Edna.

But what are you offering those other people in return? Has it ever occurred to you to offer anything? Have you ever stopped to think of their need?

SHOULD ALTER WAYS

Obviously, you never have, You have been, from the first, consumed with a Dream of Edna—and you have lavished all your time and attention in fitting Edna for the role, in making Edna attractive, in keeping Edna choice and choosey.

And now you're aggrieved because nobody seems to appreciate this work you've done on and for yourself. But why should they? We must give if we hope to get. And this applies more to marriage than any other department in life.

If you want to get into life, be willing to be a part of life. Get human. Stop looking 'em over with a snooty sneer. Give the other fellow a little of that warm, living, understanding companionship which you desire so ardently yourself.

No normal young man is going to marry you so he can mean something to you. He will wish to marry you so you can mean something to him. And, at present, I fear you do not offer a very tempting prospect.

Stop priding yourself on "not being obvious." Be obvious—an obviously good egg. Then maybe you'll offer a little real competition to these less difficult ladies who are grabbing off all the attractive men.

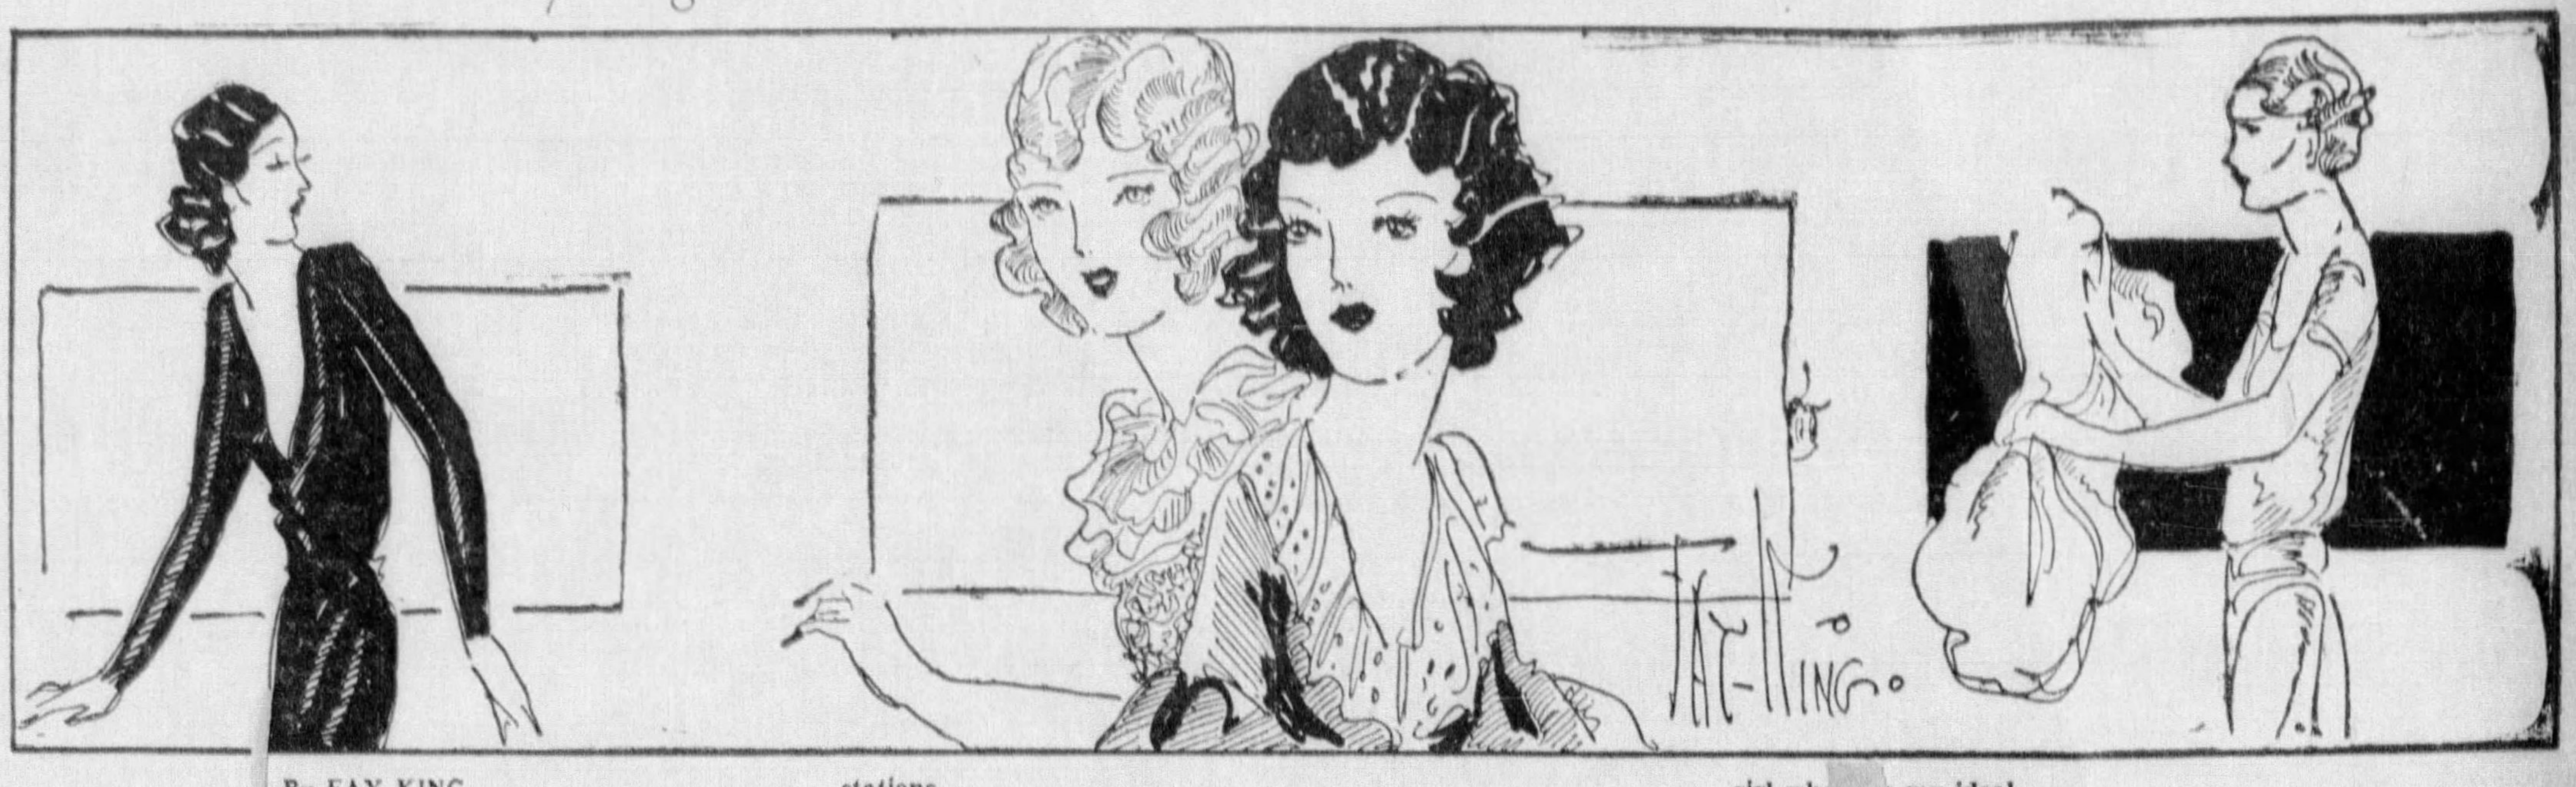
Fay King Tells Modern Romeo Where He Can Find His Juliet



By FAY KING

Most men are shy about going into department stores. They are under the impression that they are shops for women, when the fact is that they are as much for men and women as railway stations.

When men do go into these big stores it is more or less timidly and tagged to their women folks. But if I were a man, and especially one contemplating matrimony, I would certainly frequent the large stores and shop profusely at the counter where I saw a girl who [illegible] my ideal.

It seems to me that nowhere are girls lovelier, more gracious and amiable than here. They are radiant, and romance would prosper and flourish if romantic Romeos would do more shopping where Juliet is a saleslady.

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Hugh Says That He Will "Set Everything Right"

At my heartbroken cry that Dicky had gone away, Marion flung her arms around me and hugged me frantically, as if she would shut everything harmful away from me.

Ronald turned from the front seat to speak to Marion, and under cover of their absorption—for in even the slightest colloquy of those two the world is forgotten—Hugh put his hand firmly over mine.

"It is all my fault," he whispered. "And it's only natural. I should be worse than he is, in his place."

He stopped abruptly, then repeated, "in his place" with an indescribable mournfulness in his voice, while his hand tightened as if involuntarily on mine. After a second he bent his head closer and whispered tensely: "But I shall make everything right. Just trust me, and don't grieve so. You know he loves you madly, and you also know he is incapable of holding a grudge."

He took his hand from mine and turned to listen to Harry Underwood, who had just finished supervising the loading of the big limousine belonging to Nick and Tony.

"Well, lad, we've got 'em all stowed away like cordwood. Luckily, we brought Brown with us, and he knows every inch of that mountain territory. He'll take us the shortest way back to the farmhouse, where all the rest of them are. We'll go ahead, and you follow close on our heels. If we want you to stop, we'll give you the usual hand signal. If you need us, give three blasts of the horn. Oke?"

GIRLS REUNITED

"Sure."

"Then let's get going."

I remember little of the journey back. I was suffering in body and in spirit, for the throbbing of my ankle, despite Harry's efficient first aid, was not more painful than the anxious tremors of my soul, as I estimated the chances of Dicky coming down safely. But I did realize that it was a surprisingly short interval between our start from the lonely field near "Jerry's" to the equally lonely farmhouse where "Hen-ner-y" and Nettie lived, and which Dr. Barnes had provided as a starting point in our hunt for the kidnapers.

We found them all out of doors, eagerly watching for us. Carolyn was the first to reach us, and with her arms clasped tightly about Marion, she cried hysterically:

TO SEE MOTHER

"Oh, Pats! Pats! It's just seemed hours since Uncle Dicky dropped the message saying you were safe. Now we can go and see our mothers. I've got good news for mine, too. What do you think, Ron? Dad is here. He was hunting for us, and those awful men slugged him. He's hurt, but he's going to be all right, and I can tell Mums about him. She can come right over here, can't she?"

"You must be brave and patient just a little longer, Carolyn. Your mother suffered so much over the uncertainty of your fate and her husband's, that it was necessary to put her to sleep with opiates. It would be very dangerous to bring her over here. But you shall go to her at once. There is a trained nurse with her, and I will send Brock to stay just outside your door, should you need anything. Your arrival will release Mrs. Underwood, who has been watching over your mother.

"Noel and Mary, will you take Carolyn and Ronald over to their mother? But you, Ronald, must come back with them. We shall need you here."

"Do you mean," Marion asked chokingly, "that I'm not going to my mother, too? I can't wait another second to see her."

-:- Hints for the Household -:-

When whitewashing a ceiling, or distempering walls, stretch a piece of thick string across the top of the pail. You can then wipe excess whitewash or distemper off the brush onto the string and it will drop into the pail.

Flasks used for picnics and summer expeditions should not be put away without careful examination. Make sure they are clean, and rub the corks over with salt. This will prevent that musty flavor so often associated with a thermos flask.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Cause of Peptic Ulcer Is a Mystery to Science

Tremendous strides are being made in the prevention and cure of disease. Yet in spite of scientific research, the causes of many afflictions remain unsolved. For example, "peptic ulcer," or ulcer of the stomach, has been an affliction of mankind for many centuries, but its real cause is still unknown.

Dr. Copeland

Of course, we know a lot more about peptic ulcer than our forefathers did. But as yet we cannot truly say what causes it. Until this knowledge is obtained the disease cannot be prevented.

Many theories have been advanced. General lack of resistance, as well as infection and injury to the lining of the stomach, are doubtless important factors. The irritating action of the hydrochloric acid of the stomach juices may lead to ulcers of the stomach. Peptic ulcer often follows an acute infection or the effects of some chronic wasting disease.

If it digs deeply, the ulcer may cause serious hemorrhage or rupture of the stomach. When this occurs, immediate operation is necessary to save the life of the victim. Fortunately, this emergency is not often met.

The sufferer from chronic peptic ulcer complains of various digestive disturbances. Pain or stomach distress occurs usually about two or three hours after eating. This discomfort may be accompanied by nausea, belching and perhaps vomiting.

As a rule, the soreness or tenderness persists until the next meal. It is relieved by vomiting, and sometimes [illegible] taking small quantities of food like crackers and milk. The use of an alkali, such as bicarbonate of soda, stops the pain. Relief is made possible by the neutralizing action of the food or alkali upon the irritating juices of the stomach.

The conservative or medical treatment consists, first, of the removal of all centers of infection, such as diseased teeth, tonsils and nasal sinuses. The use of a carefully selected diet should be enforced. The patient must be kept in bed in order to give the complete rest which is essential. Diets advised in the treatment of peptic ulcer are various. The most successful results have been obtained from the use of a milk diet.

There are many special diets. The "Sippy milk diet" is undoubtedly the best. According to Dr. Sippy's plan, the patient is given three ounces of a mixture of equal parts of milk and cream every hour, from 7 in the morning until 7 in the evening. After the third day, three soft-boiled eggs and a well cooked cereal may be added to the daily diet. Powders of magnesia and soda alternated with carbonate of lime and soda are given between meals to neutralize the acid of the stomach.

This diet is given for three to four weeks. Though the food is regarded as the most important part of the treatment, it is of little value if the patient does not remain in bed. Complete cure can be accomplished only by complete rest in bed. This part of the treatment must be enforced until all signs of discomfort disappear.

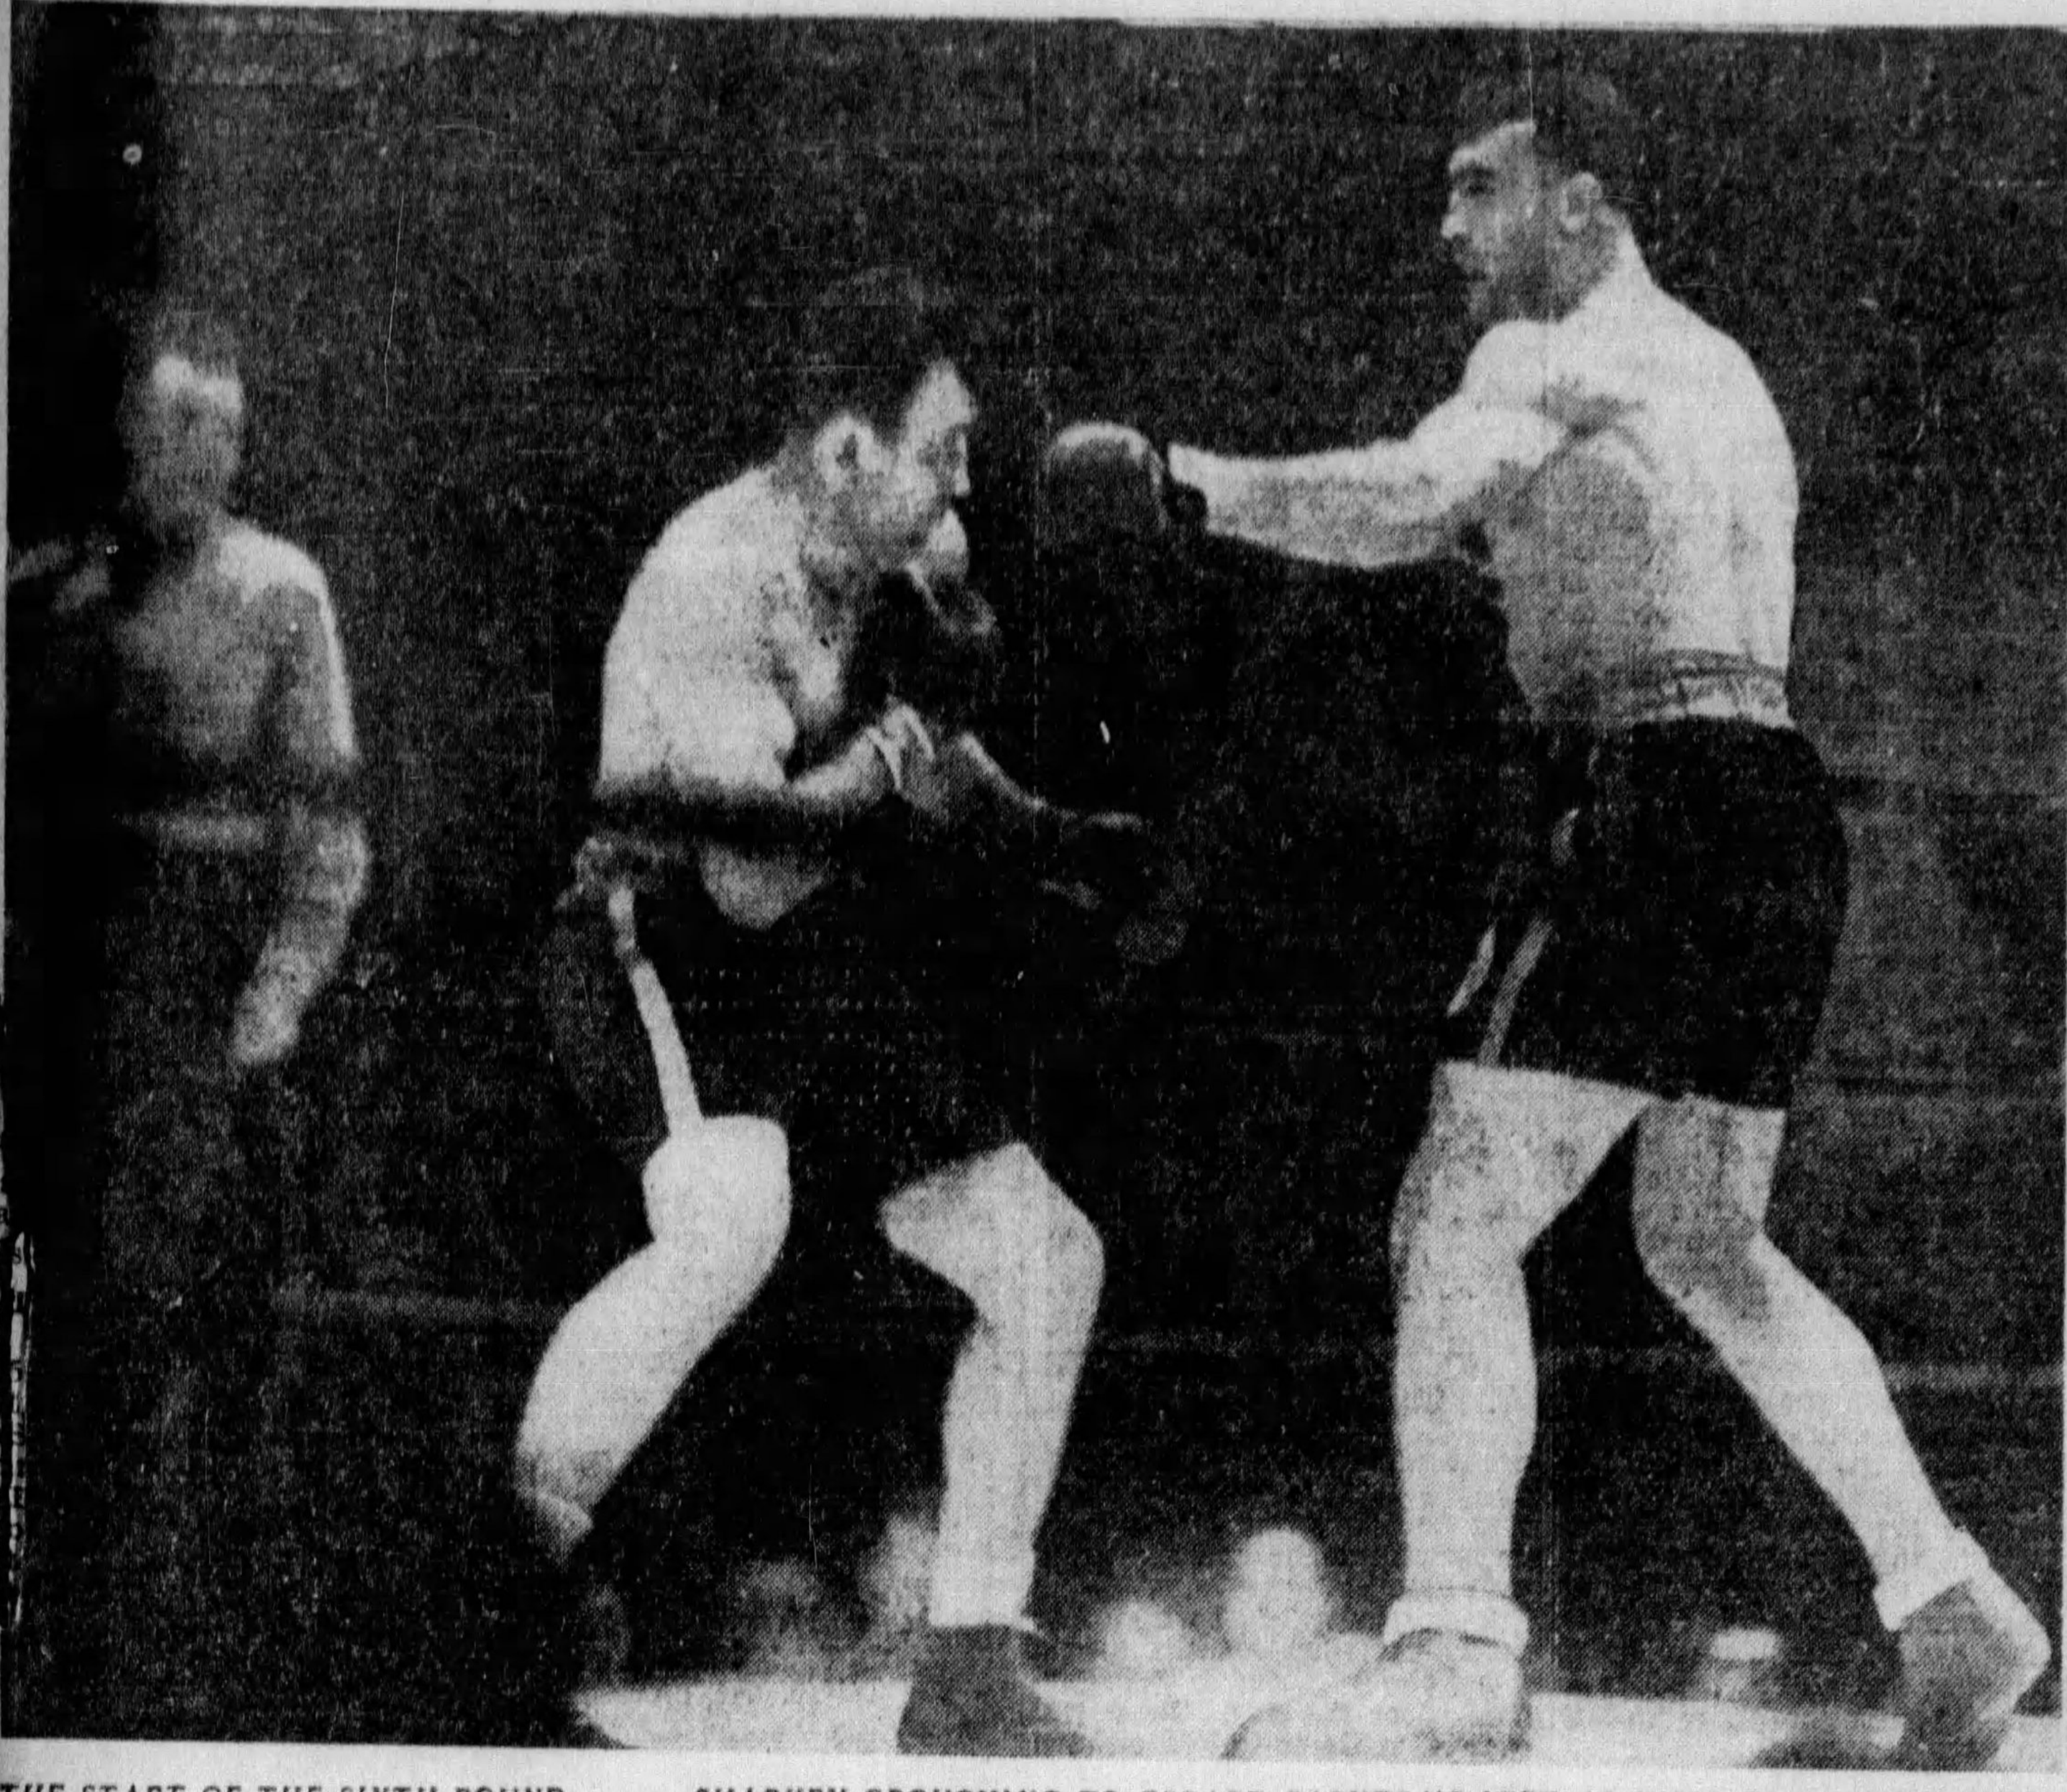
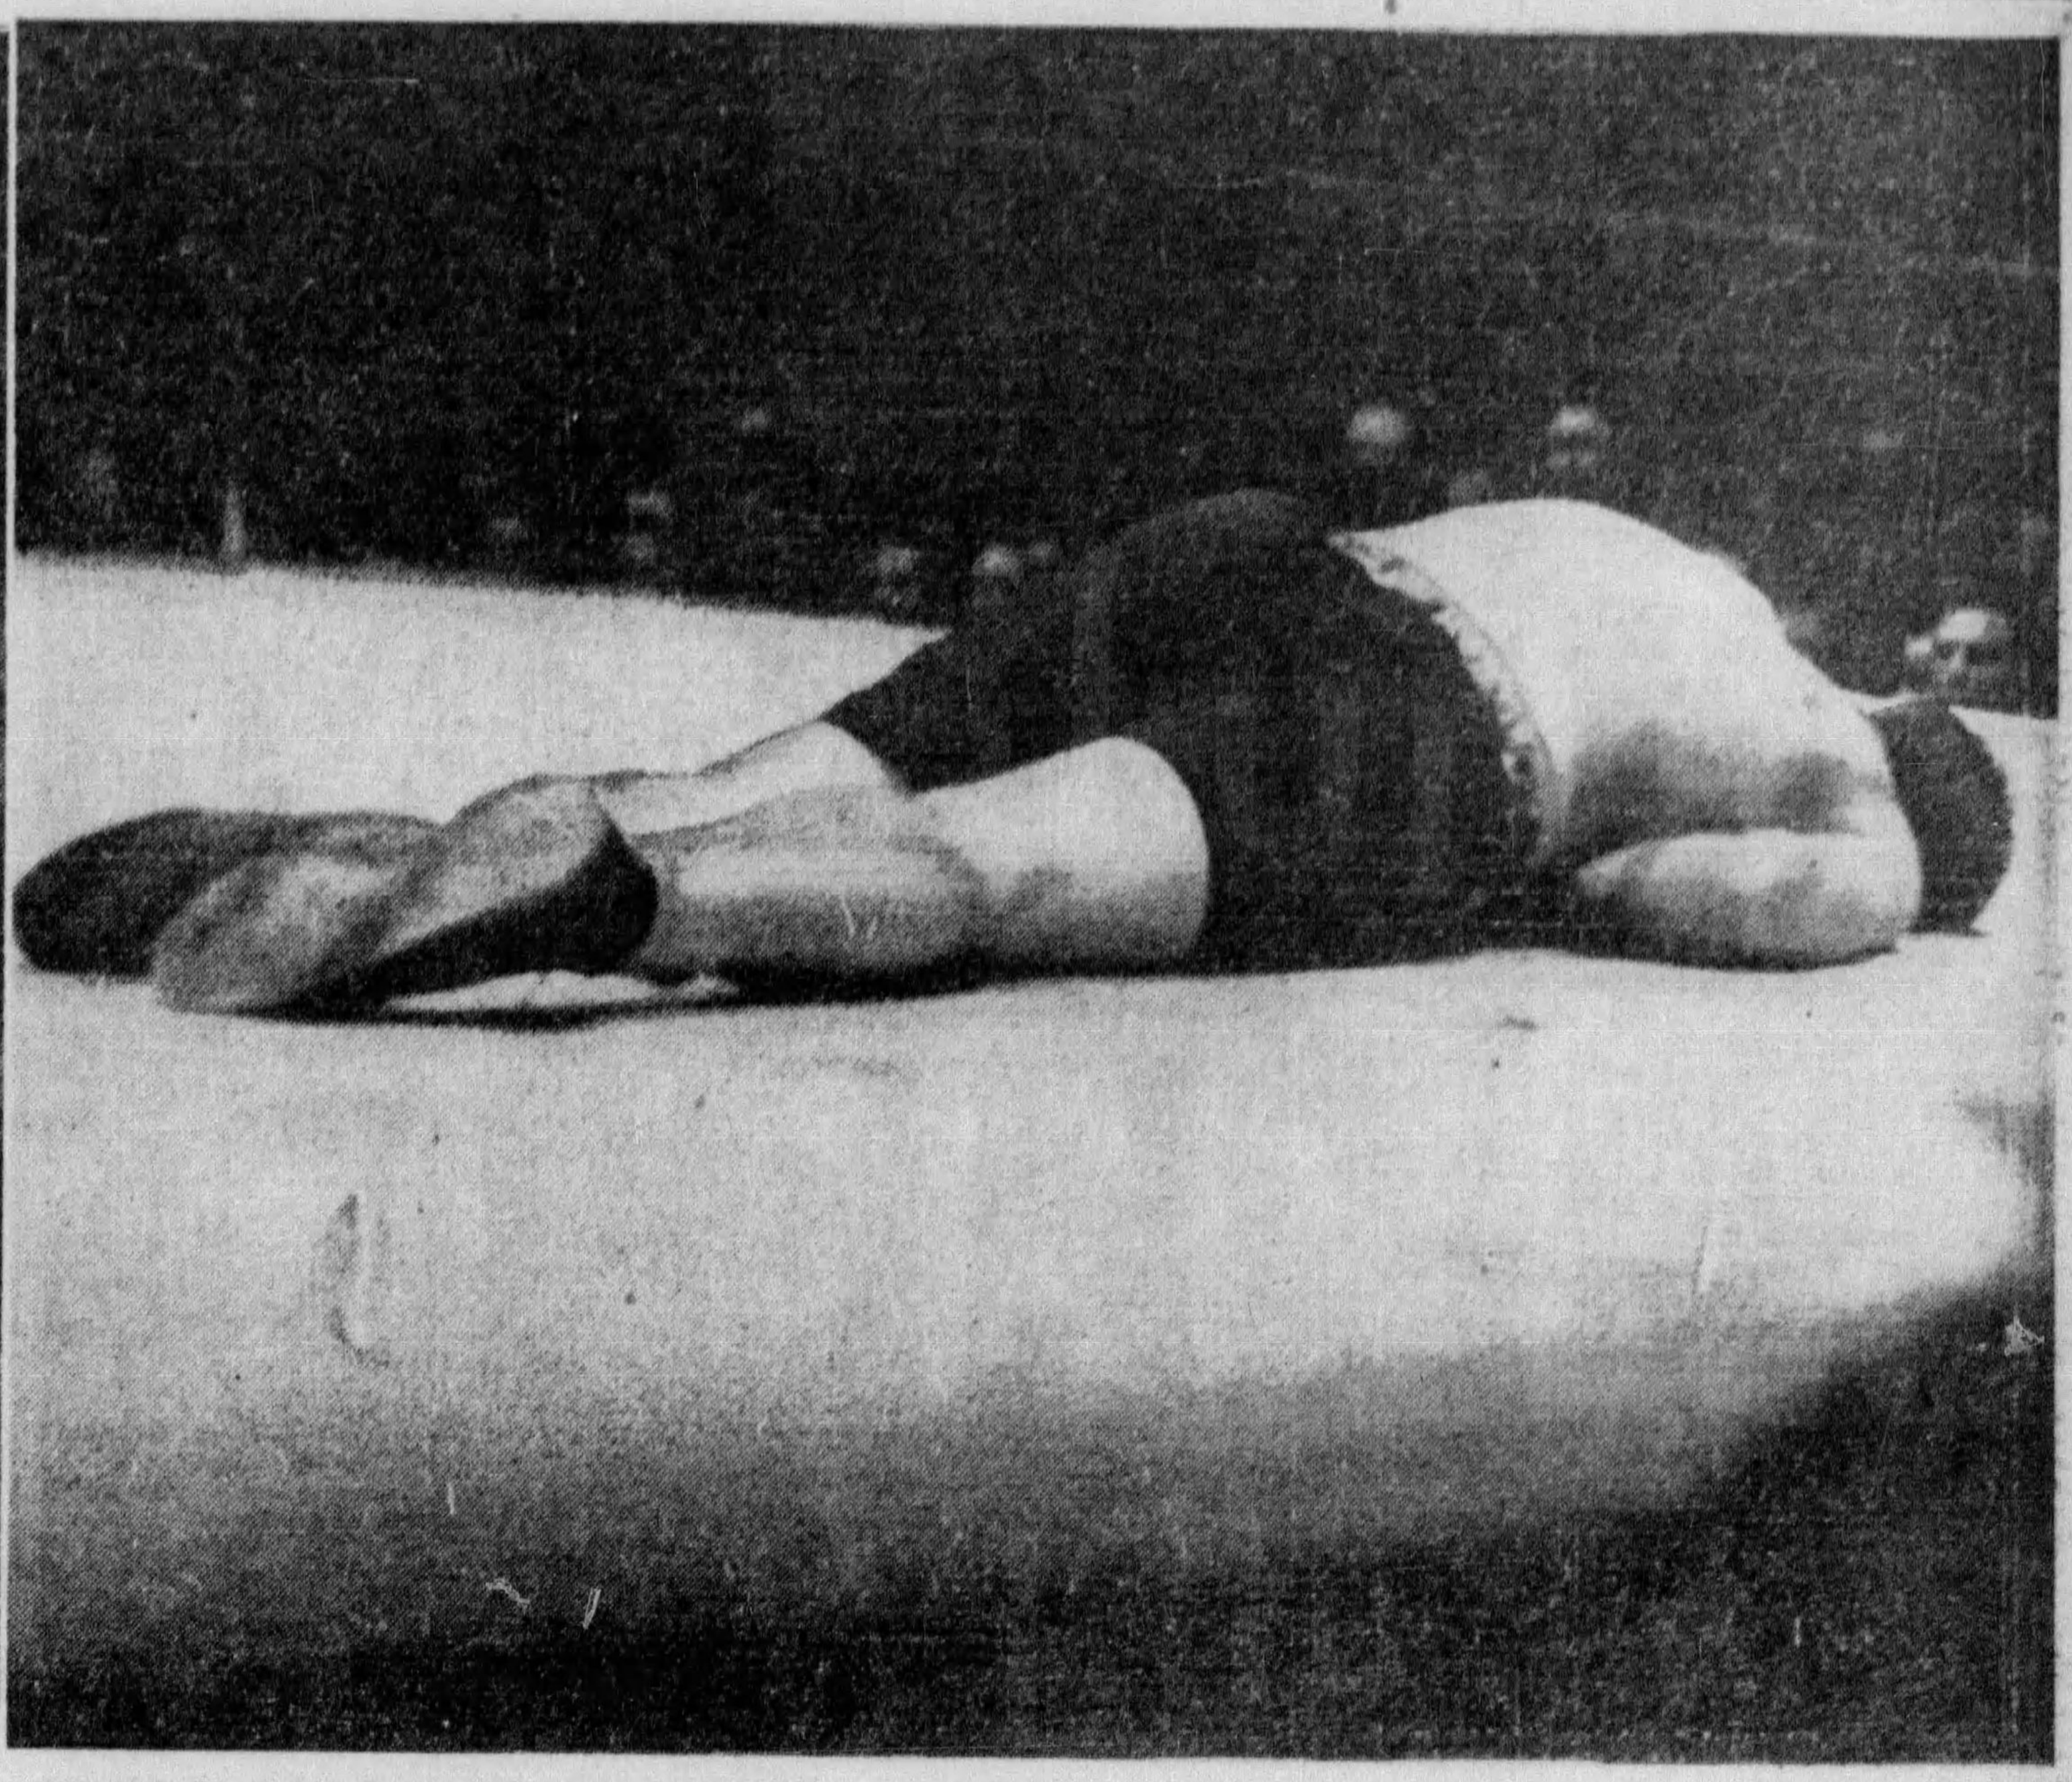
CARNERA CHAMP, BUT QUALITY AS RULER DEBATABLE



THE START OF THE SIXTH ROUND ..... SHARKEY CROUCHING TO ESCAPE CARNERA'S LEFT AS THEY SPAR IN MID-RING



THE FINISH OF THE ROUND AND OF THE FIGHT .... SHARKEY FLATTENED FOR THE COUNT AFTER STOPPING UPPERCUT

SPORTS

By JAMES J. LONG

Carnera May Reign Long. ♦ Best Shutout Records.
Uppercut Back in Game. Brown Has Background.
Foxx Makes 1,000th Hit. Track Records Periled.

JACK, AS USUAL, DOES WRONG THING

JACK SHARKEY at least was consistent. True to form to the last, he did the wrong thing. In practically every fight he ever lost, his defeat was due to some tactical blunder, and evidently he did not step out of character in his downfall before Primo Carnera last night, a result that causes the world heavyweight championship to pass from these shores to Europe for the second time since 1930. Whether due to his own eccentricities, or to the dazing effects of Carnera's earlier blows, Sharkey probably killed his chances by abandoning the caution and boxing skill that were winning for him, to become careless and unprotected in meeting the huge Italian in close at the only style at which Primo was dangerous.

Primo Carnera

But that takes nothing away from Carnera. It was all the more to his credit in the sense of ringcraft that he was able to make the former gob forsake the proper course and fight the way he wanted him to fight. Primo must be said to have won on his merits, through a vast fistic improvement to back up his tremendous size, and the new champion is entitled to all the glory that goes with the title, which he won by bringing back into the game the uppercut that had fallen into disuse in the heavyweight class since the days of Jack Johnson. It wont' be easy to take it away from him. He's no longer a mere freak. He's a real fighter now.

The only man except Romero Rojas and Jack Dempsey ever to knock out Sharkey, incidentally, Carnera made Sharkey's championship reign of one year and eight days the shortest on record in the heavyweight class since gloves came in, unless Marvin Hart, who was up less than eight months before Tommy Burns defeated him, may be counted a real champion.

JIMMY FOXX did more than smash out his nineteenth home run of the season yesterday and sew up the game in St. Louis for the A's. He also made the one thousandth basehit of his major league career. In fact, he went beyond the mark and added another safety to start him on his way to his second thousand.

Foxx played in 873 American League games to reach the four-figure circle. When he started off this season he had 923 hits to his credit and therefore needed 77 more. In 62 games he made 76 and was only one short of the 1,000 mark when he went into yesterday's contest, so that his two safe blows gave him a total of 1,001 for his career in the big show.

THIS TOTAL DOES not include 22 hits made by Foxx in world series games. He played through only five full American League campaigns prior to this year, as he was but a part-time performer for the A's in 1925-26-27.

Jimmy's complete major league record up to date shows that in 873 games he has been at bat 2,986 times and has scored 668 runs and made 1,001 hits, for a grand batting average of .336, which represents one hit in every three times at bat since he broke into fast company. His biggest year was 1932, when he made 213 safeties, an average of 1.38 hits per game. This year he is running slightly behind that record, with an average of 1.24 hits per game.

THOUGH MUCH IS being made of the shutout performances of Hal Schumacher and Oral Hildebrand this year, neither of those flingers, as a matter of fact, is threatening even mildly to break or equal any of the standing records for runless pitching. With the season practically half over, they are far from having accomplished 50 per cent of the shutout hurling required to parallel the existing marks. The major league high is 16 blanks in a season, registered by Grover Cleveland Alexander while in the service of the Phillies in 1916. The American League record is 13, set by Jack Coombs, of the A's, in 1910.

Grover Alexander

ALEXANDER ALSO SHARES in the National League record for consecutive shutouts, having delivered four in a row in 1911 to duplicate the string put over by Ed Reulbach, of the Cubs, three years earlier, but the mark for all major circuits is five straight, hung up in 1904 by Doc White, of the White Sox.

For number of scoreless innings pitched in succession, Walter Johnson's total of 56 for the Senators in 1913 never has been equaled in the big show. The best previous record was 44 innings by Reulbach in 1908. The record for consecutive scoreless innings pitched in one game is 21, set by Joe Oeschger for the Braves against the Dodgers in the 26-inning contest played on May 1, 1920. Leon Cadore pitched 20 straight runless innings in the same game.

THE CARDINAL OWNERS are said to have asked waivers on Dazzy Vance either in the hope that some major league club will take him off their hands at the waiver price, or with the idea of shipping him to the Rochester farm.

Vance could not be sent to a minor league club without his consent, however. The 10-year rule would be a bar. This is the veteran

KLEIN POISON TO GUESTS OF PHILLIES

PHILADELPHIA, June 30.—Chuck Klein continues to take on all comers at the Baker Bowl, no holds barred, and with hitting in the clinches a big feature. What to do with Klein is a problem that is causing all sorts of worry to seven major league pilots, as well as a score or more of the classy pitchers of the Heydler circuit who must do their stuff at the bandbox park where Chuckerino loves to strut his stuff.

Klein yesterday was the main reason when the Quakers hung a 6-to-4 plaster on the slumping Pirates, of Pittsburgh. There were eight other regulars in the Shotton lineup, but Klein stole the show cleverly by hitting in all six of the Philly tallies on two homers and a single. Chuck added another single to boost his batting average.

MEINE SLAB VICTIM

Heine Meine probably would have measured the Quakers for a defeat had Chuck been at some spot other than the Baker Bowl in the opening clash of the Pirates and Phillies. Klein tied up the game early with a single that scored a run. Up he came in the fifth with two of his mates on the sacks and he whistled a homer to deep center.

When he came up the next time he found one buddie on the sacks and Chuck deftly pulled a homer over the short fence.

ELLIOTT ROUTED

The Pirates scored a run in the first round and picked up another in the fifth. Big Jim Elliott was moving along in a fine clip until the last round when the Pirates shelled him off the hill, Flint Rhem rushing to the rescue of Elliott. The drive was halted after two runs were made.

Two Polo Battles Carded Tomorrow

Two attractive polo games are scheduled tomorrow afternoon. South Park and the 107th Field Artillery team will clash at Dickson Field tomorrow for the benefit of the Daniel W. Brooks Post No. 63 of the American Legion. David I. McCahill, Jr., will referee the match.

The Library and Fox Chapel teams will come together at the Library polo field at 6 o'clock. The field is located on route 88.

SHARKEY RISING BEFORE REFEREE CAN BEGIN COUNT IN THE SIXTH ROUND AFTER THE FIRST KNOCKDOWN BY CARNERA

SHARKEY ERRED, BAER SAYS

By MAX BAER

Challenger for Heavyweight Title
(Copyright, 1933, Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, June 30.—It was a great fight. The best I ever saw. Lots of excitement all along the route, with one of those moving picture climaxes. Like a melodrama, I'd say, except the big man, instead of the little one, did the winning.

I think where Sharkey made the mistake that cost him the fight and the title was when he passed up taking a nine count when he went down the first time in the final round. As I figured it, Jack wasn't badly hurt when two short punches by Carnera sent him sprawling to his knees.

But he was jolted hard enough to take advantage of a nine-second rest. Yet he jumped right up and tore into Carnera. The big fellow, waiting for him, blasted several times and that made Jack a little woozier. He tossed a few punches, took some in return and his knees began to joggle around. That told everybody that was watching that he was in danger.

I guess Jack realized it himself. He tried to get away from the battling against the ropes, ducked to his own right in trying to accomplish his purpose and Carnera had the golden chance for the short uppercut which he had been shooting with all night.

Dempsey, Tunney Opinions Differ

NEW YORK, June 30.—Two former world heavyweight champions today gave their opinions of the knockout scored by Primo Carnera over Jack Sharkey here last night.

Gene Tunney, who retired undefeated, blamed Sharkey's wildness for his defeat, while Jack Dempsey, whom Tunney defeated for the crown, was of the opinion that Carnera won the fight in the first round by his method of mixing it with the Boston Gob.

Sharkey Fourth Champion to Fall in '33

NEW YORK, June 30.—(AP.)—Jack Sharkey, knocked off his heavyweight throne by Primo Carnera last night, was the fourth generally recognized fistic titleholder to lose his crown in 1933.

Jackie Fields, welterweight titleholder, was the first to lose his championship, dropping the title to Young Corbett III in a 10-round bout at San Francisco, February 22. On May 29, at Los Angeles, Young Corbett was knocked out from under the crown in one round by Jimmy McLarnin.

Tony Canzoneri, ruler of the lightweights for three years, lost a disputed 10-round decision and the title to Barney Ross, at Chicago, June 23.

PRIMO RETURNS TO CAMP

POMPTON LAKES, N. J., June 28.—(INS.)—Primo Carnera, the new world heavyweight champion, returned to Pompton Lakes at 10:30 this morning for breakfast at Dr. Bier's camp, the scene of his intensive training for his battle with Jack Sharkey.

He was accompanied by his trainer, Billy DeFoe, and his brother, Savarino, and a party of friends. Primo himself drove a 16-cylinder car up from New York where he was met here by several state troopers.

The new champion appeared in a happy frame of mind. As soon as he entered the dining room he drank a pitcher of orangeade, and immediately settled down to a hearty breakfast. When asked what his plans were he said that he would probably leave for Italy next week to visit his parents.

RACE MEET CARDED

HAMILTON, O., June 30.—(AP.)—With the enactment of the state law legalizing pari-mutuel betting, the Hamilton Jockey Club has announced a 20-day race meeting at the Butler County fair grounds track starting August 5.

LOCAL ATHLETE MEET STAR

CHICAGO, June 30.—(AP.)—Jesse Owens, the latest sprinting sensation, met a master, the field event men monopolized the record-breaking, and the Texas Neighborhood A. C., won the national A. A. U. junior track and field championship at Soldier Field yesterday.

Owens, the fleet Negro from East Technical High School, of Cleveland, who equaled the world record for the 100-yard dash in the National Interscholastic championships two weeks ago, ran into Jimmy Johnson, another Negro from Illinois State Normal University, and took a beating in the 100 meters.

JOHNSON DOUBLE VICTOR

Johnson won by about two yards in the excellent time of 10.4 seconds, and came back later to win the 200 meters event even more easily in 21.6 seconds.

The track events were run over metric distances for the first time and all marks will go into the books as records. The field events, however, were measured as usual, in feet and inches.

Gordon Dunn, the big Stanford University star, gave the Olympic Club of San Francisco, an individual title and a new junior record in the shot put with a toss of 50 feet 1⅞ inches.

J. C. Petty, Jr., of the Texas Club, won the discus with a record heave of 148 feet 2⅛ inches, and Charles Modlezewski, Rhode Island State College star, established a junior mark of 168 feet 4 inches for the 16-pound hammer.

COOPER IN TIE

Nathan Blair, of Louisiana State, won the javelin with a record effort of 204 feet 4¼ inches. Cornell Cooper, of Pittsburgh, and Albert King, of Detroit, tied in the high jump at 6 feet 5 inches, sharing the fifth new mark.

The main event of the three-day track and field show, the forty-sixth renewal of the National A. A. U. senior championships, will be decided tonight under the floodlights.

FIGHT GROSSES $202,000

NEW YORK, June 30.—(INS.)—Jack Sharkey and Primo Carnera drew a gross gate of about $202,000 and net of $165,000, the smallest receipts for a heavyweight championship contest in recent years, it was revealed today in an early check-up by Madison Square Garden officials. Approximately 40,000 witnessed the bout.

The former champion's share will be 42½ per cent of the net, while Carnera will draw down 10 per cent of the net.

Both government and state taxes must be paid, which will further reduce the profits, if any. The milk fund, of which Mrs. William Randolph Hearst is chairman, will share in the proceeds.

The financial returns were disappointing to Garden officials, who estimated that the gross gate would hit $225,000. With more than $100,000 in the till yesterday morning, it was expected that the last-minute sale of tickets would send the receipts skyrocketing past the $225,000 mark. Carnera rooters, who were expected to buy up most of the unreserved seats, did not flock to the Bowl as expected.

PRIMO TRAILS UNTIL KAYO WALLOP

By HARRY KECK

Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, June 30.—There were three former heavyweight boxing champions in the Madison Square Garden bowl ring in Long Island City last night. Two of them, Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney, were introduced and less than a half hour later another one had joined their group as Jack Sharkey, of Boston, was counted out lying face downward along the ropes near his own corner in the sixth round, and Primo Carnera, of Italy, sometimes called the Man Mountan, became the new ruler of the fistic universe.

A right uppercut felled Sharkey for the count of 10 and he was dragged to his corner as Carnera celebrated by hugging and lifting his seconds and prancing about the ring.

SHARKEY FAR AHEAD

More by the grace of Sharkey's reverting to eccentric and contrary type than by any fighting excellence of Carnera was this result achieved, and there were some who thought Sharkey chucked the fight and the title and thus wrote finis to his checkered career.

For five rounds there was nothing to the fight but Sharkey. He led from the opening bell and was winning all by himself, taking every round. He was trying for a knockout and letting his punches go with such force that a number of times when he missed he went careening into the ropes, with the six-foot-six Carnera too stolid and slow to follow him and take advantage of his opportunities.

The former sailor, who won the title just a little more than a year ago on a disputed decision over Max Schmeling, of Germany, had no trouble outboxing his giant opponent, who outweighed him, 260½ pounds to 201. He outjabbed him and showered him with left hooks to the head and also solid digs with his left to the body and right swings to the body and overhand rights to the jaw. But he seldom hurt the big fellow, while he easily avoided or blocked Primo's attempts to counter against a defense of arms or elbows.

APPEARED EASY WINNER

The champion was fighting one of his best fights in those five rounds and looked like an easy winner of the decision or even equally by a knockout. Carnera, who was supposed to have improved remarkably since Sharkey defeated him two years ago, was equally slow, so slow, indeed, that a ringside wag drew a laugh from the crowd when, during the third round, he yelled:

"For gosh sakes, Primo, move those feet. Shift into second."

Then came the turning point, dramatically and suddenly, at the start of the sixth round. Sharkey backed to the ropes and Carnera followed and landed a left which sent Jack's head under the top rope. He then sent a right to the head as Sharkey pulled himself inside and followed him across the ring to the ropes on another side, and there crashed a left and a right to the head. Sharkey went to his knees, seemingly hurt, but got up without a count.

Jack moved out to the center of the ring and tried to cover as Primo continued his head punching. Then Sharkey rallied and went berserk, plunging forward and making his foe break ground before a series of looping rights to the head. They were the swings of a desperate man, and left their author wide open. Several of them found landing space on the Italian's jaw and for a moment it appeared as if Sharkey had weathered the storm, but he backed away and Carnera followed him and brought up a heavy uppercut and Sharkey went down on his face for the count. PROMOTERS SEEK CARNERA-BAER BATTLE

ANOTHER TITLE BOUT IN FALL IN PROSPECT

NEW YORK, June 30.—(INS.)—A mad scramble was underway today by promoters anxious to close for a bout between Primo Carnera, new heavyweight champion, and Max Baer, conqueror of Max Schmeling.

While Carnera is under contract to make his first title defense under the auspices of Madison Square Garden, Baer is controlled by the Garden's rival, Jack Dempsey. Unless the Garden can wean Baer away from Dempsey, it was believed today the Carnera-Baer fight would be staged under the joint promotion of the Garden and Dempsey. Jack was to confer with Garden officials on the proposition today.

Dempsey, who attended the Sharkey-Carnera fight last night in the company of Hannah Williams, musical comedy star, talked with Primo in the latter's dressing room five minutes after the fight ended last night.

Joe Foley, Chicago promoter, also was here today trying to line up the Carnera-Baer fight for Soldier Field, Chicago, in September.

Jack Sharkey, knocked out by Carnera last night, appeared to receive little consideration despite his statement that he was eager for a third meeting with Primo. Sharkey said:

"This defeat does not mean I will retire from the ring. I still believe I can defeat Primo. I expect him to give me another chance.

"I have defeated him and he has defeated me. A third fight is necessary to tell which is the better man."

By JAMES MILLER

The heavy rain that fell over the district early last evening may have brought relief to the farmers, but it was a pain in the neck (not the Gizzy variety) to Joe Mazer and Jules Beck, promoter and matchmaker, respectively, at the North Braddock Bowl. The downpour was sufficient to call off the show.

The entire card will be put on tonight.

In the final bout of a lengthy program of four 10-round encounters, Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, will be out to regain the prestige he held around these parts a short while back, as he tackles Billy Holt, Homewood Negro, who gave a creditable showing against Lew Raymond, of Baltimore, two weeks ago at Hickey Park, Millvale.

The semi-final fracas brings together two hard-punching heavies. In one corner will be Lloyd Clements, of Jeannette, and across the squared area from him shows Frank Novak, of Dutchtown, on the North Side. In his last showing at the Bowl, Clements tucked away Jack Pallat, of Cleveland, in a pullman fairly early. Novak also holds a win over Pallat.

Joe Doktor, of Buffalo, met up with a little automobile trouble yesterday afternoon and did not show up for the weighing in ceremonies, but he jabbed his way into a telephone booth near New Castle to inform the local promoter that he would be in town in time for his battle with Sunny Jim McVey, Bunny Buntach's 10-grand beauty. These two gladiators will do the second number.

Jimmy Thomas, Hill district Negro bantamweight, who always gives a good account of himself, tackles Nat Litfin, Jewish lad, in the opening setto. This bout, if past performances are a criterion, should run an excellent chance of stealing the show.

RACE DEADLINE NEAR

BUTLER, Pa., June 30.—Entries for the automobile races which will be staged at the local fair grounds track next Tuesday afternoon will be received at 1016 Silverdale street, Pittsburgh, until midnight tomorrow.

WOMEN'S GOLF TEAMS CLASH

By TOM BIRKS

Section championships in the Western Pennsylvania Women's Team League will be decided today.

The Section I teams, with Oakmont's strong squad in well night impregnable position, meet at Oakmont. Oakmont would have to lose all its points today to be tied. The Section II teams go into action at Highland.

Oakmont has been the class of the league all season. The team jumped away to an early lead, and has not been headed. Last year, Allegheny broke the winning streak of the Hulton outfit, but only for one season.

Picking the winner of the Section II race is a tough problem what with St. Clair, Shannopin and Longue Vue bunched together. The winner meets Stanton Heights in the playoff for the last berth in Section I next year.

This evening at 6:30 o'clock Vincent Eldred, of Highland, the Pennsylvania State open champion, will appear at the Sewickley Y. M. C. A. course in an exhibition foursome. Eldred will play with Frank Nash, of Highland, and will be opposed by Fred Brand, Jr., and Alfred Ford, champion of the Y. M. C. A.

Brand, who started his golfing career over this tough little layout, states that none of the players will break 78.

Mrs. C. E. Ryan and George Cochran led the field of 194 in the mixed foursome competition at Nemacolin yesterday, turning in a low gross score of 84.

Mary Moren and L. Sasso, also of Nemacolin, and Mrs. Guy Woodward and C. Hardy tied for the low net award with 73.

Playing at Atlantic City yesterday, Charles Wolff, of Highland, who, with his son, Regis, won the Western Pennsylvania Fathers and Sons' Association championship here Monday captured the National Retail Merchants' Association championship with a fine 82.

SUTTER BEATEN AT WIMBLEDON

WIMBLEDON, England, June 30. — (AP.) — George Patrick Hughes, fourth ranking English player, today summarily removed Cliff Sutter, third ranking American star, from the Wimbledon tennis championships with a surprising straight-set victory, 9-7, 7-5, 6-3.

The victory of Hughes was cleancut and well deserved. Gaining in confidence as the match progressed, he attacked at every opportunity, and effectively held control of the game through the last two sets.

Queen Mary made her first appearance at Wimbledon this year. She watched the matches with keen interest from behind a pair of large, smoked glasses, which shielded her eyes from the sun glare.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody continued her serene way toward her sixth Wimbledon title with a 6-3, 6-0 victory over the experienced French woman player, Mme. Sylvia Henrotin, in the quarter-finals of women's singles. The summary:

PRIMO CHAMP, BUT QUALITY DEBATABLE

END LOOKED FISHY

The sudden turning of the tide made the finish look fishy. Maybe it wasn't, but the fans, schooled to look for the unexpected from Sharkey, couldn't be blamed for thinking so, and many were the arguments on the genuineness of the knockout in the press section and among the fans as they filed out of the arena.

There was no question that Sharkey was hurt by that first left that sent his head under the top rope and also when he went down the first time, but there was some question about whether or not he could have got up the second time. Some were inclined to believe that he had become discouraged when his best punches failed to hurt his opponent and the going became tough and so took the easy way out to keep from getting hurt. After all, he is going on his thirty-first year, is a man of means and has a family of which he is inordinately fond.

Mayhap the very suggestion that this was the case is doing both Sharkey and Carnera an injustice, but the facts as viewed by the fans and news men at the ringside are merely being stated here. At any rate, Sharkey fought a sucker fight in that sixth and last round of the scheduled 15, after having demonstrated up to this time that all he needed to do was to keep on boxing to walk in with the decision.

SECOND BIG UPSET

It was the second big upset of the heavyweight dope within a month. Max Baer accounted for the first when he won by a technical knockout over Schmeling at the Yankee Stadium, and the Californian, who witnessed last night's fight, will get first crack at the new champion, possibly in the fall, more likely next summer.

Sharkey and Carnera failed to draw out the customers to the extent anticipated, about 40,000 attending, with gate receipts of about $200,000, well below the "take" for the Schmeling-Baer battle, which was promoted by Dempsey. The night was ideal, clear and not too warm.

Sharkey was the first to enter the ring, coming in at 9:32, wearing a large bath towel over his black trunks, with red stripes. Al Stillman, St. Louis heavyweight, was sitting in the ring waiting to box Tony Shucco, of Boston, and was chased out to make room for Sharkey, this battle being put off until after the main event. Carnera followed a minute later, keeping Sharkey waiting as he had done at the weighing ceremonies in the afternoon. He came in wearing a green bathrobe over tights similar to Sharkey's.

Dempsey climbed into the ring and shook hands with Sharkey and then with Carnera, and then was introduced to the crowd and received a big hand. He was dressed in white trousers, with blue coat and blue shirt and tie. As Tommy Loughran was being introduced, Gene Tunney was called into the ring and climbed over the four rows of press seats. He shook hands with the principals and also was introduced to the crowd.

Sharkey was introduced first and then Carnera and both were well received.

At the bell for the first round, Sharkey rushed out of his corner and then stopped and began to spar for an opening. He landed the first punch, a high left to the head. He was short with a right and covered. Carnera countered with a left and then brought up his right inside. Sharkey gritted his teeth and moved to close quarters and tried to pummel the body, but Carnera pushed him across the ring into the ropes. Jack came back with a series of blows to the body and head and then was pushed off balance into the ropes again.

It was evident from the manner in which Sharkey was throwing his body with his punches that he was trying for an early knockout, and he had the crowd with him.

A sneer adorned Sharkey's face as he came up for the second round and continued to stalk Carnera about the ring. He missed with a right to the head and clinched. He scored with another right and followed with a left hook as he moved in. Carnera just managed to pull his head back from another right and brought his own right up inside with a pushing motion. Primo was painfully slow and Sharkey closed in with a hard right to the body and sent home a left hook to the head with Primo on the ropes.

Carnera ran out of his corner for the third round and began to stab with his left. Sharkey crowded him back and sent in right and left to the head. Carnera was warned for roughing. Sharkey rushed him to the ropes with a right to the head, but Carnera punched away with both fists at close quarters and had the better of the exchange.

JACK FORCES FIGHTING

In the fourth Sharkey did all of the forcing until he slowed his pace toward the end and permitted Carnera to get in a few blows.

Starting the fifth round, Sharkey backed up and drew in the Italian for a solid left hook to the body. Carnera was warned again by the referee, this time for hitting on a break. Sharkey was boxing beautifully and making Carnera lead and miss and he suddenly shot over a right to the head with plenty of zip and drew a roar from the crowd.

Followed then the strange sixth round and the finish of Sharkey as a champion, if not entirely as a fighter.

The New York Boxing Commission returned to the system of announcing the individual votes of the judges and referee of all bouts, elaborating to the extent of giving their reasons for their decisions, and the plan worked out nicely, with Harry Balough making a good master of ceremonies through the loudspeaker in the absence of Joe Humphries, the veteran announcer, who is convalescing from a stroke.

Bob Moody, Negro heavyweight, of Boston, who got his start as an amateur around Freeport, Pa., won over Harold Mays, New Jersey veteran, and Frankie Greene, of Wyoming, who recently showed at the Arena in Pittsburgh, fought a draw with Hans Birke in two of the feature preliminaries.

Postmaster General Jim Farley, former member of the New York Boxing Commission, was among the distinguished personages at the ringside. The show was sponsored by Mrs. William Randolph Hearst's milk fund, which participated in the receipts.

Sharkey-Carnera Battle Round by Round

NEW YORK, June 30.—(AP.)—The round-by-round description of the Jack Sharkey-Primo Carnera heavyweight championship fight at Long Island City last night follows:

ROUND ONE

Incensed, the champion flailed back with both hands, landing a left and right to Carnera's head, but again the tremendous Italian heaved him across the ring into the ropes.

Sharkey took Carnera's right to the body and banged a right off the Italian's chin as the bell sounded.

ROUND TWO

Carnera led with his left and smothered Sharkey as the champion drove to close quarters. Sharkey bounced his right off Primo's chest and grunted as he flung a long right that missed.

Another terrific right to the jaw didn't miss and Carnera bounced back into the ropes. Sharkey's right cracked on Carnera's chin. Primo enveloped the champion in his huge arms as Sharkey tried to get a punch at his body.

Sharkey was searching for an opening, with Carnera pinned against the ropes, as the gong sounded.

ROUND THREE

Sharkey was constantly moving around, feinting for openings. He got Carnera set, but his right bounced from the Italian's defending left arm.

Again Sharkey flung himself in and, as Carnera's arms flailed about, missing him with a dozen punches, the champion drove a furious right to the head and a hard left hook to the body.

Carnera was falling back on the defensive as Sharkey looped over a left to the head, feinted to bring Carnera's arms up, and smashed his left into the Italian's side.

Sharkey drove a hard right to the body, but Carnera roughed him with both hands about the head as he pushed him along the ropes.

ROUND FOUR

Carnera stuck out his left hand, but Sharkey slipped under it, pulled away from three more stabs, and shot inside for a quick volley into the Italian's body.

Standing back with his left poised, Carnera took two hard lefts to the head and a right to the body before he managed to rough Sharkey enough in close to draw a warning from Referee Donovan.

They matched left jabs and Carnera suddenly swung a hard right to the head. Carnera grabbed Sharkey's left hand, pulled him in and belted his head with both hands, drawing a warning for holding and hitting, then another for backhanding.

ROUND FIVE

Sharkey poked at Carnera's body with a left until he drew the giant's fists down, but Primo put his hands up in time to block a hard shot to the chin. As Sharkey banged a left to the body Carnera grabbed him, held him and banged him with his free hand, drawing another warning from the referee. Sharkey smashed his left to the Italian's ribs again.

Carnera hooked two lefts to Sharkey's jaw, but the champion feinted his hands down and smashed a terrific right to the giant's temple.

Carnera wabbled, but he held and recovered quickly as Sharkey failed to fight clear of his tremendous arms. Sharkey was right back on him, swinging lefts to the head, his right cocked for a finisher.

ROUND SIX

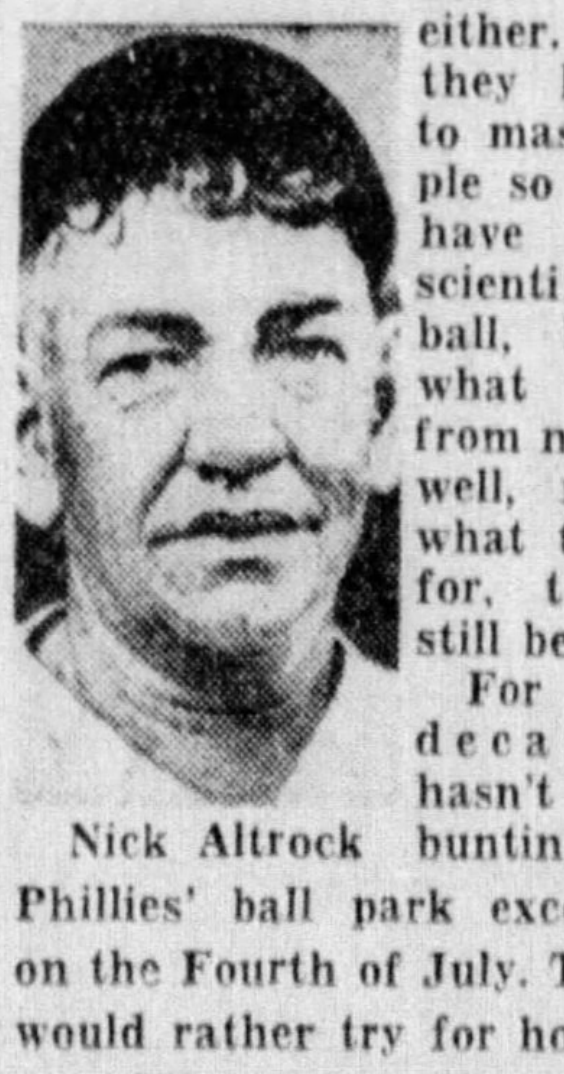
Bending low, Sharkey stabbed up into the Italian's face, then hooked two lefts to the body. Carnera drove in with both hands, catching Sharkey off balance, and as he thumped the champion around the ring Sharkey slipped to the floor. He came up without a count.

Carnera held the champion off with his left and ripped four ponderous rights to Sharkey's body. A right uppercut floored Sharkey and he was counted out.

BASEBALL COMEDY

—By NICK ALTROCK—

DETROIT, June 30.—I just heard an expert diagnose the Phillies' trouble this season and it ain't sleeping sickness or permanent blindness, either. He says they have tried to mash the apple so hard they have neglected scientific baseball, but that's what they'll try from now on. Oh, well, no matter what they go in for, they will still be the Phils.



Nick Altrock

For the last decade there hasn't been any bunting at the Phillies' ball park except maybe on the Fourth of July. Those birds would rather try for homers than a sacrifice, even if they lammed into a triple play. But, of course, trying for homers isn't a bad proposition because the Phils' park was the former site of a popcorn stand.

But I honestly can't imagine the Quakers pulling scientific stuff at the bat. Still, I never thought I'd live to see Al Smith a Harvard man.

DAZED, BEATEN GOB SAYS HE WON'T QUIT

NEW YORK, June 30.—(AP.)—Slowly and painfully, Jack Sharkey made his way last night from the site that was both the scene of his coronation and downfall, and, after shaking off the effects of Primo Carnera's paralyzing right uppercut, he declared he would fight again. He said:

"Will I hang up my gloves? I won't hang them up. I'm going to fight again, maybe in a couple of weeks, when I am not so rusty. That's what is wrong with me now."

His statement that he intended to remain active in the ring, however, was far from being a ringing declaration of purpose.

SHARKEY IN DAZE

It may be that Sharkey was still dazed when he denied that h[illegible] boxing career had ended. He certainly did not know what was going on when his saddened handlers led him into the dressing room.

An icy shower, plus repeat[illegible] drenching of his feet, drove t[illegible] last traces of fog from Sharkey['s] brain. He asked:

"How did it happen? Wha[t] round was it? How was I doing?"

"Well, an ex-champion. Perhaps it would have been bette[r] if it happened the first time. He'll have the headaches now."

PRIMO EXPLAINS BLOW

A secret right uppercut, practiced in utmost privacy, the punch everybody said he didn't have, was the blow that brought the heavyweight championship of the world to Primo Carnera. Sitting in his dressing room, Primo said:

"Every day I practice it for months. Nobody thought Primo had uppercut. I show 'em, hah?

"I felt better every round. I just feeling good when he went down. He never hurt me once.

"I fight anybody now—Baer, Schmeling, anybody. I whip anybody they say. Primo's champion of the whole world."

JACK ARRIVES HOME

BOSTON, June 30.—(INS.)—Jack Sharkey, dethroned heavyweight boxing champion, at the wheel of his sports roadster, and with Mrs. Sharkey at his side, arrived at his Chestnut Hills home today after a seven-hour run from New York, where he was kayoed by Primo Carnera.

Jack said he was "feeling fit," but had no amplification of his statement made in New York that he wanted "another shot at Carnera."

Jack was far from downcast upon his arrival home today, and apparently had fully recovered from the shock of being knocked out by the giant Italian.

YANKEES TIE NATS FOR LEAD IN AMERICAN

GIANTS LOSE GAME, GROUND TO CARDS

Associated Press.

Taking divergent paths toward the top, the New York Yankees and St. Louis Cardinals have resumed their courses toward the leading places in the major leagues which they lost not so long ago.

Seizing upon the first sign of slackening in Washington's winning streak, the Yanks battered their way back into a tie for the American League lead yesterday at the expense of the Cleveland Indians. The Cards opened a direct attack on the New York Giants, and walloped the National League leaders, 7-3.

The Yanks did a great job of bunching their blows against Cleveland to win, 9-3. Lefty Gomez was effective in the pinches and Babe Ruth set the batting pace for the fourth straight New York victory.

TIGERS BEAT NATS

The Senators, meanwhile, bowed 5-4 to the Detroit Tigers. After tying the count in the ninth, the Senators kicked the game away in the last half of the frame when Bill McAfee gave a walk and booted Heinie Schuble's sacrifice to set the stage for Gerald Walker to drive in the deciding run.

The Cardinals assault consisted largely of a six-run assault on Bill Clark in the third inning.

With Lefty Grove on the hill, the Philadelphia Athletics defeated the St. Louis Browns 4-1. Jimmy Foxx hit his nineteenth homer.

The revived Phillies, paced by Chuck Klein, continued to knock off the National League's first division clubs as they hung a 6-4 defeat on the third-place Pittsburgh Pirates. Klein knocked in all six runs with two homers and two singles.

CUBS SOCK DODGERS

The combination of Guy Bush's steady pitching and an 11-hit attack on Walter Beck gave the Chicago Cubs a 7-2 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers as Babe Herman, a former Dodger, hit a homer with two aboard to start his team off toward victory.

Rain halted the Boston-Chicago American League encounter while the Braves and the Cincinnati Reds had an off day in the National.

Douthit Refuses To Join Kansas City

NEW YORK, June 30.—(AP.)—Rather than be sent to a minor league club, Taylor Douthit, fleet outfielder of the Chicago Cubs, says he'll quit baseball.

The Cubs announced a deal yesterday whereby Douthit would go to the Kansas City American Association club in exchange for Jim Mosolf, formerly with the Pittsburgh Pirates. Douthit said he wouldn't report to Kansas City but would retire to his home in Oakland, Cal., instead.

COUNTY NET DOUBLES PLAY UNDER WAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

First and second round men's and women's singles and men's doubles contests comprise a lengthy card of activity this afternoon and evening as the revival of the Allegheny County tennis championships enters second day of hostilities on the 12 clay courts of the Westinghouse Club, Greensburg pike, Wilkinsburg. The man-to-man event, inaugural feature of the program, divides attention with the masculine dual and feminine singles.

A heavy downpour of rain just prior to the dinner hour yesterday abbreviated the opening bill no little. Thirteen matches, including three defaults, were disposed of in the course of the session.

With the lone exception of the defeat of Coraopolis Al McCabe by youthful Bill Peterson, Willoughby, O., darkhorse, 7-5, 7-5, early frays adhered to the form sheets. Bob Grier, of Rockwood, tossed scare into Russ Unger, redoubtable Stantonian, but the rangy Heightsman ultimately threw in the clutch to out-steady his slim portside rival and carry off 4-6, 6-3, 6-3 decision. Jack Hammer, Greensburg premier, likewise encountered a fast one, Andy Smeaton, former Duke leader, making his 1933 debut by pushing the cagy Westmorelander to 6-0, 4-6, 6-2.

Twenty-three men's doubles teams and an even dozen women's singles entrants make up the fields in this afternoon's lid-lift divisions. Dr. John and Dr. Dave O'Loughlin, West Penn victors last Monday, are seeded atop a group of four squads in the dual mixing.

Margaret Carspecken, three-way Western Pennsylvania winner, heads the women's seeded quartet. The summary:

pitcher's twelfth season in the big show, and if waived on he would be entitled to an unconditional release.

WILLIAM J. BROWN, who has succeeded William Muldoon on the New York State Athletic Commission, is 59, a tall, white-haired Irishman, and well remembered in Eastern boxing circles for the fight club he used to operate in Twenty-third street, near Sixth avenue, in New York. It was there that the "both members of this club" era had its beginning. Brown started his association with boxing as a masseur. After that he operated his own club, became a prominent referee, and then ran a health farm in Garrison, N. Y. The new commissioner was reputed to be one of the most courageous referees in the East. He resigned for two reasons, one being an alleged failure by Tex Rickard to live up to an agreement after the Joe Lynch-Jack Sharkey bantamweight fight.

THE OTHER REASON why Brown retired as a referee had to do with the introduction of two judges to help decide contests. "If a referee can't give the decision without the help of others, he isn't fit to be the third man in the ring," Brown declared.

At his fight club, Muldoon's successor was proprietor, promoter, matchmaker and referee. When the boxers didn't show enough action he would stop the show and announce that patrons could get their money back at the box office. Once he threatened to toss a champion out of the ring for stalling. When Bat Masterson, Western bad man, came East to be a boxing writer, Brown told the killer to pull in his horns or have them clipped.

TRACK AND FIELD dopesters will not be surprised if the A. A. U.'s senior national championship meet at Soldier Field in Chicago tonight develops into one of the greatest record-smashing carnivals of recent years.

Ralph Metcalfe

In view of the rare form shown by the leading stars in previous games this season, and the prospect that they will be spurred to their best efforts by keen competition, it is expected that new marks will be hung up both on the cinder path and the field events to the extent of possibly half a dozen.

A SPRINT CLASSIC looms in the meeting of the Negro speed sensations, Ralph Metcalfe and Jesse Owens. Both recently did 100 yards in 9.4 seconds to equal the world record. The metric system will be used in the A. A. U. meet, and at the longer distance of 100 meters Metcalfe may have an edge by reason of his being stronger than his high school rival. But it ought to be a race for the books, regardless of the winner. Another thrilling number, with a possible new record, will be assured if, as proposed, Glenn Cunningham, Gene Venzke and Bill Bonthron are brought together at 1,500 meters. The high jump mark will be in peril with George Spitz opposed by Howard Spencer, Geneva Negro; Willis Ward, another Negro athlete from Michigan and a star all-around performer, and Van Osdel, Pacific Coast ace. There is the same strong promise of record-breaking in the pole vault, which will present a three-cornered battle among such luminaries as Bill Graber, Bill Miller and Keith Brown.

PRIMO DODGES ADMIRERS

NEW YORK, June 30.—(INS.)—Primo Carnera was dodging the well-wishers who flocked to his hotel today to congratulate him on winning the world heavyweight championship.

Up early and out of his suite before the crowd arrived, Primo left word at the desk that he had "just gone out at 8 o'clock," but left no information as to his destination or return.

Wilmer Hines Scores Upset in Net Tourney

HAVERFORD, Pa., June 30.—(AP.)—Wilmer Hines, of North Carolina, scored a major upset in the National Intercollegiate tennis championship here yesterday when he defeated Martin Buxby, of Texas, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3, to enter the semi-finals.

The other three survivors are Jack Tidball, of the University of California at Los Angeles; Dick Murray, of Hamilton, and Earl Kamrath, of Texas.

Sharkey Looked Great—Then Forgot to Look

By "BUGS" BAER

NEW YORK, June 30.—In an amazing finish to an amazing fight Primo Carnera kicked over the dope chart, knocked off Jimmy Johnston's straw hat and laid away Jack Sharkey with one right uppercut.

The Primo brought that right up from the sub-basement. When Sharkey stuck his chin into the elevator shaft the next thing he knew he was surf-boarding in the cool waves off Honolulu.

He went down and laid there like a planked shad. The only thing lacking was a little parsley in his ears. There was not a chance of him getting up. He was still picking at the blankets when Referee Arthur Donovan got to 10. Some day he will have an educated referee who can go as far as 20 and give a guy a fair chance.

Sharkey looked like a champion in four of the five first rounds. He got to Carnera with hooks to the body. But in the sixth he made the mistake of getting too close to the concrete mixer. Primo pushed him around where he wanted him and then let go the anchor with plenty of chain on it.

It was a pip of a punch and would have made a brewery chimney bend in the middle. They always said that Primo can't handle his mitts well enough to suffle cards. But the uppercut he landed under Sharkey's chin last night was as pretty a punch we have seen since the last time we talked back to a Philadelphia cop.

Primo cleared up the heavyweight situation a lot. Further more he saved the judges the trouble of giving a variety of decisions. The fans like to see the heavyweight championship transferred on a kayo.

The only think approaching a foul was a backhander by Primo in the third. But that was all right. He apologized before he did it.

Sharkey looked good in the second, third and fourth. He looked good in the fifth. But he forgot to look in the sixth.

Anybody who attempts to fight close with Primo is going to get more beating in a round than a country school teacher hands out all winter. Primo spins them like an adagio dancer with one hand and clouts them with the other. In the last round Sharkey's head was outside the ropes three times before he bit off the end of Primo's glove and discovered it wasn't an egg plant.

STUDENTS SEE NIGHT COURT

Among the spectators in Magistrate Leo Rothenberg's night court were 15 students of sociology of the University of Pittsburgh summer school.

The students, accompanied by Prof. D. B. Rogers, obtained an intimate study of the prisoners, many of them habitual offenders. Prof. Rogers decided on the court attendance for his class after listening to the hearings on a previous night. Rothenberg told the students night court was established to enable the magistrate to delve into the social problems of each prisoner. He said:

"Night court enables me to have a heart-to-heart talk with persons arrested for minor offenses. They possess a spark of goodness and perhaps can be urged to correct their faults."

Contract Bridge -:- -:-

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Simple Defensive Play

There are certain types of plays used in defending against notrump contracts that are part of the bag of tricks of any good card player. Some of these plays, however, simple and obvious as they may seem after being explained, are not known by a great many people who pride themselves on their Bridge games.

An opportunity for making one of these plays occurred in the following hand, which was played in the recent Westchester Championships.

South, Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.

	North
	♠A 10 3 ♡9 8 2 ◇A Q 7 6 ♣10 8 5
West ♠9 8 7 ♡J 6 5 4 ◇9 8 3 ♣4 3 2		East ♠J 6 4 2 ♡A Q 7 ◇K 5 4 ♣A 9 6
	South ♠K Q 5 ♡K 10 3 ◇J 10 2 ♣K Q J 7

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♣	Pass	1◇	Pass
1NT	Pass	2NT	Pass
3NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

The bidding does not require any particular comment. South's three-notrump bid was slightly optimistic, but this particular South player was in the habit of making the most out of his notrump contracts, and, as a result, had great confidence in his ability to play them.

West was at a loss for an Opening lead with his worthless hand. He had an idea that a waiting lead would probably be the best, but, not being able to decide on spades, diamonds or clubs, he compromised and opened his fourth-best heart. A low heart from Dummy was played and at this very first trick the East player made the play which marked him as being way above the average. East knew that with his own 3 honor-tricks his partner's hand was pretty surely devoid of entries. In addition he saw hope of defeating the contract if 3 heart tricks could be won as well as the club Ace and diamond King. He also knew that Declarer probably held the King of hearts and that if he, East, went up with his Ace, Declarer would probably be able to duck the second round of the suit and win the third round. East on the first heart trick, therefore, played his Queen, realizing that if his partner and not Declarer held the heart King, his Queen would win the first trick anyway.

At this point Declarer could have made a star play which would have counteracted East's very fine defense. South, had he been able to see the opponents' hands, would have ducked this first heart lead and then proceeded to make his contract. However, he had no way of knowing who had the heart Ace and the play of ducking the first trick would appear to be far too risky, as it would then be possible to lose the first 5 heart tricks, or, at the least, the first 4 tricks in that suit. South, therefore, was content to win the first heart trick with the King, hoping that the hearts were not too unevenly divided and the diamond finesse would work.

Of course, the rest of the play is quite apparent. The heart suit did break but the diamond finesses went wrong and since East now had, in addition to the heart Ace, a small heart to put his partner on lead, the contract was defeated 1 trick. That is, the defense took 1 club, 1 diamond and 3 heart tricks.

With the Ace of hearts winning the first trick, the fulfillment of the contract would have been a simple matter despite the loss of the diamond finesse, as by merely holding up his King on the second round of the suit, Declarer would have completely killed the East hand.

TODAY'S QUESTION

You hold

♠Q54 ♡AQ972 ◇QJ6 ♣93

Both sides are vulnerable; no score. The Dealer bids one spade. You are Second Hand. What do you bid?

Answer—Pass. The hand is too weak in playing strength to justify a vulnerable Overcall. Two hearts may be doubled and conceivably set anywhere from 600 to 1800 points.

SUICIDE'S WIFE WOUNDED

BRYN MAWR, Pa., June 30.—(AP.)—Mrs. Robert I. Brown, whose socially prominent husband committed suicide 16 months ago, was taken to a hospital last night with wounds she said were inflicted by a family friend.

Police said the friend denied this, and contended Mrs. Brown inflicted the wounds upon herself.

Mrs. Brown suffered a severely gashed wrist. Detectives said the slashing occurred at the friend's home. She is the widow of Robert Irwin Brown, who ended his life in Baltimore.

Mrs. Brown is the former Rosanna B. McGowan, heiress of a considerable estate. Hospital attendants said they do not consider her condition serious.

GUARD TO MARK 'BIRTHDAY'

Regimental Day, unofficial birthday of the 107th Field Artillery, will be observed at the Hunt Armory, Emerson street, East End, tonight, beginning with adjutant's call at 8:15 p. m.

As a tribute to Sergt. James A. Gormley, 6744 Atwell street, a veteran of the Spanish War, retiring after 40 years of service, the regiment will pass in review.

Other events on the program include trick riding and training demonstrations.

O'BRIEN WILL BE N. Y. CANDIDATE

NEW YORK, June 30.—(AP.)—Mayor John P. O'Brien yesterday announced his candidacy for reelection.

O'Brien, who was a surrogate, was elected last year at a special election to serve out the last year of the term for which James J. Walker had been elected.

When Walker resigned, Joseph V. McKee automatically became acting mayor. There was a strong movement to have McKee run for the office at the special election, but Tammany put up O'Brien instead. McKee, a non-Tammany Democrat, received a large write-in vote.

O'Brien's recent tax proposals have raised a popular storm of protest and much speculation has been printed as to the likelihood of Tammany backing him for reelection.

Correct Manners

Club Letter

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am secretary of a club and right now several members are not attending our meetings. I have been asked to send them letters, but I am in doubt as to how I should word the letters. Please help me. H.

Something like this might be a suggestion:

Dear Miss Armstrong:

It is such a special pleasure when you come to the meetings of the ——— Club, and we have missed you so much lately from our meetings, that the club has asked me, as secretary, to write you to urge you to come to the meetings oftener. We realize that you have been very busy lately, but we do so very much hope that now you will be able to find the time to be with us. We are planning some especially interesting meetings for the coming weeks, and we wish, most heartily, to have you with us. Do say that you can come . . . we shall be looking forward to seeing you with great pleasure.

All the members send best wishes and friendly greetings to you. Cordially yours,

Correct Attire

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are two girls and have been invited to our boy friends' graduation exercises. Please tell us the proper things to wear, as the exercises will be held in the morning, a ball game in the afternoon and dinenr in the evening.

RUTH AND MILLIE.

This is a rather large order, isn't it, to choose something that will be appropriate for these three so-different events? I believe that a chiffon ensemble, plain or printed, would be the most appropriate costume that you could choose to be suitably dressed for these events. Don't choose one that is too light, or, on the other hand, too dark. A very light weight crepe would be appropriate, too, if you prefer this to chiffon. But I do think that the ensemble idea is a good one, for you could wear this with the jacket or cape for the daytime events, and without the jacket for the informal dinner.

SAW MILL RUN JOB PARLEY TO BE HELD

A conference will be held soon by city, county and state officials to determine whether they can cooperate in completing the western terminus of Saw Mill Run boulevard and improving Banksville road from the West End to the Dormont-Mt. Lebanon line.

This was decided yesterday after the County Commissioners had listened to appeals by delegations from Greentree, Mt. Lebanon, Banksville and the West End for the two improvements and an alternate proposal of spending $200,000 for traffic relief in the West End. The two large improvements could be completed at a total cost of more than $2,025,000, engineers informed the Commissioners.

The Banksville road project would cost approximately $825,000, including $100,000 for property damage. The boulevard extension would cost $1,200,000, the $200,000 being for property damage, according to E. L. Schmidt, county planning engineer.

WEST END WORK URGED

Henry Tranter, of the West End Board of Trade, said that while everyone in the western section of the county was anxious to have the boulevard extended, he hoped the Commissioners would spend about $200,000 immediately to relieve traffic on West Main street.

He suggested that Neptune street, which runs parallel with Main street, be widened and connected with Main street near the ramp of the North Side-West End Bridge. Tranter said this improvement would be a part of the extension of the boulevard.

Several other residents of the district also advocated the improvement.

Chairman C. C. McGovern remarked that the ramp at the West End-North Side Bridge was one of the worst bungles ever committed by the engineers, saying:

"The county took entirely too much property, and that ramp will be in bad shape for years to come."

PUTS IT UP TO CITY

McGovern pointed out that both improvements asked would be in the city. He declared it cost the county $500,000 to have the city extend Saw Mill Run boulevard from the Liberty Tubes to Banksville road. He said the money was a gift from the county.

Henry Kloss, district engineer for the State Highway Department, said his department had $300,000 to spend on city work last year, which reverted to the state because the city did not match it.

A dozen other residents of the South Hills district spoke in behalf of the projects, including the Rev. W. P. Varner, of Banksville; William H. Heselbarth, Harry Hershberger, James Cox, Frank Baker and Stanley Hershberger.

ROAD JOB AID ASKED

Fifteen residents of the Allegheny Valley Chamber of Commerce appeared and asked help in improving the Freeport road from the New Kensington Bridge to the Tarentum Borough line.

They plan to hold another meeting after a conference with the officials of the Allegheny Street Railways Company on whether the company will assist in the improvement, by paving its right of way or using buses instead of trolleys.

AGENCY TO VIEW SHIPPED FOOD

To eliminate competitive waste and duplicate service, the Pennsylvania Railroad and other lines in this district tomorrow will turn over the work of inspecting incoming shipments of produce at their freight terminals to the Railroad Perishable Inspection Agency.

The agency, a joint bureau recently formed by all eastern carriers, will inspect perishables and supervise the work of re-coopering broken crates and packages.

The inspection service is maintained by the railroads to keep a close check on movement of perishable commodities.

Company officials said inspectors employed by the railroads will be continued in the work by the agency.

Children's Bureau Faces Cut in Work

Refusal of new cases and elimination of some now under its care will be necessary by the Children's Service Bureau of Allegheny County due to the fact that the budget is $3,000 overdrawn, Miss Susan Boyd, executive secretary, said.

The announcement was made following an appeal to the Welfare Fund for $11,000 to aid in carrying on work of the bureau.

BONDS TO PLAY BIG PART IN HOME AID

(This is the fourth of a series of articles discussing the home owners' loan act of 1933, and explaining the procedure necessary for individuals to take advantage of federal assistance to protect the ownership of their homes.)

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor

The Home Owners' Loan Corporation is authorized to issue $2,000,000,000 of bonds. These will bear interest at a rate not to exceed 4 per cent. Their interest is guaranteed by the United States government, but not the principal.

The bonds will mature within a period of not more than 18 years. They are to provide the medium for assistance of home owners who are threatened with the loss of their homes or who have lost them.

For a period of three years the corporation is authorized to acquire in exchange for these bonds home mortgages and other obligations or liens secured by real estate under the conditions described in yesterday's article.

HOLDER MUST AGREE

In other words, in a case where foreclosure is threatened, the corporation is authorized to take over the mortgage and to pay for it with the bonds which it is authorized to issue. It must be realized, however, that the holder of the mortgage must agree to this transaction.

This phase is important. The act does not force the mortgage holder to accept this settlement. It is believed, however, that in many cases where payments on mortgages have been in arrears, the holder would be willing to exchange his claim for bonds with guaranteed interest and with a reasonable expectation for payment of the principal.

CASH ADVANCES

In connection with any such exchange of bonds for mortgages, the corporation is authorized to make advances in cash to pay taxes and assessments on real estate, to provide for necessary maintenance and to make necessary repairs and to meet incidental expense of the transaction.

In addition it may pay not exceeding $50 to the holder of the mortgage for any sum which may be the difference between the face value of the bonds exchanged plus the accrued interest and the purchase price of the mortgage. This indicates that the bonds probably will be issued in denominations of $50 and up. Cash settlements will be made for any minor amounts in excess of the face value of the bonds.

The relation of the home owner to the Home Owners' Loan Corporation after the exchange has taken place will be discussed tomorrow.

Beauty Parlor In Pen Aids Women

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Cal., June 30.—(AP.)—This penal institution has a beauty shop. It is just a little corner of the big room, penned off with burlap screens and fitted with gadgets. But matrons say a finger wave and a manicure has given many of the women inmates confidence before the parole board and has helped them to look their best on the day of all days when they are released. Some of the inmates have learned beauty culture in the institution.

Dentist Gets Term For Narcotic Sale

GROUP TO STUDY SCHOOL DEBT

Judge Frank P. Patterson, of Common Pleas Court, has appointed John W. Russell, George W. Brawner and J. H. Johnston commissioners to make an apportionment of the indebtedness of the part of Baldwin Township annexed to Pittsburgh, as it pertains to school taxes.

A petition filed by Henry G. Leech, president of the Baldwin Township school district, said that when the territory was annexed in January, 1931, there was an indebtedness of $165,000, which greatly exceeds the funds of the township school district.

As the school directors have been unable to make an adjustment, the court was asked to name commissioners.

The first floor is occupied by the Dunlap clothing store and the second by the offices of Dr. Joseph Kramer, a dentist. The damage was estimated at $20.

RECOVERY ACT TO PROTECT BUSINESS

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

Universal Service.

Mr. Rukeyser

NEW YORK, June 30.—Scientific producers and merchandisers are to be protected under the terms of the Industrial Recovery Act from destructive competition from ignorant business operators.

Some years ago, when Owen D. Young was questioned as to why such a self contained organization as the General Electric Company belonged to the Chamber of Commerce, he is reported to have replied that the chamber helped to educate competitors, and that his company preferred to compete with those who were thoroughly well informed.

I learn from some of the chairmen who are preparing tentative codes for their industries that the administration has laid stress on the desirability of installing uniform scientific cost determining systems. This reform alone would tend to make the new experiment constructive.

Business for years has been cursed by participation in the competitive struggle of weaker personalities who had no real understanding of their own costs. Accordingly, much of the reckless and senseless price cutting was based on sheer ignorance of the factors contributing to business success. The scientific managers were harassed by competition with economic illiterates, who in the process of self immolation tended to break down the standards of whole industries.

I find practical executives, who have been working out codes, impatient of the inconsistent talk in behalf of tariff reduction by Secretary Hull. Bernard M. Baruch, who is now an insider in the administration, some time ago emphasized the lack of harmony between the cost raising industrial recovery act and farm relief act and the academic proposals for tariff reduction. Congress recognized the incongruity of the two policies and insisted in placing in the industrial recovery act a provision giving the President the power to exclude foreign goods.

To the extent that foreign nations copy American technique of mass production, it is visionary to talk of lack of tariff barriers until an equality of wage and living standards has been attained. The function of the tariff is to offset the higher wage levels prevailing in the United States.

Pittsburgh District Index Continues To Advance

*Preliminary. †Revised.

THE WEEKLY INDEX of business activity in the Pittsburgh district as prepared by the Bureau of Business Research of the University of Pittsburgh continues to advance.

For the week ended June 24, it stood at a preliminary figure of 66.1. This represented a gain of 3.8 points over the level of the preceding week and a gain of 19.7 points over the corresponding period of a year ago.

The rising line of the index is rapidly approaching the level of the corresponding period of 1931. For the week just reported it was only 5 points below the figure for two years ago.

Activity Is Highest Since August, 1931

THE INDEX is now at the highest point since the second week of August, 1931.

All the elements in the index gained during the week just reported. The greatest expansion was shown in iron and steel. The index for this type of activity jumped 7.7 points during the week to 61.6. Coal production also showed a high rate of acceleration with a jump of 6.5 points to 79.1.

The monthly review of economic conditions in the Pittsburgh district, published by the bureau today, says:

"General business continued to improve during May and the first half of June. Moreover, improvement extended to a number of industries which had shown almost no gains in April. The one important industry that has tended to lag in this recovery period is building and construction; but recent reports regarding contemplated construction indicate that many large projects are about to be released. General business recovery since about the middle of March has been unusually rapid. The Annalist index of general business activity advanced from 52.9 in March to 64.6 (preliminary) in May, a gain of almost 12 points, or about 22 per cent, in two months. All components of this index showed gains, some of the increases being the largest on record for a two-month period. Perhaps at no other time has recovery taken place so rapidly and on such a broad front in two months."

Retail Sales Keep Pace With Output

THE REVIEW points out that more than 200,000 automobiles were produced in May and the June output is expected to be even larger. Furthermore, retail sales are keeping pace with production. Electric power production continues to increase each week, the current figures being considerably above those last year at this time. Weekly carloadings since the second week of May have exceeded those in the corresponding weeks last year. Cotton consumption is running far ahead of last year's figure; wool consumption is also higher. Production of boots and shoes continues to expand. Glass factories and cement plants increased operations in May. Steel mill activity has increased substantially, whereas a decline usually occurs at this season of the year. In the third week of June, the steel industry in the country was operating at an average of 49 per cent of capacity.

U. S. ENDS YEAR WITH LOWER DEFICIT

WASHINGTON, June 30.—The United States closes its books for the fiscal year today $1,750,000,000 in the red.

Next year the government expects its budget to balance partly through reduction in expenditures and partly through a gain in receipts.

The present fiscal period is the third in succession in which receipts have been exceeded by expenditures. Last year the deficit was $2,855,000,000.

DEBT OVER 22 BILLION

The public debt mounted over $5,500,000,000 in the three-year period to more than $22,000,000,000. The peak of $26,596,000,000 was reached in August 1919, compared with but $1,282,000,000 just before the war.

Critics of the administration point to the $3,300,000,000 public works outlay and other sums allotted to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and other fiscal lending agencies to show that next year's budget can be balanced in theory only.

RECEIPTS LARGER

The plan to be followed is to have these authorizations appear as part of the public debt. For the public works section, financing and refunding through a sinking fund will be provided by an additional ½-cent a gallon gasoline tax and levies on capital issues and stock dividends.

The total general and special fund receipts for the year is $2,063,606,948, and expenditures, $3,812,976,964. Last year receipts was $1,933,789,295 and expenditures $4,845,064,013.

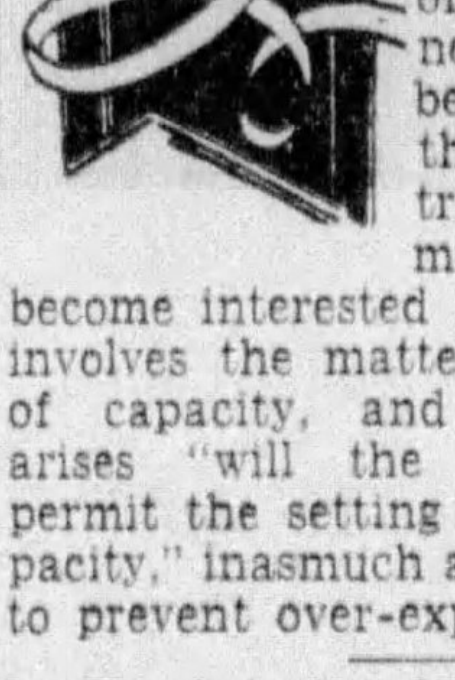
"Beer Parade" Arouses Street's Fears of Complications



Some people in Wall street are disposed to wonder if the "beer parade," that is the tendency on the part of a number of corporations in wholly unrelated lines, to swing into the beer business is not likely to bring about considerable complication. Several ice manufacturers and one former automobile company have already signified their intentions of entering the new field. It is believed possible that the industrial alcohol administration may become interested inasmuch as it involves the matter of expansion of capacity, and the question arises "will the administration permit the setting up of new capacity," inasmuch as its purpose is to prevent over-expansion.

The volume of reserve credits in use continued to contract through the past week. The total was cut another $12,000,000, due to the fact that a further sharp contraction, $31,000,000 in rediscounts much more than offset the next addition of about $20,000,000 to the federal's holdings of government securities. Member bank reserves continued to mount, however, thus placing those banks in a position to meet credit demands as they may arise with considerable ease. Holdings of open market bills, now only $8,168,000 were out about $741,000 in the week.

Announcement of the plan for distribution pro rata to Drug, Inc., shareholders of that company's interest in stocks of its operating subsidiaries and ultimate dissolution of the holding company itself, revived interest in the disposition made some months ago of the United Drug's holdings of Boots Pure Drug, Ltd. It was reported that all but a nominar portion of the company's holdings in the British unit had been disposed of to London interests. The veil of secrecy which has cloaked that deal should be lifted shortly it would seem, when the United Drug Company makes application to list its shares on the stock exchange.

Strengh in the Pennsylvania oil market continues and there are indications that the crude oil price in Pennsylvania will again be raised shortly. There have been three successive advances of 10 cents each since May 9 this year. Prices of lubricating oils are advancing steadily. A new advance of 1-cent a gallon has been made in Penn Bright Stock making 25 pour test 23 cents. A similar advance has been made in Penn Cylinder Stocks. Midcontinent prices are also following in line.

Presumbaly on account of the holiday and the desire to get away early for the week-end, the report on carloadings, it was announced, would be made public after the close of business today, instead of at the usual time tomorrow. Wall street was inclined to look for total loadings slightly above 600,000 cars, which would indicate an increase of 12,000 to 14,000 cars over last week. Such a showing would make for a gain of 100,000 to 102,000 cars or approximately 20.4 per cent as compared with the same week last year. Rail shares displayed an undertone of strength throughout the day.

Lumber Business Shows Good Gains

NEW YORK, June 30.—The National Lumber Manufacturers Association reports lumber production in the week ended June 24 as 186,116,000 feet, compared with 118,997,000 feet in the like 1932 week. Shipments were 225,687,000 feet against 131,307,900 and unfilled orders amount to 253,091,000 feet against 129,957,000 feet a week previous.

NEW YORK, June 30.—American farmers' cash income for May was about $360,000,000, or 33 per cent over the $270,000,000 received in April, and compares with $315,000,000 in May, 1932. These estimates are made by the State Street Research and Management Corporation, New York. On a seasonably-corrected basis, this is the highest since February, 1932.

TRADE UPTURN SETS RECORD

NEW YORK, June 30.—(AP.)—Major events in the business and trade situation during the past week indicate that the upturn is continuing in a vigorous way "and reaching all parts of the country in its inclusiveness," said the Dun & Bradstreet review today. The agency asserted:

"The momentum with which general business has rebounded from its all time low levels of three months ago doubtless is without parallel in the history of the country.

"From a position where merchandise could not be moved at any price, the nation-wide buying wave has gathered such force that an actual shortage of goods now is becoming apparent in some trades, with orders in excess of current production capacities."

Results to Be Real Test of Merit of Industrial Control

By LEWIS HANEY

NEW YORK, June 30.—The keynote of our public policy today is government control. Almost all phases of industry are being put under control.

Almost before we have known what is going on we find agriculture, industry, transportation, banking and the issuance of securities, all subjected by law to new and drastic regulation.

Obviously this is the result of an attempt to run economic life according to a "conscious plan." It means a revolution in economic life, we know, and the abandonment for an indefinite period of the system of relatively free individual initiative.

THE BIG question in all this, as I see it, lies in the ends or purposes of the control, and in the methods which are to be used.

My point is, that the real matter at issue is not the control itself. I do not know of any conclusive objections to control as such I do not even object to Socialism merely because it involves social control. Perhaps even compulsion in such matters could be defended in the abstract.

The real question is, how is the control to be used? What assurance have we that the controllers will know what is best and will follow the wisest course in seeking their ends?

As I see it, we can have no assurance in these respects.

I DO NOT object to planning, but I want to know that the plans are sound. And in order to have that knowledge, must know what the plan is.

My objection is not to a farm relief act, for example, but it lies against the particular measures in the act now in force. Just so, we may not oppose some measures of "industrial control," but we may disapprove of price-fixing, the particular hours of work imposed.

YOU SEE, even if we grant that some plan may be good, the big question remains—namely, what plan?

PLANNING MAY work well if we have some means of insuring that it will be done by a master mind, or if we find some way of putting together the ideas of several mediocre minds to produce a master plan. Is there any way now available to us for selecting our best minds?

And if we should hit upon some way to do this, would they be free from bias and political pressure?

IT SEEMS that the readiness with which the country has fallen for government control, without any due consideration as to what the controllers would do, has been occasioned by the feeling that we must "do something." We didn't know what—so we passed the buck.

This feeling of despair, in turn, traces back to the notion that individual initiative has failed.

BUT THAT is much the same as the notion that the gold standard has failed. The gold standard "broke down" temporarily because of international conditions which made any standard impossible. Our own deliberate policies contributed.

Just so "capitalism" broke down because capitalists would not let it work. By price maintenance, proration and control of production, etc., they kept individual initiative from working.

BUT DON'T forget this. Socialism, and guilds, and cartels, and government control are older than capitalism. They are older (and perhaps more out of date) than the economics of Adam Smith.

There is no sense in falling for "planning" and "control" because they seem new and different. What counts is results. Some day, I feel sure, the world will again be made safe for the gold standard and for individual initiative.

Sugar Market.

NEW YORK, June 30.—Raw sugar was quiet again early today. Futures opened at 1 point decline to 1 point advance, but later eased under increased liquidation and selling by Wall street and commission houses.

In refined a fair withdrawal demand was reported, but only a light new business and this was supplied through second hands. Prices were quoted at 4.60c for fine granulated by refiners, with second hands available at about 10 points less.

CKS AWAIT ECISION ON DOLLAR

NEW YORK, June 30.—(AP.)—Financial markets generally maintained an attitude of cautious contemplation today in the face of currency stabilization uncertainties.

While there was some profit-taking in securities and commodities, the speculative fraternity apparently was highly confused over the international monetary situation. Grains were inclined to rally after dipping earlier, but cotton moved indifferently. The stock trading volume was considerably under that of yesterday. A few specialty shares attracted attention, but most pivotal issues held to a narrow range. The dollar shuffled around its Thursday's closing levels in foreign exchange centers.

The alcohol share group and its allied members jumped about rather erratically. Rails and mining equities were steady to firm.

While the stabilization problem continued to hold the center of the Wall street limelight, both traders and investors were cheered by the week-end trade reviews which reported that the upswing in business apparently is continuing with unabated fervor. The nation-wide buying wave, it was said, has gathered such force that an actual shortage of goods is now threatened, with orders in excess of production capacity.

In this respect, it is recalled that during the long, lean depression years most large factories trimmed producing capacities to minimum and some even dismantled portions of plants. Now, with the buying revival, it is difficult in many cases to get back to anywhere near the former producing volume.

Bankers and brokers do not quite see "eye to eye" in the dollar pegging controversy. From the standpoint of the banking contingent—which also represents many importers and exporters—business will not be able to show a full, healthy recovery until the dollar-pound-franc rates are put on a level where forward buying and selling can be conducted without the hazards which are now attached to wildly gyrating currency markets.

Most brokers would like to have the dollar find its own place in the foreign exchange firmament, with the idea that it might sink lower and thus induce further inflationary stock speculation. At the same time some commission houses are not so sure but that the equity markets would benefit in the long run from stabilization.

LESS RESERVE CREDIT OUT

WASHINGTON, June 30. —(AP.) — The Federal Reserve Board reported today that the daily average volume of Federal Reserve Bank credit outstanding during the week ending June 28 was $2,196,000,000, a decrease of $7,000,000 compared with the preceding week and of $158,000,000 compared with the same week last year.

On June 28 total reserve bank credit amounted to $2,182,000,000, a decrease of $12,000,000 for the week. This decrease corresponded with an increase of $89,000,000 in Treasury currency adjusted, and a decrease of $21,000,000 in money in circulation, offset in part by increases of $81,000,000 in member bank reserve balances, and $17,000,000 in unexpended capital funds, non-member deposits, etc.

Bills discounted decreased $31,000,000 at all Federal Reserve banks. The system's holdings of bills bought in open market declined $1,000,000, while holdings of United States Treasury notes increased $11,000,000 and Treasury certificates and bills increased $9,000,000.

COTTON PRICES TAKE DROP

NEW YORK, June 30.—Cotton futures opened steady, 11 to 13 lower, in response to lower Liverpool cables and liquidation. July, 9.91; October, 10.17; December, 10.34; January, 10.41; March, 10.53; May, 10.69.

The early decline in wheat seemed to bring out a little more liquidation and some stop loss orders were uncovered at the decline, which represented a loss of about $3 per bale from the top of the recent advance.

The July position sold down to 9.90 and October to 10.15, and at the end of the first hour values were around these levels.

The decline extended to 9.70 for July and to 10.20 for December or to net losses of 26 to 31 points under continued liquidation with the reaction uncovering stop orders. However, with prices off about $3.50 per bale from the recent highs the market encountered a little more support from trade and outside sources. July rallied to 9.78, December to 10.32 by around midday with the general list 12 to 22 points net lower.

LIVERPOOL, June 29.—Cotton, 15,000 bales, including 8,400 American. COPPER SUPPLY DWINDLING

NEW YORK, June 30.—Stocks of refined copper during May in the United States decreased 40,000,000 pounds, and indications are June will show a similar large decrease. The decrease in May was 80 per cent of the decline made during the whole of 1932 in North and South America. In April, refined stocks in the United States fell off about 1,500,000 pounds. Refined stock in the United States are around 1,200,000,000 pounds, but sales and open contracts would bring unsold copper in producers' hands at present to about 700,000,000 pounds of refined.

The decrease is due to the big gain in shipments into consumption since the 3.1 per cent beer law went into effect.

Drug Holders Get Segregated Shares

NEW YORK, June 30.—A split-up of Drug, Inc., into five companies which were taken in to form the holding company has been decided upon by directors and will be submitted to stockholders at a meeting August 7.

The plan calls for holders of 10 shares of Drug, Inc., to receive five shares of Sterling Products, four shares of United Drug, two shares of Bristol-Myers, and one share of Life-Savers.

Files Second Suit Against Translux

WILMINGTON, June 30.—An injunction and accounting suit has been filed in Chancery Court here against Translux Daylight Picture Screen Corporation by Ray L. Hall, owner of 100 shares of the company's stock. Hall recently filed another suit asking the court to determine the validity of the election of three of the directors elected at the last annual meeting.

HARBISON PAYS ON PREFERRED

Expected to clean up arrearage the Harbison-Walker Refractories Company today resumed dividends on its preferred stock by declaration of a regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 per share, payable July 20, to record of July 10. The dividends payable on this issue during the first two quarters of this year were deferred, owing to the uncertain outlook and unprofitable business conditions then existing.

It is understood that the company has materially reduced bank loans outstanding at the close of last year, and, should business continue on the profitable basis now being experienced, it may be anticipated that the deferred dividends amounting to $3 per share, will be paid off in the not distant future.

LOCAL MARKET QUIET AND STEADY

Trading quieted down perceptibly on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today with the movement showing contraction in almost every direction. Traders were standing aside awaiting a definite cue from the "big board," where stocks had been subjected to intermittent shake-outs the past few sessions; the result being a highly erratic price movement and constant changes in direction.

Lone Star Gas backed down a little in the early dealings here, but there was no conspicuous pressure on the stock. Such offerings as came into the market were absorbed steadily on slight dips. The other fuels were quiet.

In the heavy industrail section prices remained relatively close to the figures prevailing on the close last night.

WHEAT HIGHER AT FINISH

CHICAGO, June 30.—With a broad buying movement sweeping into the speculative pits today, wheat kited to 4 cents above early low prices.

Strength in the wheat market was based largely on apprehension that crop damage had nullified benefits from rains northwest and west. Much buying, too, was stimulated owing to expectations that private crop summaries to be issued Monday would disclose startling curtailment of indicated yields.

Wheat closed nervous at about a cent under the day's top figures, but ⅛ to ⅞ over yesterday's finish; corn 1¼ to 2 up, oats 1⅞ to 2¼ advanced, and provisions varying from 10 cents decline to a rise of 2 cents.

Judge Smith, Ellenbogen Speaking

A Pittsburgh network star returns to the home radio forces when "Rosey" Rowswell, the Eskimos' m. c.-ing philosopher, bows on a new weekly WCAE series tonight at 9 o'clock.

Rowswell, who'll continue journeying New York-wards each week-end for his Monday NBC-KDKA feature, will fill a role similar to that which rates network laurels in the new shows, supported by the Whiteman audition-winning So-and-So Trio. A marimba ensemble completes the musical setup.

In the political vein are two special WJAS and WWSW broadcasts with Congressman-elect Henry Ellenbogen and Judge Ralph H. Smith, respectively, as the speakers.

Ellenbogen, scheduled on WJAS at 8, gives a 15-minute talk on "The Home Loan Act."

Judge Smith, appearing in the recently-inaugurated "Clean Politics" WWSW series, speaks on "Politics—the People's Business" at 7:45.

RICE TALKS SPORTS

Grantland Rice comes into the radio spotlight as Alex Morrison's CBS-WJAS "Country Club" successor with the opening of the show's summer edition at 9:30 tonight.

Commenting on doings in the sporting scene, Rice, previously scheduled to bow July 3, will be heard weekly at the same hour. Betty Barthell, Mary McCoy, the double quartet and Jack Golden's Orchestra will continue on the "Club's" musical roster.

"Squirrel's Cage," British radio play done in the "stream of consciousness" idea, is listed for NBC-WCAE dialers at 10:30 p. m. The drama is the first of two by Tyrone Guthrie, BBC producer, to be offered by NBC.

The "First Nighter," weekly KDKA dramatic feature, moves to the 10 o'clock spot tonight with a three-act comedy, "Funny Things, These Men."

An informal aviation chat by three Pittsburgh fliers — Helen Ritchie, Helen Ball and Joe Dawson—is WJAS's 5 p. m. bill.

Phil Harris does one of Bert Williams' favorite ditties, "Nobody," via KDKA at 9.

In deference to those two gentlemen of the network, Potash and Perlmutter, the KDKA Silver Toppers shift from their new 8:30 period to the still newer one of 8:15.

Grieg, Guion, Strauss and Rimsky-Korsakoff make up Joseph Littau's "Pastoral" fare at 7:30.

Jessica Dragonette sings the [illegible]-heard aria, "Song of the [illegible]" from the opera, "The Dead [illegible]," via WCAE at 8.

Al Howard's orchestra returns to the KQV waves at 9.

Dr. C. Chworowski, of the Falk Memorial School, speaks on "Supervised Play of Chilren" over WWSW at 7:15.

'Jim' Long Reviews Sports Highlights

Reviewing authentically events in the world of sports, James J. Long, Sun-Telegraph sports columist, goes on the air with his weekly chat via WCAE at 7 p. m.

Grandpa and Lillian, reading today's Sun-Telegraph comic page, heads the Sun-Telegraph Family bill . . . WCAE at 4:45.

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

From way out at Clear Lake, Cal., we get a helpful hint. To discourage and eliminate gnats and bugs that fly around porches wrap the light bulb in waxed paper. The pests will get stuck and all you have to do is to change the wrapping.

Have just read Dorothy Orcutt's letter saying that she likes the poetry broadcast by the Globe-Trotter. Please be careful with letters like that—I need very little encouragement.

The grating on Miss Hamilton's delicate auditory sensibilities has caused her to protest the pronunciation of the word "economic." She wants that E pronounced as the E's in "fleet."

It is right, though, to pronounce the E as the first E in "event." Maybe he's right, for once.

Local Highlights on WJAS Tonight

Paul Gannon sings the beautiful "Ah! Moon of My Delight" as the highspot of his 6:45 "Songs at Eventide" broadcast.

Fran Eichler's band returns for another half-hour of dinner dance music at 6 o'clock.

Seibel Going On Network At Chicago

By AIRCASTER

George Seibel, the Sun-Telegraph literary and dramatic critic whose name, of late, has been included not infrequently on the NBC roster of national broadcasters, is slated for another nationwide address—this time from Chicago Sunday at 12:15 p. m.

The airing will be an NBC-red network event, with WCAE picking up locally, and will, for that day only, replace Mr. Seibel's regular 7 p. m. period on that station.

The tooth-paste maker, among the first on the air for such a product who provided the famous Troubadours, is, as reported, returning to the NBC mikes, and the new ostentation will be a promenade featuring Gladys Swarthout, Conrad Thibault, Archer Gibson, organist, and a chorus.

The Denny band and giggly Jeannie Lang is the set-up for a new CBS five-a-week commercial—a program by the same firm which recently fostered an airplane flight over New York.

The KDKA Rhythm Kings respond to a request all the way from New Zealand—from S. T. Tisdall, 14 Burnell avenue, Wellington, to be exact—with "Hand Me Down My Walking Cane" today at 5.

Myrtle Vail, author and lead of "Myrt and Marge," and Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Brown (he's the series' director), sail next month for South America. The "why" of the junket lies in an eye toward authenticity in the new sketches—to have a Latin-American setting—when they resume in the fall.

Add to the list of radio globetrotters Nat Shilkret, who sets forth on a European tour, taking in everything from Egypt to Norway, July 4 . . . Brother Jack will take over the Shilkret baton.

When the United States observes its birthday next week, England is to have an opportunity to tune in on a typical July 4 celebration via rebroadcast. John Erskine will act as commentator, with music by a military band under Harold Sanford.

Rush for Furniture

CHICAGO, June 28.—(AP.)—A furniture buying wave unparalleled since 1895 was reported by manufacturers exhibiting at the American Furniture Mart's summer show, Lawrence H. Whiting, mart president, said today. Whiting asserted leading factories were swamped with orders and unable to guarantee shipments. Prices, he said, were increased generally from 10 to 40 per cent by increases in cost of materials and labor.

SAVAGE PARADISE -:- Audacious Girl Reveals Secrets Of the Southern Seas -:- By MARGARET MATCH

CHAPTER XXXIX.

We moved slowly through the verdant Admiraltys, flanked by a beautiful blue sea and sky. We sailed on serenely, without benefit of the engine; there was little breeze and less hurry. Most of these islands were circled, in the bosky shadows behind white beaches, with villages of round grass huts. In the Admiraltys most of the natives are "free kánakas," unrecruited, living as they have lived since time began, fishing, hunting, raising taro, gathering sacsac, observing their fantastic singsings, engaging in occasional warfare. Frequently we caught sight of one of the beautiful Manus sailing canoes, with a square sail of beaten bark fiber and a wild-haired savage standing straight and stiff beside the mast narrowly watching our strange craft approach.

Now the time had come to enjoy the green turtle, which had roamed about the foredeck since we acquired it. That morning the mate had rigged up a sort of tent for me on the topdeck, so that I could write or read in quiet and without sunstroke. Well on in the morning there rose a delighted commotion on the foredeck below me. Leaving my shelter, I leaned over the bridge to see what it was all about. I could not turn my eyes away. The cook had slaughtered the huge turtle, and was separating the flesh from the breast-plate. The deck ran with blood, and how anything that lives in the sea could have so much blood I don't know. A sickish, cloying odor hung on air. Once the breast-shell had been severed, the turtle rested on its back, and inside of it swam dozens of eggs, some of them almost as large as tennis balls. The kanakas around shouted with glee. The Chinese cook-boy began cutting up the turtle's flesh with a prodigious, sharp knife, and in five minutes the forearms of the natives were bloody to the elbows, for they were plunging after the meat that the cook discarded.

PLENTY OF SOUP

That night there was homemade green turtle soup, gallons of it, delicious and delicate; and there was green turtle steak, coarse and excellent; and pudding made of turtle eggs, coarse like cornmeal and not at all appetizing.

Did I eat it, with the grim memory of a deck running with blood still fresh in my mind?

I did. I may have blunted sensibilities, but we didn't get a chance at green turtle soup every day.

It was a glassy and breathless Sunday. All morning long, when she thought herself unobserved, Mrs. Dennis' eyes had been straining into the horizon—we were due at the new plantation that day. I could see she was trying to banish misgivings.

Lowforth, leaning on the deck-rail beside me, told me that the Dennises had invited him to stay with them for a while at the plantation, and that he was going to do so. It was a good arrangement. He could be both company for them and a help. And he would be near enough to Lorengau to hear of any jobs that might be offering.

In the middle of the afternoon we came in sight of the plantation. The reef extended far out into the sea, and we had to anchor a good distance off. Dennis stayed on board to superintend the unloading of their things and provisions. owforth and I, together with [illegible] two youngsters and some ker furniture, went over t in the pinnace from the ooner. As we approached the hore two shark fins appeared within the reef. That settled the matter of sea-bathing.

Before us spread the plantation. We climbed out of the pinnace to the beach. It was a place to make one's heart stand still, if one must stay there! For Mrs. Dennis it meant ten years, if they fulfilled their contract. Huge trunks of long-dead quela trees lay at intervals through what we could see of the plantation. There were two even on the beach, whitened by the sun and giving an air of decay and desolation to the whole landscape. There was no lawn, just sand, about the house, though a few brave spears of grass pushed up their heads. The bungalow was a weather-beaten shell, built on six-foot piles, and consisting of three rooms, with a wide veranda running around it. There was a dismal house-cook to the rear, and a house-washwash near by. On the back veranda hung a rusted and cracked ship's bell, salvage from some ancient German wreck. This was to summon the labor.

A DISCOURAGING PLACE

The Tender Book had insinuated that the house was adequately furnished. The furniture was a bare table and four derelict chairs [illegible] tied together with strin, and a rickety open cupboard in the center of the room. On the porch was a wooden bedstead with a piece of canvas nailed to it for springs and mattress. Also on the porch was one of those inventions of the devil—a German "easy chair." It is a contraption that welcomes you into its mechanical mysteries, but refuses to relinquish you without great straining and effort and back-slipping. It was without canvas, merely the yawning framework.

The second room, presumably a bedroom, was empty. The third room was locked. Doubtless it contained the record books and accounts of the last manager. That remained to be seen.

The afternoon sun beat mercilessly on the corrugated, unlined iron roof. But the place was clean.

As we stood looking about us, Mrs. Dennis said, half under her breath, "Oh, no!" Her eyes had tears in them. Then she pulled herself together and silently, with lips tightly closed, continued her tour of inspection.

The plantation itself was largely swamp, and was in consequence a network of draining ditches, breeding places for mosquitoes. The palm fronds bore telltale, but not hopeless, yellow fronds. And we quietly learned the cause. Holes in the tree-trunks told of rhinoceros beetles. Suddenly, with difficulty, I suppressed a shriek. On the cotton netting at a window rested a grasshopper 10 inches long. Grasshoppers! Dread enemy of the copra planter.

Some kanaka laborers straggled up to the steps and looked in curiously at the newcomers. Obviously they were lazy and altogether out of hand. And no wonder, for we learned that the previous manager had abandoned the place "be'ind two fella moon"—two months back.

POSSESSIONS UNPACKED

Mrs. Dennis was a brick, but I could see her fighting for self-command. All she said was, "Oh, I'm so disappointed! Just look at the house!" The years of this to face!

Warned by the poverty of the house furnishings, we were somewhat braced for what we might find in the house-cook. The Tender Book had reported, confidently, that the kitchen was equipped for housekeeping, and that there was also crockery. In the house-cook was a broken stove, a tea-kettle and three saucepans. The crockery (quarter-inch thick) consisted of six soup plates, a platter and one cracked cup. And to complete the outfit there was a brown earthenware tea-pot with a broken spout, the lid tied to the handle with a hemp string.

Our tour of household inspection was over. We had seen all there was to see. Fortunately there was little time for reflection; household effects began arriving from the schooner thick and fast. Lowforth was, for the moment, a wonder. I was glad he was there, glad he was going to stay on. If ever a woman needed some one to lean on, some one to lend sympathetic comfort, it was that Mrs. Dennis. And Lowforth was enjoying the almost forgotten sensation of being needed, being wanted, being busily necessary to a situation. From some place he resurrected an ax and screw driver, and began opening wooden packing boxes.

We all pitched in to help. The first thing we erected was the baby's iron crib on the side veranda. The three of us were more in than out of great boxes, handing to waiting, wide-eyed kanakas packages of tinned foods, groceries, crockery, what not; we fished out tea, sugar and tins of biscuits, and cups.

TRIES TO BE HAPPY

Then Mrs. Dennis, with a fine attempt at care-free cheerfulness, announced: "Let's have tea!" As we drank it in the wretchedly cheerless dining room with a western sun pouring through unshaded windows, we three played a make-believe game as to what could be done with cretonne and the wicker furniture she had brought with her. We were almost happy when finally along came the skipper, the engineer, and Dennis with the last load for the plantation.

Again I said good-bye—so much of life is spent in farewells—and I climbed with the skipper and engineer into the pinnace. Beyond the reef our schooner waited for us, her sails furled, her brown crew lazily dangling fishing lines over her sides. The remote loneliness of this plantation had cut so deep into my sensibilities that the uncomfortable, roach-ridden little ship looked homelike and very desirable to me. I could hardly have borne to have left a white woman—a friend—there in that terrible out-station alone with an uncongenial husband and two little children if Lowforth had not remained behind. I felt somehow that he would soften the beginning of her days there, until she got used to things. Probably he couldn't stay for very long; probably the situation, when they all got used to each other, would become strained, even impossible, and then Lowforth would once more set out to engage in his unequal struggle with the world. But the arrangement was much the best for the time being.

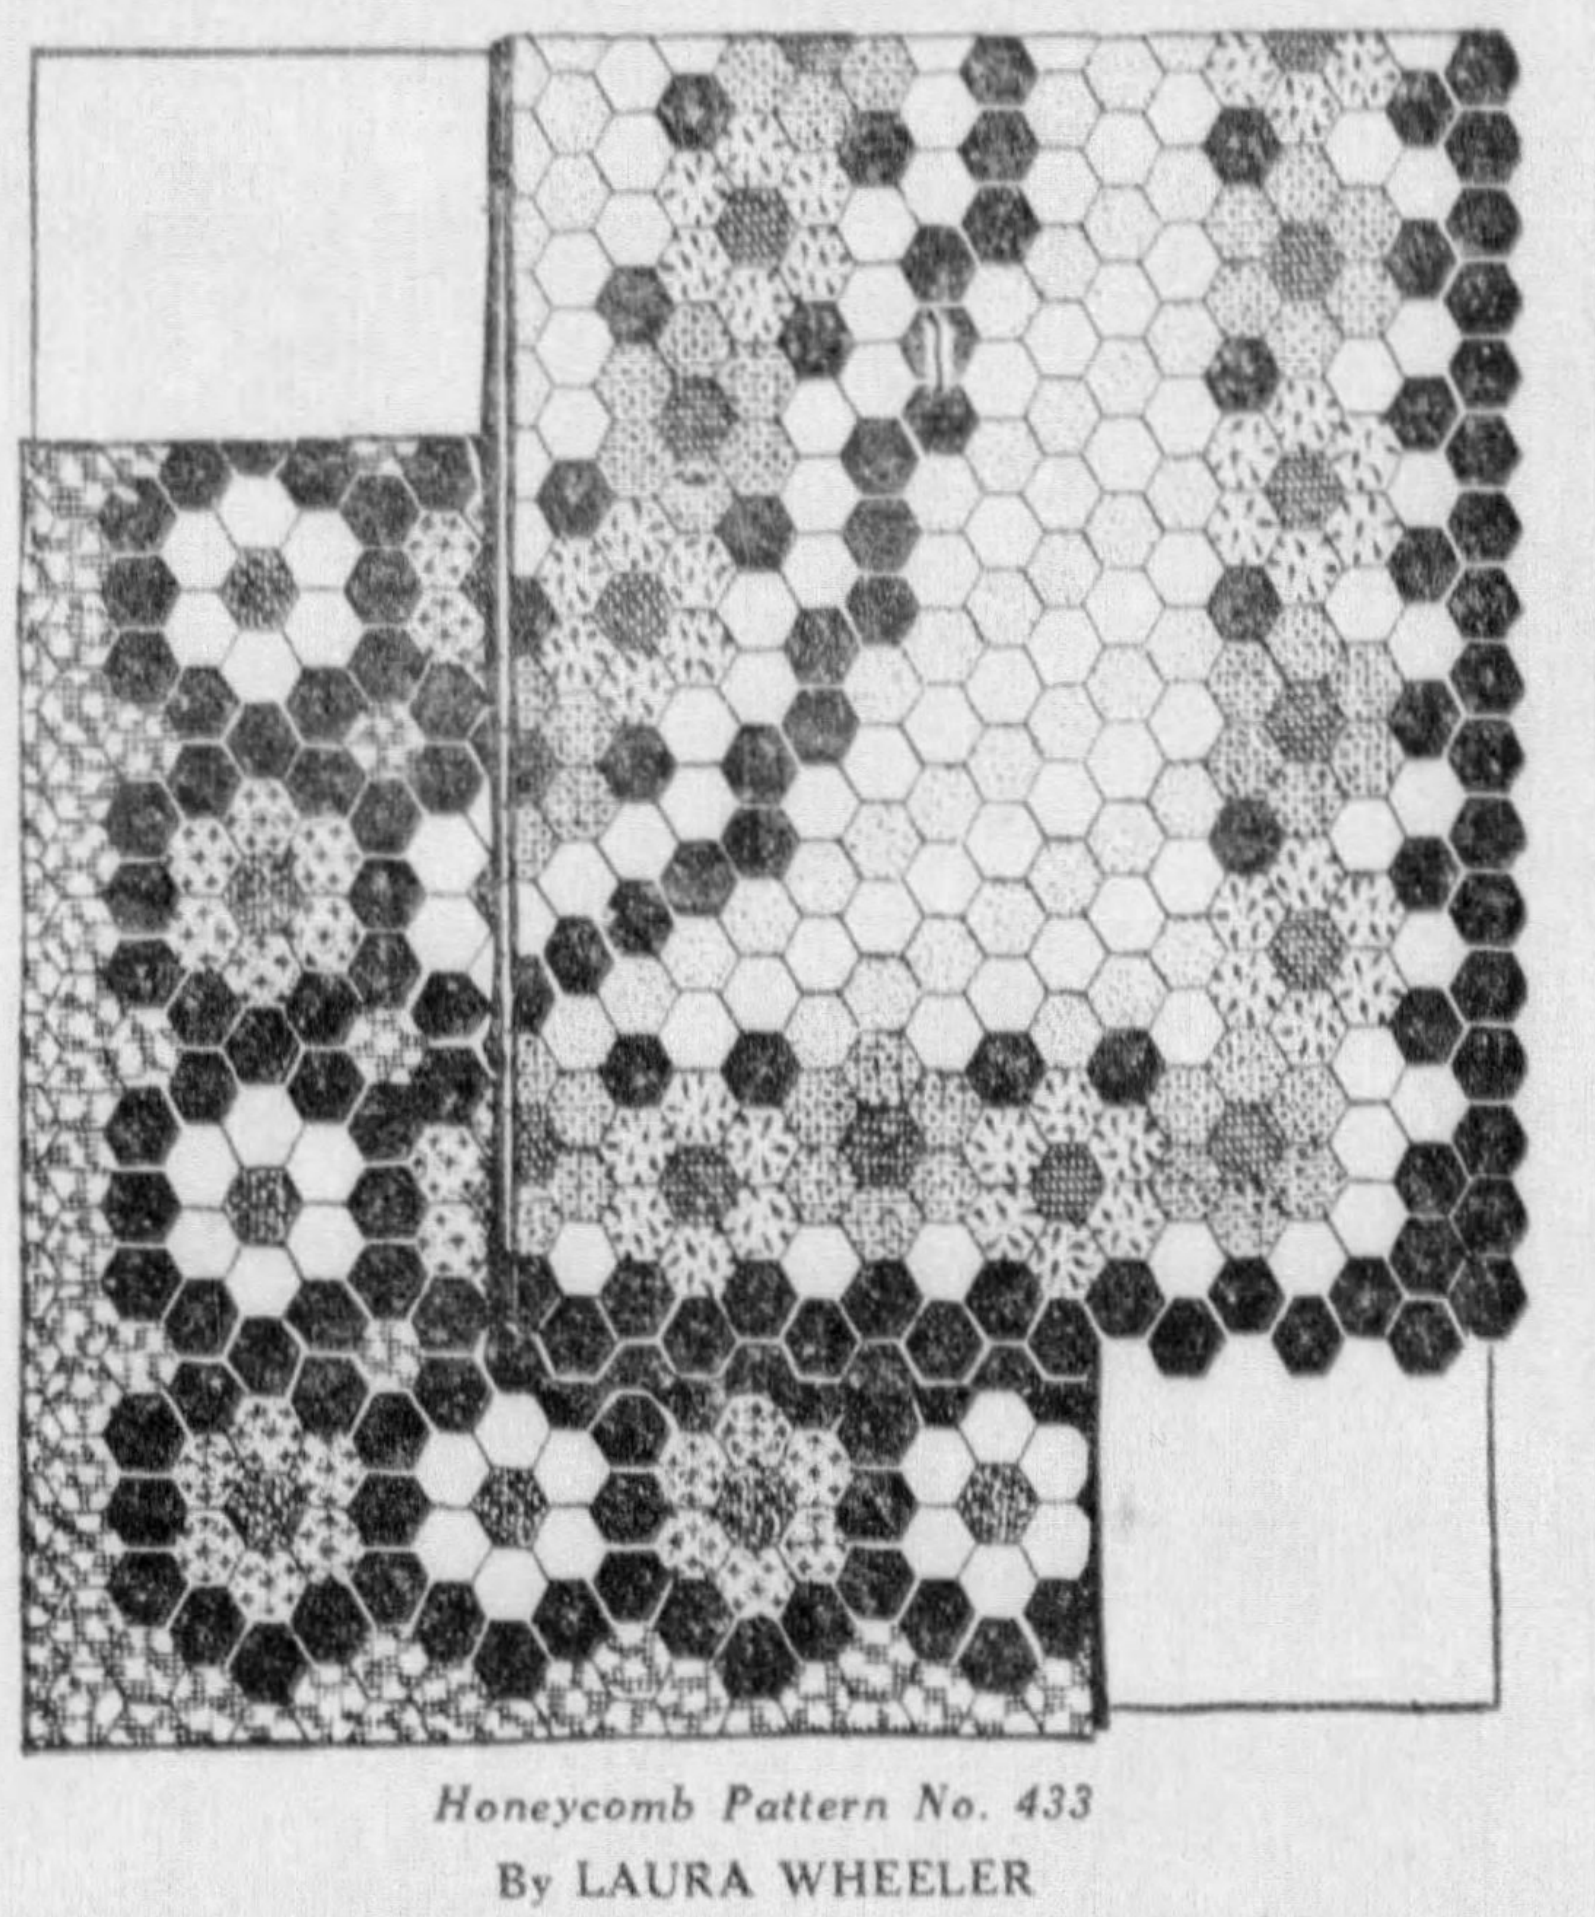
PATCHWORK QUILT PATTERN



Honeycomb Pattern No. 433

By LAURA WHEELER

Honeycomb quilts—those made of hexagonal patches are as popular today as they were in the early days of quilt-making. This entire quilt is made of hexagonal patches cut of different materials. The varied arrangement of the materials forms the pattern. Two radically different arrangements of the patches are shown here, one producing a block that is repeated over the entire quilt, while the other is a simple wreath and border that looks as if it were made of big flowers in a row.

Pattern No. 433 comes to you with complete simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10c for a pattern for this design to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

If your scalp is itchy and you consult the physician who deals with such troubles, don't be alarmed if he tells you that you are afflicted with seborrheic dermatitis, which is the more elegant name for dandruff. There is no doubt that these dead scales interfere with the health and vitality of the hair. Home treatment consists of friction with hot oil—mineral or olive oil will do—followed next day by a rousing shampoo. Don't dig up dandruff with the finger nails; abrasions invite infection.

The hot bath at night will make one woman relax, put her to sleep, on another woman it will have the opposite effect. There can be no time rule for scouring the body surface. But scoured it must be once a day if the skin is to function normally, be smooth and satiny. The good effect of a rousing renovating is particularly apparent after the Turkish bath when the epidermis, free of dead skin scales, is in tiptop condition.

The Junior Patrol Mail Box

Well, fellows, this column is your mail box now!

We're all set now to start printing just as many letters as we can that you send in with Junior Patrol news, telling about what you are doing to help others.

When the parol in your neighborhood is organized, get the lieutenant to write to Junior or to Mr. Hall right away. We want this mail box stuffed with swell letters from Patrols all the time.

Junior and Mr. Hall—and Snuggins too have been getting letters from fellows all over the country. Lots of 'em have plenty of nice things to say. Lots of 'em are full of good suggestions for the Junior Patrol. But until we got the mail box here to put them in, nobody but Uncle Hall, Spike and Snuggins ever read them.

Now all the members of the Junior Patrol can read the best letters here in the mail box. And when other Patrol Captains read another fellow's name and address signed to a letter, maybe they would like to start writing to each other. In this way all the Captains, and members too can help each other.

Read the Junior Patrol Mail Box every day, and send in your letters to be put in the Mail Box.

We have some more suggestions today about how Junior Patrol members can help others. The first thing we don't want to forget is that we ought to help others right in our own families.

Have you ever noticed that your mother gets tired these hot summer days? That's your chance to help her. When she's thirsty, make her a cool glass of water or lemonade, and carry it to her. And if you watch you can probably save her a lot of steps by running errands and carrying things up and down the stairs.

Washing dishes isn't much fun, but if you help mother or big sister and dry them, they get done twice as quickly. And any smart Junior Patrol member can see a lot of other ways to help.

Are there any children in your neighborhood less fortunate than you are? Remember your Junior Patrol pledge. The next time you go to the circus or movies maybe you could tell him that it's your treat, and take him along. He won't forget, and maybe someday he will get his chance to help you.

Junior, the doctor told us in yesterday's Junior Patrol comic strip, has the measles. Spike and Snuggins will go see the circus, anyhow, we guess, and then they will be able to tell Junior all about it.

That's always the next best thing when you can't see something yourself. Have one of your friends see it for you! And doesn't that give you an idea for another swell chance to help others? We'll bet there are lots of kids like Junior who are sick in bed and can't get out to see parades, and the circus, and the ball games and shows like you can.

Uncle Hall and Uncle Ted are still looking for fellows who want to try out for the radio program. Just as soon as more of the patrols are organized, each captain should hunt up any of the members who sing or play in his patrol and send in his name.

Have any members of the Junior Patrol been to see the World's Fair in Chicago yet? Tell us about it in a letter, will you, fellows? It shows a century of progress in America—a show bigger even than the biggest circus!

Just yesterday we had a letter from a friend of ours. In his town, he said, good times were coming again, and everybody was a lot happier. Many of them worked in gardens. That's the kind of good news we like to hear.

Sam Krakoff, of 1335 Arkansas avenue, Dormont, is one of our newest members. He writes:

"I have just been wondering if Snuggins could have a lamb chop."

You bet he can, Sam, and spinach too. That's what Popeye eats to get strong. A lot of kids don't like spinach and vegetables, but if they are smart, they will learn to like them. Vegetables keep a fellow strong and healthy. Fruit, too.

MISTER ARLISS PLAYS THEM NEXT HIS VEST

(Fan Magazine)

When George Arliss was inspecting the script for "Alexander Hamilton," he came upon a bedroom scene between himself and June Collyer. Mr. Arliss shook his head. No bedroom scenes in his pictures.

The script was changed. June Collyer called to him from the top of the stairs to come and get his cloak. They would cut at the door of the bedroom.

Again Mr. Arliss shook his head. The bedroom door was too obvious. They would cut at the top of the stairs.

When the scene was actually taken, they cut at the bottom of the stairs. His foot on the lowest stair was the only indication Mr. Arliss would give that he might be approaching a lady's bedroom!

And still you'll find people who say moving pictures ain't educational.

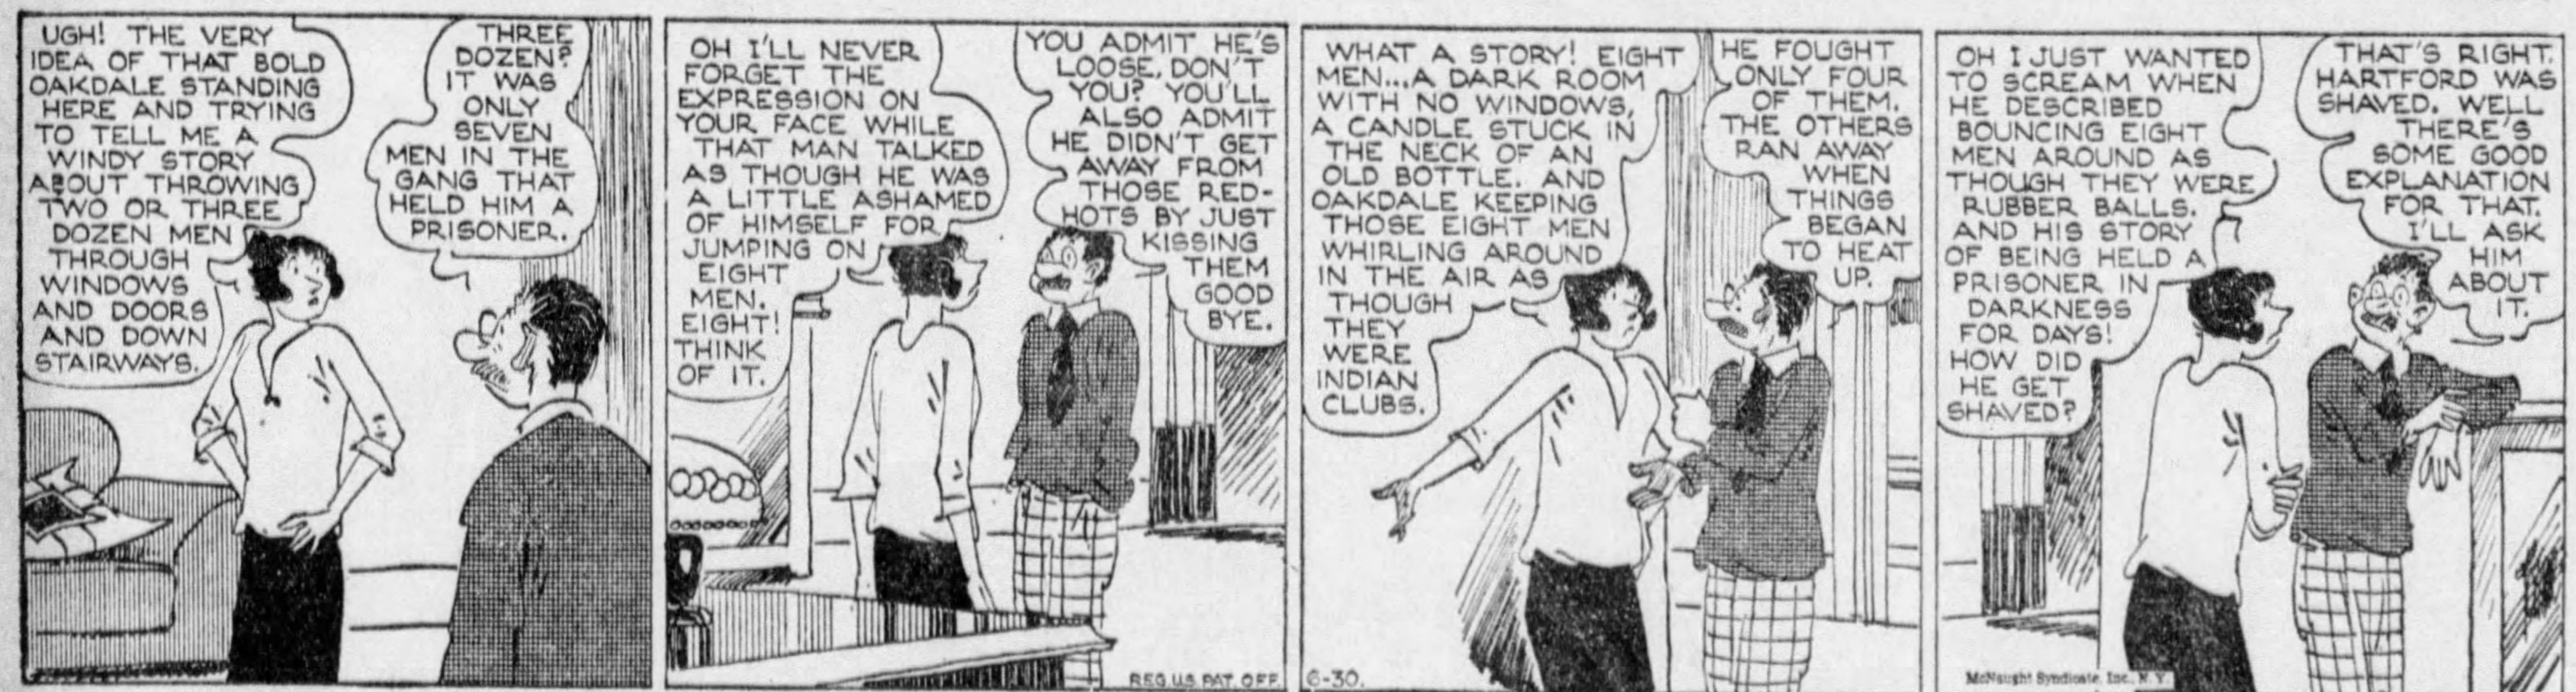
Doubt



UGH! THE VERY IDEA OF THAT BOLD OAKDALE STANDING HERE AND TRYING TO TELL ME A WINDY STORY ABOUT THROWING TWO OR THREE DOZEN MEN THROUGH WINDOWS AND DOORS AND DOWN STAIRWAYS.
THREE DOZEN? IT WAS ONLY SEVEN MEN IN THE GANG THAT HELD HIM A PRISONER.
OH I'LL NEVER FORGET THE EXPRESSION ON YOUR FACE WHILE THAT MAN TALKED AS THOUGH HE WAS A LITTLE ASHAMED OF HIMSELF FOR JUMPING ON EIGHT MEN. EIGHT! THINK OF IT.
YOU ADMIT HE'S LOOSE, DON'T YOU? YOU'LL ALSO ADMIT HE DIDN'T GET AWAY FROM THOSE RED-HOTS BY JUST KISSING THEM GOOD BYE.
WHAT A STORY! EIGHT MEN... A DARK ROOM WITH NO WINDOWS, A CANDLE STUCK IN THE NECK OF AN OLD BOTTLE. AND OAKDALE KEEPING THOSE EIGHT MEN WHIRLING AROUND IN THE AIR AS THOUGH THEY WERE INDIAN CLUBS.
HE FOUGHT ONLY FOUR OF THEM. THE OTHERS RAN AWAY WHEN THINGS BEGAN TO HEAT UP.
OH I JUST WANTED TO SCREAM WHEN HE DESCRIBED BOUNCING EIGHT MEN AROUND AS THOUGH THEY WERE RUBBER BALLS. AND HIS STORY OF BEING HELD A PRISONER IN DARKNESS FOR DAYS! HOW DID HE GET SHAVED?
THAT'S RIGHT. HARTFORD WAS SHAVED. WELL THERE'S SOME GOOD EXPLANATION FOR THAT. I'LL ASK HIM ABOUT IT.

Daily Double Gets 'Em

Canadian husbands claim that their wives are going goofy over the races.

The bettor halves are staking their pin money on dilatory nags. This is what we call four-legged banking.

The Royal Northwest Mounted raided a tip terrace and rounded up 17 wives squandering the market money on the wrong market.

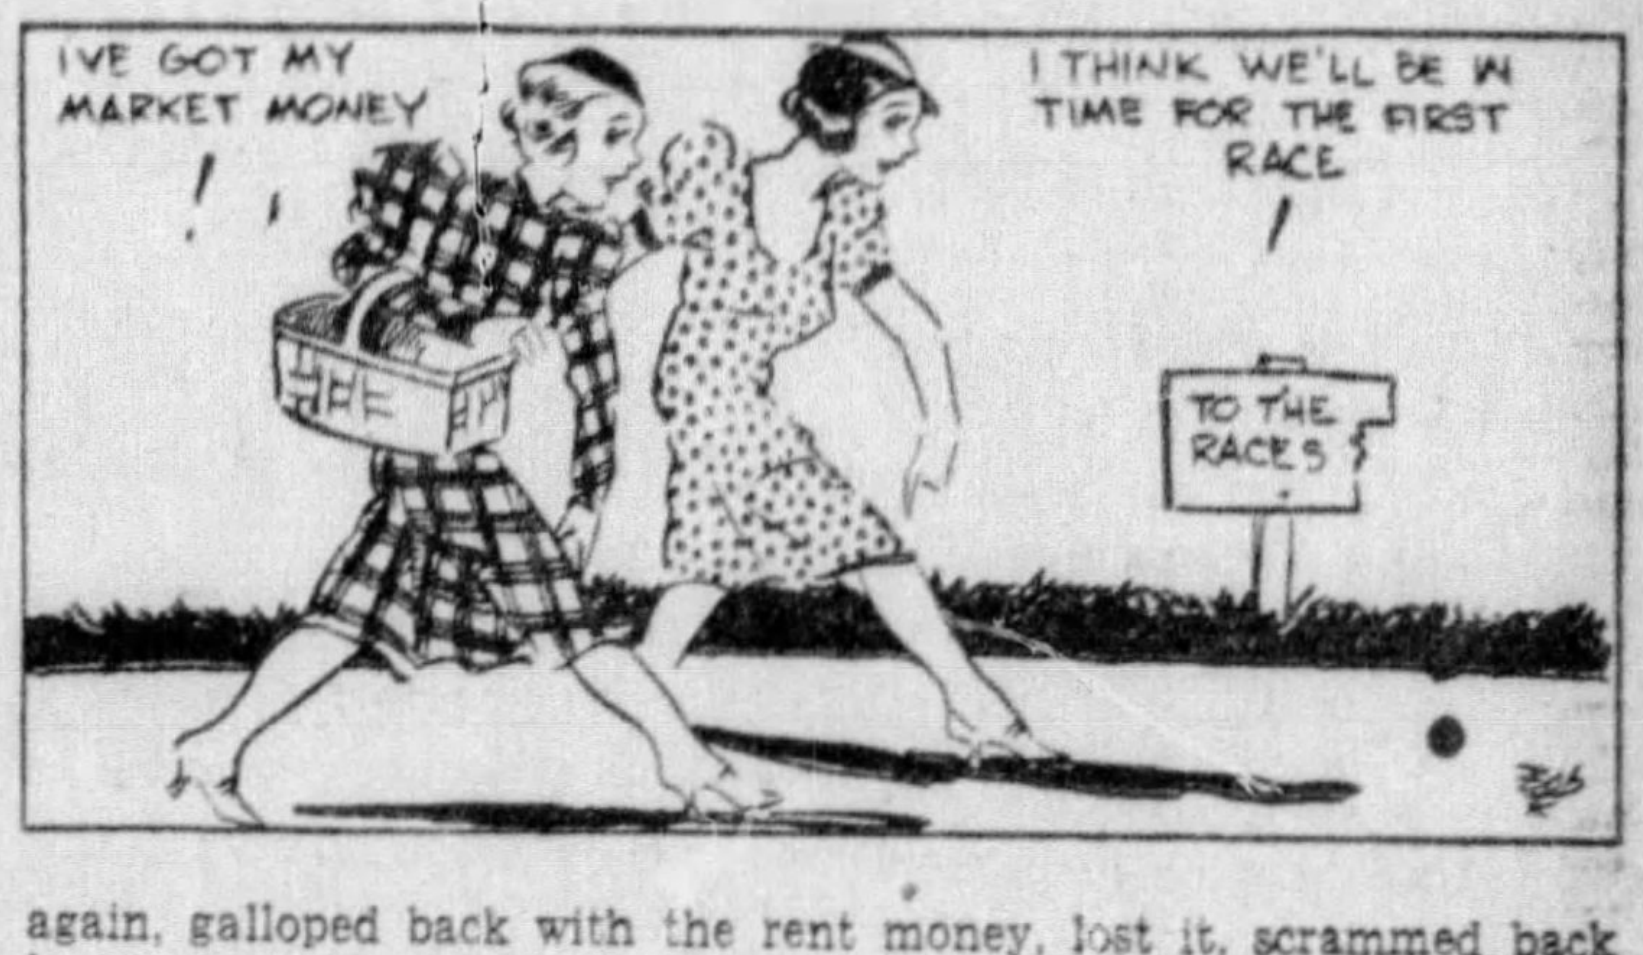
The wives weren't scared a bit when the N. W. cavalry rode up. They just thought the mounties were apprentice jockeys.

The judge scolded the 17 Dianas of the steeplechase and then telephoned his home to find out how his own wife was doing.

They tell us that up in Montreal the ladies are wild about betting. We can trace this epidemic to the famous daily double.

Guess two winners on each day's card and it pays important dividends. It's the old parlay racket. And it ain't easy. Sometimes it pays off a million to one.

The daily double is fascinating. But not when the missus starts to stake the household goods on a spavined clover grabber. One lady rushed out to the track with five bills, lost it, rushed home again, galloped back with the rent money, lost it, scrammed back home some more and showed up at the track for the third time with a hot stove on which two eggs were still sizzling gently.



I'VE GOT MY MARKET MONEY
I THINK WE'LL BE IN TIME FOR THE FIRST RACE TO THE RACES

She dropped it on the daily double. But deserves credit for carrying it that far.

Just proves what happens when gambling gets a claw on you. The daily double is the lure of the unknown and everybody tumbles for it. Every race track has its ladies' day. Soon will have children's matinee where the little ones can lay their lollipops on the line and root the barn kickers home.

The daily double is very popular is some of our northern cities. When it gets to our town we will look it up and find out how much a dime will affect the wise money.

Hasten Reopenings

Officials of Unlicensed Banks Must Sacrifice If Necessary To Aid Plans.

Current pleas for speed in reopening Western Pennsylvania banks, unlicensed following the banking holiday in March, are fully justified. More than $140,000,000 are tied up in Western Pennsylvania. This loss must leave deep scars in the life of the district.

Of the unlicensed banks some will never reopen. Of those to receive licenses, all must be highly liquid before reopening is justified. Full co-operation of bankers, depositors and public officials is necessary.

If the bankers are possessed of any ability to justify their having been officials of banks, they should be ready to make the sacrifices necessary to reopen their institutions. They should jump at the chance of aiding plans even if those plans call for personal financial sacrifice. They have no excuse for passing the buck to public officials or depositors.

They have no right to ask to reopen weak institutions, They should not ask the public to subscribe to stock if it is merely to [illegible] the burden of paying those assessments for which they became responsible when they assumed trusteeship of the people's money.

Continued policies of secrecy and continued failure to inform the public and depositors of the true condition of their banks is no good indication of any change in heart on the part of the banker. It is the depositor's money that has been lost or jeopardized and a full accounting is his due.

A humble stand and a spirit of helpfulness and sacrifice would be far more appropriate than the silence, querulousness, the pass-the-buck and shift-the-burden attitude being assumed by many former bankers today.

Park Bus Lines

County Commissioners Seek Permission To Provide Cheap Bus Transportation.

The Public Service Commission, it is to be hoped, will take favorable action on the application of the Allegheny County Commissioners for permission to operate low-cost buses to North and South Parks. The case will be heard on July 10.

The Commissioners plan to operate three bus routes to North Park and two to South Park. This action is being taken because fares on the existing bus routes are believed to be excessive.

The service at present is being supplied by the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company as well as by some independent operators. Pittsburgh Motor Coach is owned by the Pittsburgh Railways Company which, in turn, is owned by the Philadelphia Company. The record of the bus company with its 25-cent fare for rides which would cost 10 cents in other cities is too well known for the organization to get much sympathy over the fact that it is to be faced with county-operated competition in serving the parks.

The service can be supplied by the county without involving any large investment. Independent operators of 94 buses who, during the winter, transport school children, have expressed their willingness to work for the county during the summer.

The taxpayers have a tremendous investment in their two county parks. A great wrong will be done the citizens of the county if utility companies are permitted to bar the use of the parks to many by charging excessive fares.

Hospitals Face Crisis

Aid Will Be Needed If Institutions Are To Continue To Care For Needy Patients.

The hospitals of Western Pennsylvania are facing a serious crisis. Declining revenue from paying patients, difficulties in securing contributions and an overwhelming increase in the demands for free treatment and clinical work have brought them to a point at which many institutions may be forced to close their doors or else to greatly curtail their services.

Directors and heads of Western Pennsylvania hospitals organizing a committee to develop plans for meeting the difficulties.

In spite of increased free work, the last state appropriation for hospitals was decreased $428,910. This cut meant that 10,138 fewer indigent persons could be given free treatment.

With bills piled up for months and the necessity for reduction of charitable work facing them, the concensus of opinion among hospital heads at a recent meeting was that city and county governments must realize the dangers of the situation and must provide assistance.

The Right Method

Judge Benjamin Lencher Plans To Interview Every County Ward and Caretaker.

At last the problem of the proper care of the county wards is to be studied in a thorough and efficient manner. Judge Benjamin Lencher has announced that he will interview every county ward and every caretaker beginning July 10.

He plans to take this action in order to find out for himself the existing conditions in foster homes. The interviews will take about seven weeks.

Only by painstaking effort of this kind can the evils in the treatment of Juvenile Court charges be eliminated. The fact that one man expects to complete this task in seven weeks is a severe reflection on the members of regular staff of workers who failed to carry out their permanent duties.

Judge Lencher is to be highly commended for going into the county ward problem in such a conscientious manner.

Business Still Gains

Weekly Index of the Pittsburgh District Records Fourteenth Consecutive Gain.

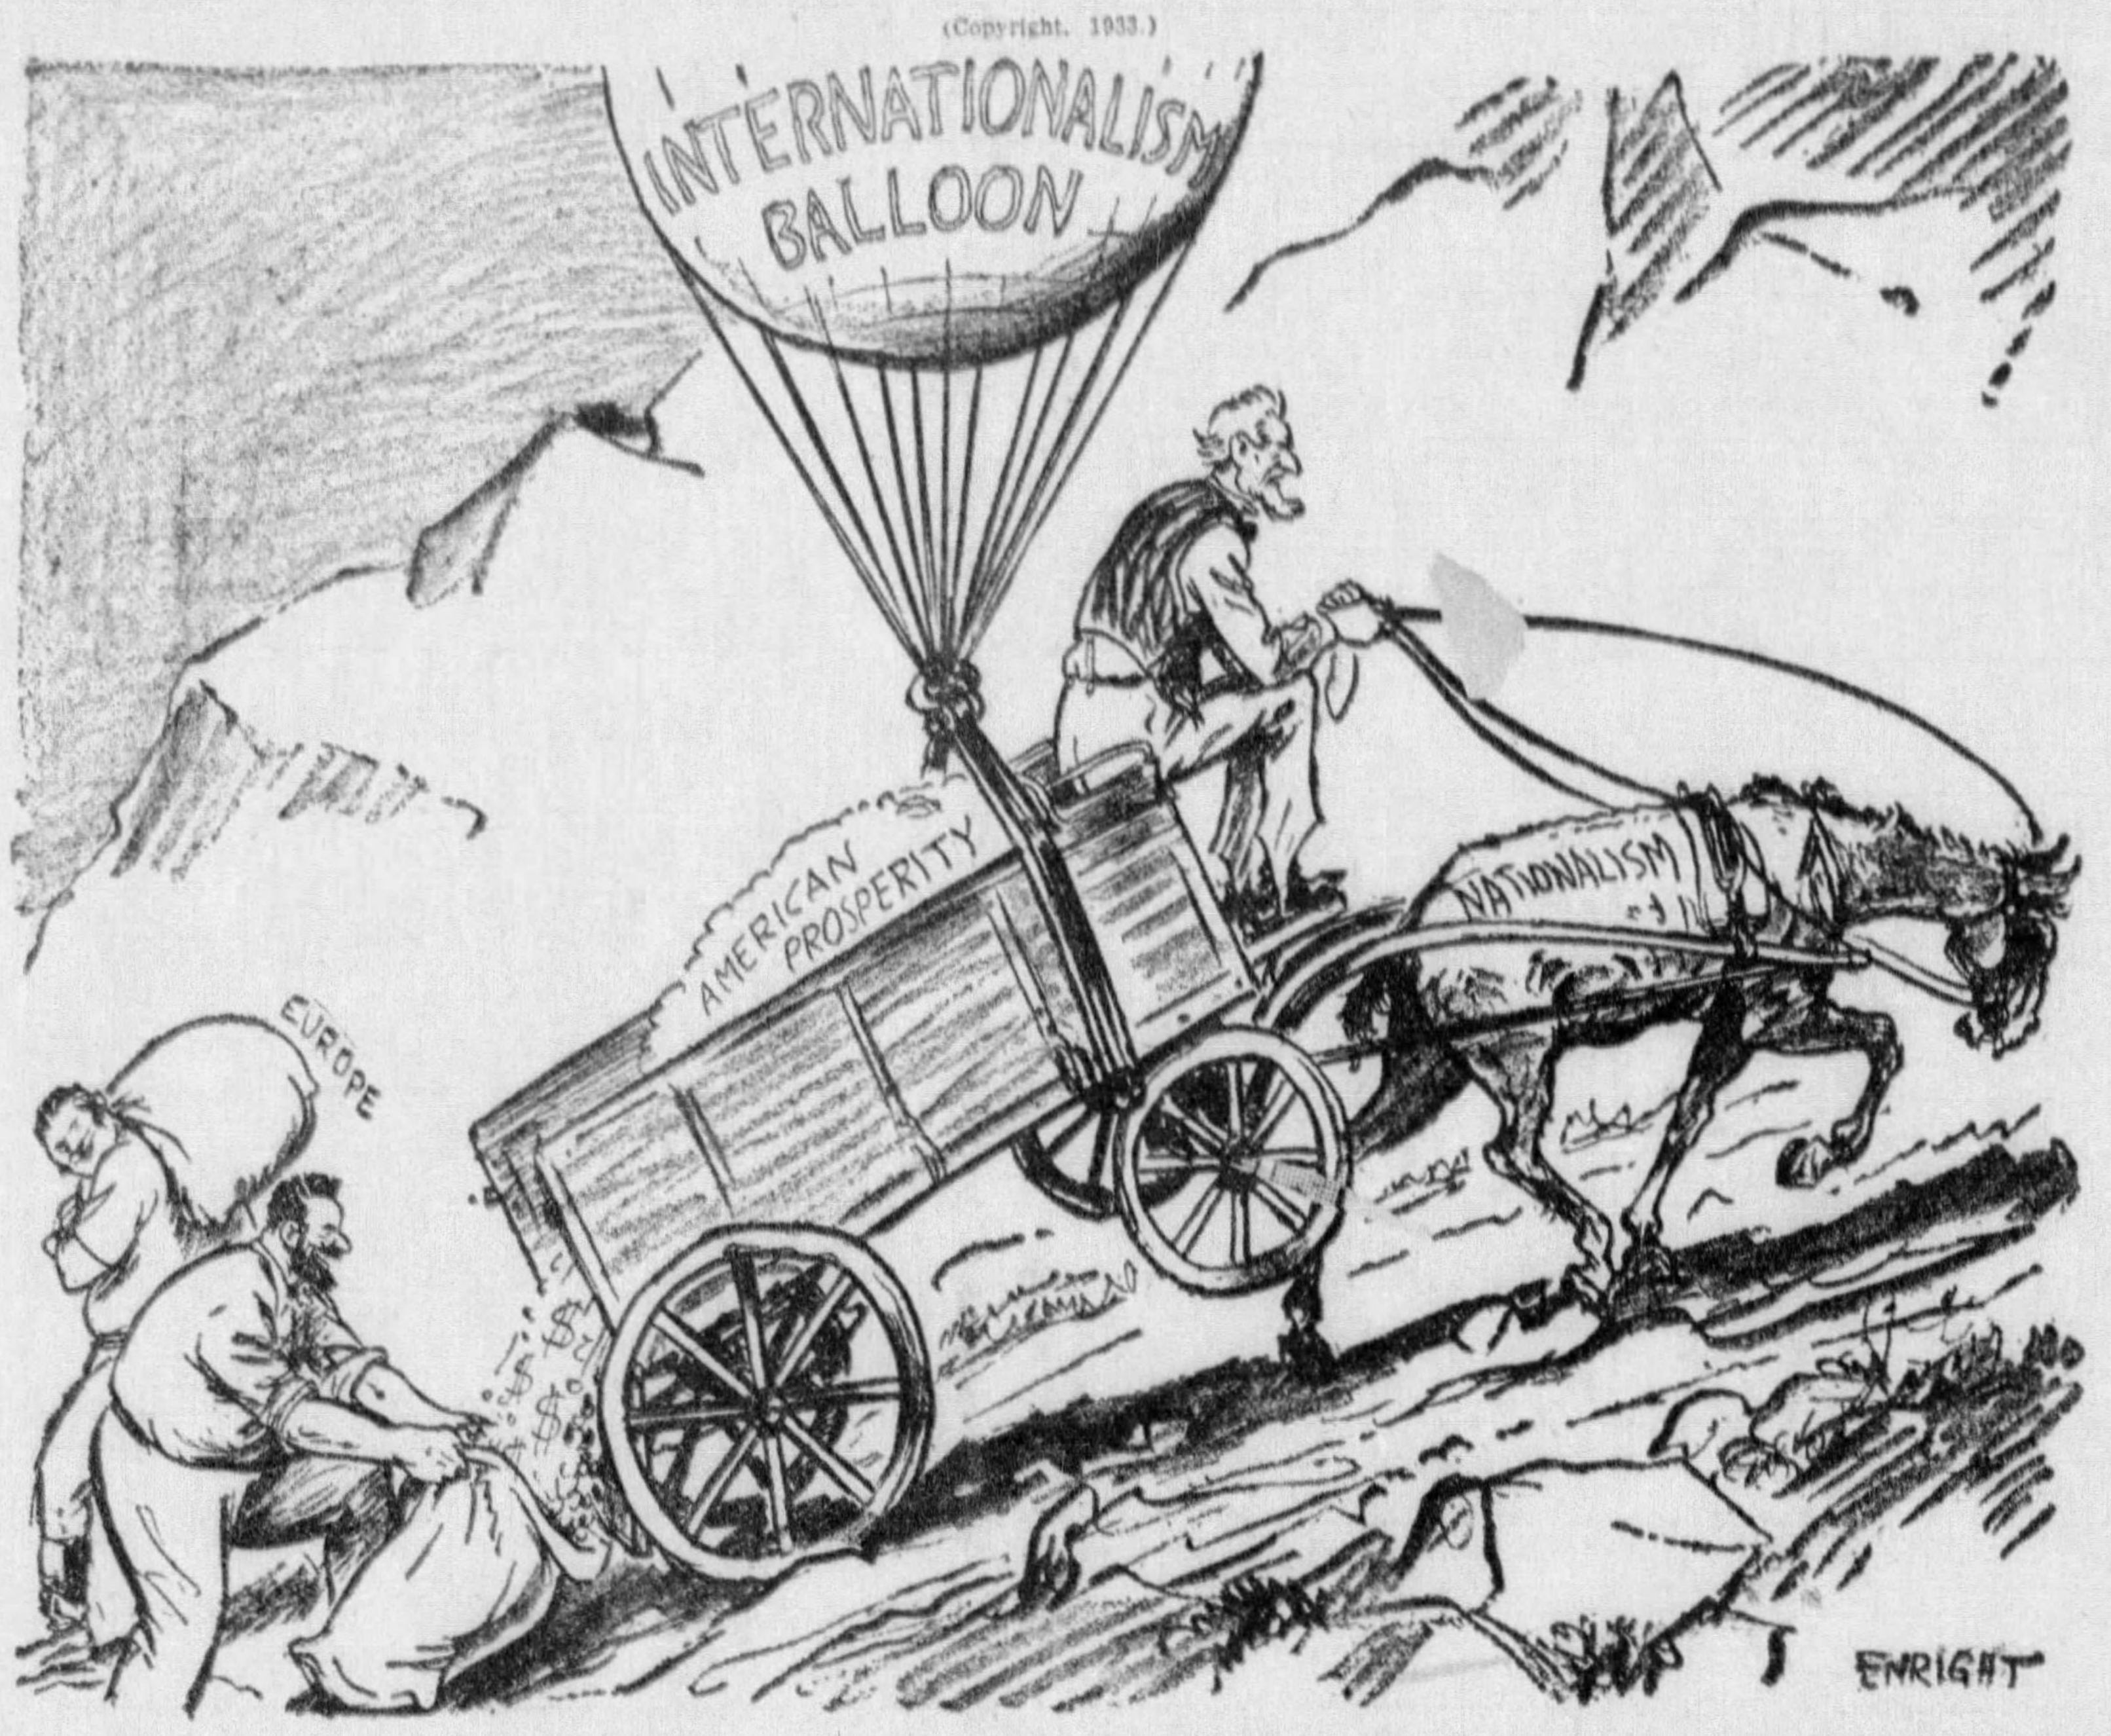
Pittsburgh is holding a prominent place among the industrial centers which are leading the procession toward business recovery.

Fourteen consecutive weekly gains in business activity in this district have been recorded since the end of the bank holiday. This is shown by the weekly index of business activity in the Pittsburgh district, prepared by the Bureau of Business Research of the University of Pittsburgh.

The index stood at 66.1 for the week ended June 24. This was 3.8 points in excess of the previous week. It represented a gain of 25.6 points over the level of 39.5 at which the index stood in the week ended March 28, the low point of the depression.

Time to Cut Loose

(Copyright, 1933.)



A few months ago a curious scientist succeeded in making a silk purse out of a sow's ear.

But nobody has ever succeeded in making a parachute out of a farm wagon.

Both ideas are ridiculous, of course—yet not any more ridiculous than the attempts of "idealists" to lift Uncle Sam into the vague empyrean of internationalism.

This country's freedom and progress depend on SANE NATIONALISM.

INTERNATIONALISM is an unguided flight into Cloud Cuckoo Land. Aristophanes would laugh himself sick at such a thought.

The two theories—nationalism and internationalism—simply will not work together, and even the internationalists are finding that out nowadays.

It's time for Uncle Sam to cut loose from internationalism and quit spilling his prosperity into Europe's hands.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Indian Summer Marriages

The ideal time to marry is while you are young and ardent, pliant and adaptable. This doesn't mean, of course, leaping straight from the bassinet to the altar nor cutting your baby teeth on a wedding ring.

* * *

But the ultra-modern girl, who insists on putting off marriage until she has made good in her career or until she has played around a little longer, is preparing herself for a future diet of dead-sea-fruit.

WHAT HAVE WE TO EAT DEAR ?
ROUND STEAK !

Marriage is for just one purpose—that of making a life TOGETHER, whether it's a home life, a gypsy life, an adventure or a career. And, when you have already made your OWN life and found your place in the scheme of things, all by your lonesome, a husband just disrupts the ensemble and spoils the scenery.

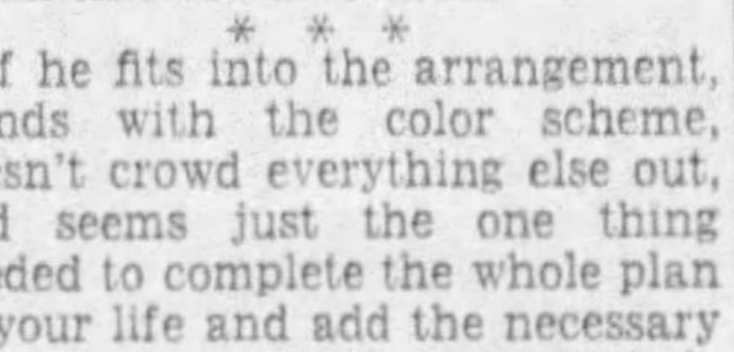
Taking a brand new man into your life, after it is "all set" and after you have fixed ideas about the temperature of a room or the cooking of a steak or the height of a window curtain, is as risky as bringing a brand new piece of furniture into a room that has already been artistically completed by an interior decorator.

* * *

If he fits into the arrangement, blends with the color scheme, doesn't crowd everything else out, and seems just the one thing needed to complete the whole plan of your life and add the necessary touch to give it charm and balance, then you are lucky and wise to marry him, even if you are 45.



I THINK TH' TEMPERATURE IS JUST RIGHT IN HERE !
AN' I THINK IT'S TOO HOT !

But if he is too young or too old, too modern or too mid-Victorian, too brilliant and peppy or too dull and ponderous—if he does not blend with tempo and arrangement of your life and you are not pliable enough to blend with his ways and habits, your experiments will end in disillusionment and failure. Which is tragic, after 40.

Two young things in the twenties can adjust themselves to each other's ways and temperaments, so that they GROW together, like two bunches of iris planted in the same rock-garden.

It doesn't matter much, how little money or income they have to start with, because they can get used to eating round steak and can sleep soundly on hard studio couches and lumpy pillows—and just dream of their golden future, instead of lying awake and nagging each other about their debts.

* * *

But, after two people have jelled, and each has his or her career, an impulsive marriage or an Indian summer romance just smashes the mold of their lives.

Congenial companionship is the sweetest and most precious thing in the world! Every woman longs for it and every man needs it. But the time to find it, is in the springtime of life, at the beginning of your career. And if you find it in your Indian summer, the gods are making a pet of you!

* * *

Obey that impulse—marry the boy! There is no career, however dazzling, that can take the place of young love!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 30.—Thoughts while strolling: I grow romantic when I hear that Chevalier song, "In the Park!" Always a cigaret hanging from Frank Tours' lower lip. The bear market is for brunettes this summer. How the big bankers have lost their bluster. Folksey!

Amelia Earhart, an Atchison (Kan.) girl, who made good in the city. Fannie Hurst and Helena Rubinstein affect the same headdress. Frank Morgan is remindful of Frank Fay. And Tony Wons suggests Edward G. Robinson run through a ringer. That crash was Carter Glass toppling off the pedestal!

One word description of Joseph A. Moore—smiley. Whatever became of John N. Beffel? No one ever poetized the avenue's nightly necklace of amber lights. Stevenson once wrote: "There are no stars like the Edinburgh street lamps." The Frank Masons dachshund, "Susie."

Nobody so darkly sombre as Nazimova. Or so romantic as a liner's wireless operator. Exhilirating to begin calling an acquaintance of longstanding by given name. Who was it said: "My son and I are now buying sound stocks?" One of the last of the middle hair-parters, Billy Moore.

Walter Chrysler and Edsel Ford walk alike. A sort of hirple. One of my favorite people—Tullio Carminiti. Ryley Cooper's new avenue penthouse looks smack down on the obelisk. Somebody will get around to opening a Cheshire Cheese featuring steak and kidney pudding just about the time they put me on a diet.

The last of old-time theatrical offices, a serene sanctuary of dignified charm, is that of Daniel Frohman in the Lyceum theater which he controls. Like Major Bowes at the Capitol there is a bayed space where guests may view the stage. Frohman, born in Sandusky, O., 70 years ago, devotes his still active years to furthering needs of players. He is deservedly The Grand Old Man of the Theater, offering a forlorn transfusion to a dying art.

Frank Fay and Barbara Stanwyck, heading a leisurely trooping experiment from the coast, did not excite New York critics to especial lather with their revue, but high praise was yodeled for both stars. Fay has long been my choice for the sauvest of the slick talkers. He wears clothes as nattily as Jack Buchanon and despite often low clowning has an aristocratic dignity, a savoir faire. Of all male performers, he has the most graceful hands. Miss Stanwyck, a Flatbush girl and mightily proud of it, has a lump-in-the-throat motif that has not deserted her since "The Noose."

Josef Stransky congratulating Jesse Straus on his new ambassadorship, wired: "Congratulations. Why does France always get the best of us?"

Helen Wills Moody is one of the most popular celebrities visiting New York year after year. Her knack of self-effacement is such contrast to the usual hurrah that New York regards her with reverence. I know little about tennis and have only mildest enthusiasm for the game. But I invariably journey to Forest Hills to watch Mrs. Moody. On the courts she seems holding herself back from positive action until her opponent hits the ball and then rushes in no longer than necessary deftly to parry the stroke. Surfeited with admiration, she insists on privacy with a bleak gentleness that never offends.

London reports spatterdashes going the way of the pug dog. The Prince of Wales unspatted himself a few months ago, and such a gesture is ruinous to the industry. A sartorial statistician—Earl Benham as I remember—declares the first pair of spats on the avenue were sported by the cotillon leader Ward McAllister and won him a Page One box in Bennett's Herald. The gentleman, however, who really started a spat fad among American actors was John Drew. He wore them in a parlor comedy and later one afternoon to The Lambs.

Letter: "Don't worry your little ivory head about foreign movie stars. They are still box office. And how have you bean?"

What makes you think it's ivory? Listen—that's the kind of pure mahogany for which Grand Rapids fights.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

There's a song which always burns me up.

(Perhaps because it turns me so soggy soft!)

It was, I suspect, the original Bemoanin' Blues, even though it was written more than a century since. But when it comes to Moanin' Low, human nature is the same in the twentieth century as it was in the eighteenth, or the first. And so we're all just a lot of big, cry-baby hearts that bleat as one when we hear:

"Show me the road to Yesterday,
"Show me the paths I used to stray" and all the rest of that utterly futile plea.

Yesterday—how we all love it!

The Girls of Yesterday—what beautiful, radiant, modest goddesses! They had any Follies Chorus backed off the map!

The Morals of Yesterday—how noble they were, how superior to our sordid, shabby standards of today!

The Manners of Yesterday—so courtly, so kindly, so sincere! How they shame our modern uncouthness!

The Food of Yesterday—what wholesome, tasty stuff it was; what healthy, husky humans it built! Where can you find its like in this restaurant age?

The Fun of Yesterday—so clean and innocent; so dignified and refined! Alas for those dear, departed tiddley-winks, those charades and games of Authors.

The Homes of Yesterday—

The Business Code of Yesterday—

But why continue? The list is endless, and all one hundred per cent pure, clean, sweet, admirable, healthy, innocent, undefiled and generally hotsey-totsey. And all because—what?

Why this sobbing yearning for Yesterday; this idolatrous worship of the things of the past?

Is it because Yesterday really was so vastly superior to Today?

Were those Girls actually more beautiful? Were the Manners and Morals, the Fun and Food, the Homes and Business Dealings all on a higher, finer plane?

Were we, ourselves, better people then—more honest and brave and kind?

NO, THEY WEREN'T; AND NEITHER WERE WE.

We may have kidded ourselves into thinking they were. We may be truly sincere when we tell the youngsters that they were. But the slightest study of the actual Laws and Records of those days will reveal that we're wrong.

Then why does Yesterday get such a big vote from us all; and why is Today always in the dog house?

The answer is simple, but hard to take.

WE LOVE YESTERDAY BECAUSE WE ARE AFRAID OF TODAY.

Yesterday wasn't really better. But it was easier and safer. And we long, with all our timid, lazy, stupid souls, to flee back to that simple life which was so easy to understand—to those carefree days when we could loaf along, free from the cruel competition of these congested days.

Yes, Yesterday was certainly kind on the feet and head. We didn't have to do much to make a record, and we could take our time about doing it. But Today makes us snap into it. It won't let us dawdle or dream. It demands action, plenty and pronto! Naturally we love Yesterday better than Today.

And another reason why we love it better is because we were younger. That glamour which we so wistfully remember wasn't actually the radiance of a superior civilization or sweller humans. It was the radiance of our own Youth.

WE MOURN NOT BETTER DAYS BUT YOUNGER ONES.

They weren't more beautiful girls, or more wonderful boys—but they were our first ones. And the food wasn't finer—but our digestions were.

As for the morals and manners, being perfectly normal children we didn't really know or give a hoot about them. But it helps us put on a good act to pretend we did. And if we can put on a good enough act—if we can criticize Today bitterly enough and complain hard enough—then maybe we won't have to get busy and do something about this strange and terrifying Status Quo.

Why do we yelp so to be shown the "road to Yesterday"?

That's why.

WE'RE AFRAID OF TODAY. WE'RE LOOKING FOR A CHANCE TO BEAT IT!

The Source

Whence come these springs
That in me rise?
This hope that lifts
Me toward the skies?
This faith with which
Its deathless spark
Defies the threat
Of terrors dark?

Whence come these springs,
Not of my own;
But from some realm
Too little known?
They flow, they flow
And never cease,
The springs of God,
Which give me peace!

The Human Side of the News

William Paterson, Founder of Bank of England—Worshiped as God by San Blas Indians—Ghosts in Tower of London

By EDWIN C. HILL

THE Old Lady of Threadneedle Street is deeply annoyed because we have gone off the gold standard and spoiled a neat British scheme which depended upon the inflexibility of the American dollar. The Bank of England is the very heart of the British financial structure. In the bank is all the yellow gold that Britannia has been able to garner and hold on—perhaps $600,000,000 worth, about one-seventh of what is piled up in the Treasury at Washington. The bank was founded in 1694 by an old stick named William Paterson, a canny Scot, but cantankerous. There were some curious episodes in his life, quaint ones for a banker.

Only a little while ago the curator of the National Museum in Washington noted the strange fact that the little figures of gods carved by the San Blas Indians of Panama were all portraits of the same person. Every one of these little carved figures had a long nose and wore a tall hat, a green coat and striped trousers. The curator of the museum made a study of this curious fact and reached the conclusion that the Indians had chosen as their god none other than William Paterson, the Scot who had founded the Bank of England. He spent years there and his family had died near Darien.

Strange, is it not, that this grumpy Scot left such an impress in the jungle? So much so that they made him a god and bowed down before his tall hat, his long nose, his green coat with its brass buttons and his striped trousers.

Apparitions in The Tower of London

FIELD MARSHALL LORD MILNE is the new Constable of the Tower of London, an office that goes back to William the Conqueror. He is installed with the rich, colorful ritual that goes back to the days of the Tudors. And there are other things in that gray, grim fortress by the Thames that go back to the days of the Tudors—incredible things.

A Yoeman of the Guard in the Tower of London rushes to the Governor with a tale of strange doings in the night. His ruddy face two shades lighter and his plump hands still trembling, the Beefeater stutters his story. Near the Bloody Tower and not far from the Traitors' Gate he had seen with his own eyes the figure of a woman in white. He had no idea where she came from, but there she was, like white moonlight.

The Yoeman of the Guard stood rooted to the ground, his hand gripping his pike until his knuckles hurt. Far down London River, at Westminster, Big Ben tolled the hour, stroke by stroke. It was just midnight.

The woman in white, light shining clear through her, approached the Beefeater with slow, graceful step and passed him without a sign. She was young. She was beautiful. Her face was very sad. He was sure he had seen her picture somewhere. And then all at once she was gone. While he stared she was gone. One moment the slim, graceful, white figure; the next moment nothing, nothing at all. That was the tale the Yoeman of the Guard t the Constable.

Nobody within the massive walls of the great tower that liam the Conqueror built than eight centuries ago laug that old tale of the white w who shows herself now and at long intervals, in the old ress prison. Certainly that tinguished soldier, Maj. Gen George Younghusband, d laugh at it when I talked to in his beautiful old-world a ment in St. Thomas' Tower, n
the Traitor's Gate on Lo River.

Sir George's Weird Experience

SIR GEORGE was the ma led the British column th the gorges of the Himalayas opened up Thibet years ago. W he retired he was made keep the Jewel House in the T where, among other daz treasures of the Crown jewels can see the Kohinoor blazin Queen Alexandra's crown, and fiery Cullinan in the crown
George the Fifth.

We sat there smoking, look out over the shipping in the ra misted river, and the old sol told me some curious stories ab the Tower. There's one part the enclosure that the sentries d like to patrol of nights. For t Earl of Northumberland wal about there, carrying his he under his arm.

"And I myself," Sir Geor
told me, "had a pretty weird experience. I was shaving in my dressing room, which faces the Bloody Tower. To my astonishment the heavy oak door opened slowly and widely. As I started forward it closed with the same slow, steady motion. Many times at night, as I have lain in my bed, I have heard the boards of the passage creak and the latch lift. I cannot explain these things, but I can assure you that they happened.

"When Lord Grenfell was on duty here one of his sentrie was found lying senseless. Whe he came to he told of seeing white figure that came slow toward him. He challenged, go no reply and lunged with his bayonet. The bayonet went right through the figure—and that's all the sentry could remember.

"Anne Boleyn was out walking that night," said Sir George, finishing the tale. "Maybe it was unhappy Anne, mother of Queen Elizabeth, that the frightened Beefeater saw the other night. She was the second wife of Henry VIII and was beheaded in the Tower enclosure. Henry, who was certainly careless and inconsiderate in his matrimonial affairs, wanted to get rid of Anne to marry Jane Seymour. So he ordered her head cut off, poor lady."

The grim Tower is full of such stories. It is the most terrible monument that survives today. If ghosts walk not in that grim and sinister reminder of the tyranny of kings and the cruelty of courts, they walk nowhere on this earth. For every stone in its dungeons has been a witness of some dreadful deed; every stone in its walls a witness of some frightful crime.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Don't censure the man of responsible position, in any business, who refuses to answer questions relative to that business, from those who have no right to be asking pointed questions.

Higher officials get a reputation for being arrogant and discourteous, quite often, just because they must shut off inquisitive persons.

Naturally, if the questioner becomes too persistent, he is going to get a flat and emphatic refusal to answer.

The official or the employe who will not obey orders to keep business matters to himself is really disloyal.

As an employe he must work first for the good of his compa
